BOARD OF TRADE DINNER ECHO.

Now that the European market has been greatly curtailed for American goods and we are looking for an outlet in South America, scores of Plainfielders will recall the speech which was made at the Board of Trade dinner in February by Charles H. Sherrill. Mr. Sherrill served for two years as American Ambassador to Argentine Republic, and the picture which he painted of the possibilities for American trade in that country was an eye-opened to the big audience. He said that the country had a foreign trade of about a billion dollars, or nearly $125 per capita of the population. England and Germany have been getting a large per centage of this business, and now that the war has come on, they are cut off, opening a great field for the United States provided we can find ships to transport the goods.

That brings up the question as to just who sold the goods to the South American Republic? The following are the amounts in round numbers of the imports from each of the leading six countries, given in Argentine dollars and the Argentine dollar is worth about 97 cents in United States money: From the United Kingdom (Great Britain not including Canada, Australia, or other possessions) $130,900,000; Germany, $71,000,000; United States, $62,000,000; France, $38,000,000; Italy, $35,000,000; Belgium, $22,000,000 Of the total imports the United Kingdom furnishes 31.1 per cent.; Germany, 16.9 per cent.; United States, 14.7; France, 9; Italy, 8.3; Belgium, 5.2. In other words over 54 per cent. of Argentina's imports in 1913 came from four of the European countries now busily engaged in trying to exterminate one another.

A second question. What and to whom does the country sell? is about as important as the first. If Argentina can't sell her products she can't get the money to buy. That's a pretty plain proposition. Now, what does she sell? Pre-eminently food products, needed just now by the warring nations as perhaps never before. Last year Argentina sold over $300,000,000 worth of agricultural products, consisting principally of corn, $112,000,000; wheat, $103,000,000; linseed, $50,000,000; oats, $20,000,000; barley, $1,000,000; rye, $567,000; potatoes, fruits, hay, etc., in smaller quantities.

Of live animals and meat products she sold $166,000,000 worth, most of which went to England, only 3,000 tons coming to the United States.

Food products like those mentioned will be in such demand that ways and means will be found to transport them to Europe, and if there should be any surplus doubtless the United States will be glad to be a larger purchaser. Other products, however, may not be so easily disposed of. For instance, of the exports of salt cattle hides, over 30,000 tons went to Germany; 14,000 tons to the United Kingdom; 11,000 tons to the United States; 7,000 tons to Belgium, etc. Of flint cattle hides, nearly 11,000 tons went to the United States; 4,300 tons to Germany; 2,650 tons to Italy; over 1,300 tons to Belgium, etc. Of unwashed wool over 40,000 tons went to Germany, 37,000 tons to France; 18,500 tons to the United Kingdom; 10,000 tons to Belgium, and 8,900 tons to the United States. Quebracho logs and quebracho extract (for tanning purposes) were exported to the amount of about $10,000,000. The question for the consumers of such products as these in the United States will be how much of them can this country buy? The greater the imports into the United States from Argentina, the greater will be the amount of exports to that country. Both sides of the question must be considered.

SETTLE IT AT THE POLLS.

Candidates for councilmanic honors at the fall elections should bear in mind that a paramount issue which will enter into the campaign will be the liquor question. The people who are opposed to any increase in the number of licenses in this city are not going to sit idly by during the pre-election days this year, and let men in favor of more saloons be elected, thus necessitating a campaign after the new council organizes, such as has been the case during the last two years.

As is only too fresh in the minds of the people of the city, it has been necessary to take up valuable time of the Council during the months of January, February and March in 1913 and 1914, discussing the liquor question, and matters of much moment have been neglected in order to allow the public to make its wants known on that topic. This year the Federation of Men's Clubs and the Federation of Men's Bible Classes are said to be planning to enter actively into the campaign on that score, and they will of course oppose any candidate who favors more licenses, or a letting down of the regulations which now control the traffic in this city.

There is only one proper time to settle a matter of this kind. If the people favor a continuance of the splendid policy now in force in this city, and we believe a large majority of the residents do, the place to decide the question is at the polls. Every candidate for councilmanic honors should be called upon to state how he stands on this all important question, and if an evasive answer is given, support should be turned to the candidate who is against any change. Then if an advocate of extension of the privilege should be elected, he will know that the majority of the people of his district favor more saloons, and will vote accordingly.

But whatever happens, let us hope that no more time of the Council will be taken up after it organizes, struggling with a question that should properly be settled at the November election.

Petitions have been filed with the Board of Freeholders for the placing upon the official ballots at the November election of the question as to whether or not Union county shall adopt the Civil Service law for county employees. It is to be hoped that the people of the county will grant this request by a large majority. In Essex and Hudson the employees are now protected by such a law, and it has had a tendency to greatly improve the handling of county business. Civil Service was adopted in New Jersey in 1908, former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman of this city having been the sponser for the State law, and it has proven very effective bringing to the service of the State hundreds of employees who are entirely out of politics.

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Allow me to bring to the attention of your readers the following quotation:

Equal Rights and a Grave Wrong.

"It is a new thing for this country to feel a flush of shame because of any action of Southern women. Yet that has come to pass. A New Orleans organization described as the largest woman's club in the South, has rejected a proposal to send a message of condolence to the President of the United States because the woman whose loss he mourns was not a sympathizer with the suffrage movement. It would be useless to dwell upon the question of taste, apart from those of humanity, involved in this action. The women who are carefully weighing the question of suffrage as applied to themselves may well pause if the action of the Era Club is to be taken as indicating the blight that may come upon the feminine mind through a struggle for 'political equality.'"—Editorial New York Herald.

The criticism contained in it touches lightly a phase of the "Woman Question" ridiculed and brushed aside by Suffragists but which is one of the most serious points in the whole agitation.

We might well say the most serious, for nothing can be of graver import to a country than the destruction of that which is represented by true womanhood.

The present subject is of course peculiarly flagrant as the resolution of the Era Club, was not regarding alone the death of our President's wife, but of a true noble self-forgetful woman whose death should have struck a note of sorrow in the heart of every woman in the land.

Joy that she had lived, that we were privileged to have had her life and example, mitigating the regret and sorrow at her loss.

But her life was a contradiction to the most rudimentary claims of the well-informed Suffragist, for she accomplished good to all, she worked to the last conscious breath for the poor slum dwellers and to quote that other self-forgetful, devoted soul and strong opponent even to the propoganda of the exponents of old-fashioned "Women's Rights," Dorothea Dix—she "only had to show the members of Congress the charity and humanity embodied in her requests to get her bills passed," and Miss Dix referred to "five which had gone through in one session."

The large majority of her countrywomen are grateful that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson lived, and that we knew her, if not personally at least through her life and works, and grieve that she could not have stayed many more years with her husband, and for the good of those who suffer and are poor and our hearts go out to him in sympathy and sorrow.

MUSICAL SUNDAY AT TEMPLE BAPTIST S. S.

Fine Program Presented Yesterday, With Unique Features and Decorations.

The Temple Baptist School gave the fourth of its special services, yesterday, which was designated "Musical Sunday." It proved to be all that the name implies. The orchestra, under the leadership of Arthur S. Mosher, contributed largely to the program and rendered many pleasing selections.

W. J. Bowman, from the Bushwick Avenue Methodist Sunday-school, of Brooklyn, where he has charge of the orchestra, contributed two trombone solos. Mr. Bowman is a musician of fine ability and certainly evinced his mastery of the instrument on which he played.

A solo entitled "Now the Shades of Night Are Gone," was rendered in a most pleasing manner by Mrs. R. E. Humpstone, and a duet entitled "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," was given by Mrs. Humpstone and William Holmes. They are both among the leading singers of this city and they certainly maintained the merited reputation in the delightful manner in which they contributed their part of the program. A solo was also given by Mr. Holmes with most pleasing effect. His voice always scores a success and the audience were especially pleased with his selection. Miss Bessie Carson, the pianist of the school, was the accompanist for the entire musical service.

A number of young friends from the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, who were present by special arrangement, sang some of their familiar hymns. The young visitors who live on the East Side of New York city, are certainly possessed of sweet voices, and their enthusiastic singing was much appreciated and enjoyed.

One of the features of this service was the decorations. Yellow was most prominent. Flowers of this color and large clusters of golden rod completely covered the front of the pulpit. Artistic yellow programs, most attractive and dainty, were distributed. The cards used for the opening exercise were also a distinctive yellow, and packages in yellow were given to the friends who contributed to the program. The secretary's report was most gratifying, and showed a substantial gain over the atendance of a year ago, and was above the average for the present month.

Next Sunday the service will be designated "Teachers' Sunday" and has been especially arranged for the benefit of the teachers and officers, but will be equally interesting to the other members of the school.

Charles A. Brown, superintendent of a large Baptist Sunday-school in Woodbury, and also financial secretary of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association, a man of large experience in Sunday-school work, is to make an address, and give some practical suggestions for the teachers and officers.

L. W. Randolph, the superintendent, is also expected to be home by that time, and while this service will probably close the special services arranged for the summer season, there will be the same activity displayed in the regular sessions of the school.

Already plans are being matured for the rally day service, which will probably be held on Sunday, September 20.

A PURCHASE OF MORE THAN 7,000 BLANKETS

TO BE SOLD AT

15 to 50 Per Cent. Reduction is the good news that joins the Furniture Sale this week—enabling people to lay in these winter furnishings NOW at a great saving.

People from other cities passing through New York on their way home are taking advantage of these low prices.

New Yorkers who wait, thinking they are on the ground, and can buy the blankets later at the same low prices will be disappointed, because this purchase cannot be duplicated.

Even our regular stock blankets and those in other stores are marked, necessarily, much higher than these prices; and when duplicate stocks are bought later they will cost still more, owing to the advance of wool and the scarcity of German dyes, due to the war.

CONTEST FOR COUNCILMANIC HONORS IN SECOND WARD

That the Progressive party is still to be reckoned with in the city was made evident today, when it became known that some of the members of that party in the Second ward are not satisfied with the methods which have been used to persuade someone to run for Council on the Republican ticket.

Two meetings of the Republican leaders in the ward have been held, and it has been unofficially stated that C. P. Hamilton, of the Netherwood section, would be the party's candidate for councilman this year. Mr. Hamilton evidently does not meet with the unanimous approval of the voters of the ward, for a number of Netherwoodites, regardless of politics, have persuaded C. B. Wardlaw, who is connected with the Leal School, and therefore in the city all the time, to permit the use of his name as a Progressive candidate. Petitions for the placing of Mr. Wardlaw's name on the primary ticket are now being circulated.

MRS. E. G. LEWIS PASSES AWAY IP SIXTY-NINTH YEAR

Mrs. E. G. Lewis, for many years a resident of Dunellen, died at her home in that borough, last evening. Mrs. Lewis had not enjoyed good health for the past two or three years, the heat of the past few weeks being the immediate cause of her last illness. She was in her sixty-ninth year, having lived in Dunellen for the past twenty-four years, during which time she was an active member of the Methodist church of that place.

Mrs. Lewis is survived, aside from her husband, by one daughter, Mrs. Edgar Shively, and two sons, Walter L. and Sidney Lewis, all of Dunellen. The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 424 Front street, Dunellen, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at which time Rev. Dr. D. B. Ramsey, pastor of the Dunellen Methodist church, will officiate. The interment wil be made at Somerville.

PRESIDENT CONDEMNS MEXICAN TROUBLE MAKERS

Washington, Aug. 24—In no uncertain terms President Wilson today condemned certain individuals and interests, who he said were seeking to stir up renewed trouble in Mexico solely for the purpose of advancing their own selfish aims. He mentioned no names. He did, however, charge that there was a concerted and well defined conspiracy on foot to create trouble between General Carranza and General Villa. This effort, he added, would come to naught because of the slight misunderstandings that had existed being adjusted.

The Mexican situation, the President told his callers, was rapidly adjusting itself and the outlook was all that the Washington administration had hoped for. He spoke with complete confidence and expressed his conviction that the Mexican Republic, tired of the incessant wars and counter wars, now was settling down to the establishment of a permanent government and the development of the country's rich resources. Emphatic denial was made at the White House that John Lind, the President's personal representative to Mexico during the late revolution, was to be sent south of the Rio Grande. The report had widespread circulation, but it is declared to be without foundation in fact.

PROGRAM OF MUSIC AT NETHERWOOD CAMP

Rev. W. F. Alton, pastor of Grace Episcopal church, of Brooklyn, had charge of the regular Sunday afternoon service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, yesterday. There was a large number of visitors present and the leader gave a very interesting talk.

The children's choir, which is in charge of Mrs. William Harley, rendered several numbers, and Miss Howard, of New Brunswick, rendered two pleasing solos. Miss Margaret Burnett, of this city, accompanied on the violin and also played a solo.

The bids were as follows: Stephen Barton, Garwood, $525; R. J. Montgomery, Elizabeth, $611.25; E. W. Chamberlain, Westfield, $635.15; I. V. Smalley, Dunellen, $694.75; Wilson Contracting Company, Plainfield, $726.25; Willoughby & Son, Westfield, $727.80; Villa Brothers, Westfield, $1,427.50. The awarding of the contract was laid over until tonight.

FIREMEN'S CARNIVAL A VERY SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

The annual carnival of the New Market Fire Company was held at Wayside Park, Saturday afternoon and night. The place was decorated in an attractive manner and a large crowd attended. There were all sorts of amusements and the two athletic events proved popular. A large number started in the 220 yard dash, which was won by P. McDonough, and he also cleaned up in the half-mile run.

The main feature of the evening was a sparring exhibition between Bob Fitzsimmons and his son. They gave a very clever showing of the art of self-defense. The son had the best of the argument throughout and landed several heavy blows on his parent's body that brought loud applause from the spectators. The youth was also clever and quick in getting out of the way of his opponent's blows, not one telling punch landed on him. Dancing was enjoyed by a large number and excellent music was furnished by Naylor's orchestra.

The baseball game between the New Market and South Plainfield firemen resulted in a victory for the former by the score of 21 to 20. A return game will be played next Saturday in the latter place when the South Plainfield fire laddies hold their annual carnival at that place.

WAR BENEFITS UNITED STATES.

Washington, Aug. 24.—"A direct benefit to the people of the United States from the European war will be its effect in making the people of this country realize to a greater extent the value of its mineral resources," says Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior. "Of an importance second only to that of the food supply," says Mr. Lane, "is the supply of mineral products necessary to meet the requirements of Twentieth century civilization. One of the first effects of the war has been to make us realize the interdependence of nations in the matter of food supply. Most of the countries now at war are dependent upon importation of foodstuffs, and we have cause for self-congratulation in the United States that we are able to feed ourselves. What we have possibly not so fully realized is that we are nearly as independent in the possession of essential mineral resources, and that the interference with manufacturing caused by interruption of the flow of importations of many necessary raw materials, may be overcome almost wholly by development of neglected resources in our own country.

"The main difficulties to be overcome are in the re-arrangement of the distribution system necessary to establishing the independence. Business is established along certain well-marked channels, and usually follows the line of least resistance. It has been easier, and perhaps cheaper, to import mineral products and materials from other countries than to go to the trouble and expense of developing our own resources of the same nature. Forced to the latter course by the suspension of commerce with other countries, I believe that American enterprise and energy will almost at once turn to the development of the native resources, rather than permit production to lag and supply to be diminished in any industry.'

AFTER LIQUOR SHIPMENTS.

Cumberland, Md., Aug 24.—Application for an injunction against the Western Maryland Railway Company to compel it to accept shipments of liquors from Cumberland to residents of Tucker, Grant and Mineral counties, W. Va., for their own use has been made before Judge Rose of the United States District Court at Baltimore, by the James Clark Distilling Company, of Cumberland. The Railway Company and the American Express Company have been refusing shipments, following an injunction issued by Circuit Judge Reynolds at Keyser, W. Va. It is stated that under the new West Virginia Prohibition law persons in that State have the right to buy liquor for their own personal use.

CAPTURED WASHINGTON 100 YEARS AGO TODAY

Washington, Aug. 24.—In the light of present events in Europe it is interesting to recall the fact that residents of this vicinity, including the President of the United States and all the officials of the government, were having some similar worries of their own just one hundred years ago today. On this date in the year 1814 word was received in Washington that the British expedition under Gen. Ross and Admiral Cockburn had affected a landing on the shores of Maryland and was ready to march on the national capital.

Two days later, on August 24, the British entered Washington and wrought such havoc with its public buildings that years were required to reconstruct and repair them. The capture of the city was preceded by the defeat of a motley army mustered to defend it. This engagement occurred at Bladensburg, Md. The American force consisted of several thousand raw militia commanded by Gen. Winder and a few hundred of Commodore Barney's sailors and marines. Had the militia been equal to holding its ground the victory would have been with the Americans. But the citizen soldiers' quality was not on a par with their quantity.

The American position at Bladensburg was strong and the defenders were well posted. The British force consisted of less than 5,000 men, but the most of these men were veterans who had fought under Wellington in Europe. After a scrambling skirmish, the British charged and the American militia broke and fled. The sailors and marines alone disdained to retreat. They put up a resolute resistance and were overcome by numbers. The President and his Cabinet were at Bladensburg when the British approached, but returned to the city when the conflict began, and narrowly escaped capture.

As soon as the British entered Washington they began their work of destruction. The congressional library, with many valuable historical documents, was destroyed, and an attempt was made to burn the capitol. The torch was also applied to the White House, the treasury and the War and State departments, and before the British evacuated the city and the flames were extinguished, property valued at $2,000,000 had been destroyed, and in addition many Americans had been killed and wounded. The black mark which the raid left on Washington came very near to ending its career as the capital of the United States, and it required all President Madison's influence to prevent the seat of government being removed to some place less resembling a straggling village that had been visited by conflagration.

When the world heard of the sack of Washington it denounced it as exceeding the limit of decent warfare. Nevertheless the British government honored Gen. Ross by permitting his family to add "of Bladensburg" to their patronymic. Most British historians have attempted to excuse the vandalism by stating that the acts were in retaliation for the depredations committed by the Americans along the Canadian border, particularly in the towns and villages in the vicinity of Niagara Falls. Others have stated that the British soldiers were incensed because of an attempt made by a citizen of Washington to kill Gen. Ross, whose life was saved at the expense of his horse.

After applying the torch to Washington the British beat a hurried retreat and during the next month essayed to capture Baltimore. They were defeated Sept. 13, and Ross was slain. It was while these operations against Baltimore were in progress that Francis Scott Key wrote the words of the "Star Spangled Banner," which, set to the melody of an old English drinking song, has become what is generally called the American national anthem.

FIRE AND EXPLOSION.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 24.—Explosions accompanying a $200,000 fire that destroyed the factory of the Wm. F. Jobbins Chemical Company, threatened the lives of 15,000 persons residing in the vicinity of the plant. Great steel tanks filled with nitro glycerine exploded and parts were blown in every direction over the city. One tank was blown across the Fox River and landed on top of the city water works.

SAURER LOSES BY ONE SCORE

HITTING THE FEATURE

Each Team Made An Even Dozen Bingles, Six Going for Extra Base Clouts—Westfield Won Game In the Eighth Round.

For the second time this season the Westfield A. A. baseball team took the measure of the Saurer aggregation at Recreation Park, Westfield, last Saturday afternoon, by the score of 10 to 9. The game was a swatfest throughout, each team making twelve safeties. Of the three times that the local team has been beaten this year the Mt. Ararat bunch have taken two of the verdicts.

The Saurer batters started off in the first inning with three runs and it looked as if they would have an easy time winning, but the home team came back in the second and third rounds and scored three in each, which gave them a good lead. After being blanked for two sessions the local batters got busy again and repeated the performance of the first inning and tied the score. Both teams hit the ball hard in the innings the scored in and there were two triples and four doubles made, the locals getting their full share of these extra base clouts.

Westfield took the lead again in the fifth, when they scored once on hits and errors. Both sides were goose-egged in the sixth and the score was again tied when the curtain closed on the seventh inning. The rooters for the home club became very much dismayed when the visitors hit one across the rubber in the eighth and took the lead, but these same suporters went wild when the Westfielders tallied three in their half of this inning. Saurer made a grand effort to "come back" in the ninth with two runs to tie the score, but could get only one across. Harriman and Dixon each hit for three bases, while Garretson and Martin each were credited with a two-bagger. Worth lead the home stickers with three safeties.

BAPTISTS' SCHEDULE ENDED WITH DEFEAT

Last Game of the Season Lost to the Monroe Team In the Ninth Inning.

The First Baptist baseball team closed its season, Saturday, with a defeat at the hands of the Monroe aggregation on the West End avenue grounds by the score of 6 to 3. The game was close throughout and it was not until the ninth inning that the Monroe batters took the lead from their opponents by scoring four runs on hits and errors. Four errors and two singles did the trick.

The Monroes scored one in the second frame and again in the seventh when the Baptists took the lead in their half of the lucky seventh by scoring three runs. The teams were both blanked in the eighth, but the visitors took the lead and won easily as their opponents could not score in their last inning. Randolph's home run and Coughlan were the features of the game.

HOPE CHAPEL WINS OVER ST. JOSEPH'S

Local Team Gets Well Earned Victory Over That Fast Bound Brook Nine.

Two runs in the second inning were enough for a victory for the Hope Chapel ballists over the strong St. Joseph's team, at Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon. The local team played by far the best they have this season and outplayed their opponents in every respect. Schott and McFadden had a regular pitching duel and, although the home team came near tying the game in the last frame they could not get one over the plate. For eight long innings Schott's curves had the home batters guessing and, although they had several chances with men on the bases, they could not hit his delivery in the pinches. Four hits were all they made during the game and they were all singles.

After the first inning was over it was plain to be seen that the result of the game would be a matter of doubt until the last out had been made. McFadden also had something on the ball and it was because the local batters took advantage of his one weak inning and hit the ball that they came home with the bacon. One of the two errors made by the home players in the second frame was costly and, although the Hope men were guilty of two misplays they came at times when the bases were empty. From the third to the ninth rounds the game was of big league variety and both teams played their best.

After the visitors had been blanked in the ninth, Wall, a pinch hitter, almost turned defeat into victory for the home club. With men on the sacks, Wall, batting for Teschner, singled and the one lone tally went across the plate. Schott then settled down and the game was over before any more runs were registered.

SAURER TEAM WINS BATTLE IN NINTH

After the South River Nine Ties the Score Locals Tally One In the Ninth.

The Harriman-Jaeger combination, leadoffs of the Saurer baseball team, came to the rescue of the team, yesterday afternoon, at Woodland Park, when each hit safely in the ninth inning, which caused the South River aggregation to lose the game after they had tied the score in the last frame. The game was tightly played throughout and the home team led in the scoring department until the last round, when the visiting batters tied the score. Conshay started to pitch for the locals, but was relieved by Miller and he retired to left field. The South River team scored in the first while the locals were blanked. Saurer tied matters up in the third with a tally and took the lead in the next two frames when they scored three runs. Both pitchers were in good form, the local twirler having a little on his opponent.

In the eighth the visitors found the ball and hit for one tally and when their last chance came they hammered the ball hard and when they were retired the score was tie. But not for long, as Harriman, the first man up in the ninth, hit to left and stole second. Jaeger shot a fast one past the third baseman and Harriman scored with the wining tally. This is the hardest Sunday game that the locals have yet played. Harriman and Wilson led the local stickers, while Green and Doker were the best batters for the visitors. Jaeger was easily the star in the field, accepting eleven chances without a slip. Muss and Curley also played well for South River.

In the preliminary contest the Highlanders took the game from the Plainfield A. A. aggregation by the score of 2 to 1. The game was fast and Denny and Maiden both pitched good ball. The score:

CANUCKS LOSE IN THE LAST INNING

After Leading the Interhavens For Eight Innings They Lose Out By One Run.

The Interhaven A. C., with the assistance of several old "come backs," downed the fast traveling Canucks, at Hyde Oval, Saturday afternoon, by a garrison rally in the eighth. The final score was 8 to 7. Dan Denny, the diminutive borough twirler, again did the honors in the box for the Canucks, while George Conover, served over the hot ones for the Interhavens.

Both hurlers showed perfect control throughout the game, only allowing one free ticket each. Stine started the scoring in the second with a long drive over second. Bailey took three healthy ones, but allowed Stine to get around to third and Burner hit him in.

In the third, Hebert got to first on a long single and while Spencer was playing with the bal he sneaked down to second and was knocked in by Townley.

Howe started things for the Interhavens in the fifth with a long right field fly. He reached third on Smalley's hit and was knocked in by Moulton's two bagger. In the sixth the Canadians came across with five tallies. This did not seem to feaze the old-timers, for they came back with two in the next, repeating the dose to the extent of three in the eighth and winning the game with two more in the ninth. The fast footwork of Barrett and the heavy hitting of Stine and Moulton were the features of the game.

CHIFEDS' MANAGER OUT FOR SEASON

Joe Tinker, a Veteran of Organized Baseball, Badly Hurt in Collision.

Chicago, Aug. 24—Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federal League club, probably will not be able to play ball any more this season, according to a physician who examined him to ascertain the extent of the injury he suffered in a collision in Friday's game. It was found that a rib was fractured and a splinter of the bone had penetrated a lung, while in the same accident Tinker was spiked in the knee and ankle.

Joe Tinker.

The collision occurred in the ninth inning, when Tinker dashed to the plate to cover it on a wild pitch. Charlie Hanford, a Buffalo player, ran in from third and the two crashed together. Tinker finished out the game, but found such difficulty in breathing that he concluded to consult a doctor.

The loss of the manager is expected seriously to weaken the playing strength of the local club, just as the pennant race is about to enter the stretch. Jimmie Stanley probably will stubstitute at shortstop.

THE SCORE-KEEPER WAS THE HERO OF THIS BALL GAME

After one of the most thrilling engagements ever recorded in the history of baseball, the New Market Vilunteer Fire Department defeated the South Plainfield department at Wayside Park, Saturday afternoon. Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Meany, "the scorekeeper," for in spite of a two hours' bombardment of runs, hits and errors, and bonehead plays, he stuck to his post heroically, and after the smoke of battle had cleared away, in the tenth inning, he announced the score as twenty-one to twenty in favor of the New Market crowd. Of course, in such a contest as this it were folly to even think of keeping count of the errors, and technical points of the game, as the runs alone were enough to keep a man busy for the afternoon. However, we can dispense with the list of errors and be reasonably certain that no player of either side will criticise us for so doing.

A feature of the game was the excellent stick work of Joseph Kelly, whose remarkable ability to strike at the ball after it was in the hands of the catcher attracted a great deal of attention. W. Hamilton, Bodenheimer and Smith starred for South Plainfield, while Nelson, Vanuis and Kelly were the shining lights for their team. The teams lined up as follows:

RUSTLERS WALLOPED FOR SECOND TIME YESTERDAY

Bound Brook seems to have the high sign on the new borough Sunday baseball team which goes by the title of the Rustlers, as that aggregation lost its second straight game at that place yesterday afternoon, to the crack St. Joseph's nine. The locals were never in it from the start and as several of their promised men did not appear, "rookies" were substituted.

Brick pitched for the boroughites and the fielders just chased the hits around until the ball stopped rolling. McDonough caught Brick but even his signals could not help the twirler and the home batters hit as they pleased and scored too many runs to count. Mundy was on the mound for the home team and was effective at all times. Teeling, the former Dunellen backstop, received him and nailed several runners at the keystone bag. The locals have the makings of a good team, however, and as this is only their second game they still have a chance to make good.

LOCAL MAN MADE BIG CATCH.

Pop Thorn, of this city, made his usual weekly fishing trip to Raritan Bay, Saturday, with a party of friends. In the party were Percy McVoy, Bert Harold, C. H. Hall and W. Swalm. Pop anchored the boat of Seguine's Point, where the big catch of ninety-one weakfish was made in a few hours. Pop fished there last week and in the report we said he anchored at Ward's Point, which was a mistake on our part.

WARM WEATHER DOES NOT EFFECT RECREATION WORK

The various activities conducted by the Public Recreation Committee are little affected by the warm weather as the attendance figures for the last two weeks will show. For the week just past the total attendance was three hundred and sixty, and for the previous weeks three hundred and ninety-six. The Municicpal Dance of Saturday night is the best drawing card and next to this is the Dunbar Club.

The regular program of the week's events is as follows: Monday, Italian Social and Educational Club, Lincoln School (Monday night being the social evening of the club); Tuesday, Dramatic Club, Washington School; Wednesday, Folk Dance Club, Bryant School; Thursday, Italian Club, Lincoln School (business and educational work); Friday, Dunbar Club, Washington School, and Saturday, Municipal Dance, Washington School.

The Italian Club will have its regular social evening tonight, and all the musicians are specially urged to bring their instruments with them.

READY FOR CARNIVAL AT MARCONNIER CHAPEL

The frame work on the various booths for the Marconnier Reformed church carnival at Oak Tree was completed Saturday afternoon, when twenty men of the church were at work. Every sort of booths from a peanut stand to an African Dodger coop are included in the assortment of structures which have been erected. The decorations of bunting and flags will be put up today by the women of the congregation. Electric lights are to be strung tomorrow. Arrangements have been made to have auto buses leave the local post-office and Martin's garage at 7, 8 and 9 o'clock, while the return trips will be made at the convenience of the patrons. The buses will journey to the carnival grounds by way of South Plainfield.

ACCUSED LIQUOR DEALERS WILL BE TRIED FRIDAY

Charged with alleged illegal liquor selling in this city, two weeks ago, Morris Latzko, of Somerset street, and James Smith, of South Second street, were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, and their case was postponed until Friday morning. The two defendants were arrested by Patrolman Martin Flatley and are alleged to have committed six different violations of the city's excise ordinances.

This is the second time the case has been subjected to a postponement, the one this morning being due to the absence from the city of the accused parties' counsel.

TAKEN ILL ON STREET.

Richard VanDorn, a reporter on one of the New York newspapers, was overtaken by a fainting spell on the local streets, yesterday afternoon, and taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. Owing to Mr. VanDorn's advanced age, he was still in somewhat of a weakened condition this morning, but will be able to return to his home on Hanover street, Brooklyn, this afternoon.

ANNUAL EXHIBIT A UNIQUE EVENT

GREATEST EVER GIVEN

Juvenile Recreation Seekers From the Four Quarters of the City Take Part In Yearly Function Held at Parker Field.

Nearly one thousand children, ranging in age from five to sixteen years and representative of nearly every nation and race known to mankind, were participants in a monster demonstration on Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, the affair being a grand finale to a banner season of playground work in this city. The program given by the youngsters was typical of the work they have been doing as beneficiaries of the public recreation movement in Plainfield all summer and the various exhibits were selected from the daily routine of work in each of the four playgrounds.

Inasmuch as the four schoolyards equipped with recreational apparatus are in the four quarters of the city, boys and girls were brought together from all parts and many parents took advantage of the opportunity to see just what their youngsters have been accomplishing during the past summer. The program for the most part was of a practical nature and the various events were all taught for a specific purpose. The demonstration was by the part the most replete given here since the playgrounds first came into prominence four years ago and the entire plan was carried through without a hitch. The accomplishments of the youngsters reflects with credit on their various supervisors all having taken a prominent part in making the exhibition what it was. Drills and rehearsals were necessary for the big event and weeks of toil have been spent by the instructors in getting the youthful performers into presentable trim.

Special trolley cars brought the children to the field on Randolph road and at times parents and grown friends of the juvenile participants appeared to be as numerous as the children themselves. The playground commission, as a unit, appeared on the field as master of ceremonies and after the event expressed themselves as being well pleased with the excellent program.

In the cosmopolitan group that furnished the entertainment were Americans, Hebrews, Colored, Swedish, Italian, German, Slavish and Polish children, all taking part in the same big fete. The remarkable manner in which the instructors have dealt with so varied a collection of charges was the subject of much worthy comment and the young women were showered with congratulations upon their achievements during the afternoon. Those present came from the centers located in the Franklin, Bryant, Irving and St. Mary's playgrounds. The teachers in charge were Miss Harriet Moe, of the Bryant; Miss Ruth Wean, of the Irving; Mrs. Nischwitz and Miss Mildred Brownlee, of the Franklin; and Miss Helen George, of the St. Mary's school yard.

So thoroughly pleasing was the work of each group of children that it would be utterly impossible to single out one centre that shone above the rest. Obedience appeared to be the keynote of the exhibition and each command was headed with speed and smoothness.

The program included the following numbers.

Hungarian folk dance (four school playgrounds), interplayground relay race, ring games (drop the handkerchief, farmer in the dell, the squirrel), folk dances for the smaller children (carrousel, I see you), obstacle race (Parker Field boys), Parker Field Junior League relay race, Norwegian mountain dance (four school playgrounds), girls potato race, active games (dodge ball, cat and mouse), May pole dance (four school playgrounds).

The results of the events were as follows:

NO LICENSE BUT IS LET GO.

George Sachs, of Harrison avenue, was arraigned this morning, in the borough court, charged with driving an automobile without the necessary license. Sentence was suspended in this case.

RENT ROOMS TO RELIEVE SOUTH PLAINFIELD SCHOOLS

The Piscataway township School Board has rented the rooms of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company, as temporary accommodations for the increased number of school children in South Plainfield. The School Board has advertised a meeting to appropriate money for the erection of a four-room addition to the present building on Lehigh avenue. This proposition was strenuously objected to by the South Plainfield people on the grounds that it would not provide sufficient accommodations to take care of the future growth of the town.

The South Plainfield Board of Trade has passed a resolution disapproving the building of an addition to the present school, and has submitted two sites to the School Board on which to erect a four-room building with provisions to add increased room as needed. It is expeted that the School Board will call a meeting in the near future to act on the proposition.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

With an abundance of joy the "Social Maids' Burlesquers," Joe Hurtig's extravaganza company will bring mirth and merriment to the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre, Wednesday, matinee and night. These merrymakers do not require any special introduction, their antics and eccentricities are too well known in keeping with the general elaborate make-up of Joe Hurtig's attractions. The scenic splendor is second to none, while the magnificence and the dazzle of the exceptionally extravagant quantity of classic gowns is beyond description. Of course, while special attention has been paid to every detail in making the production an achievement of unusual merit, most of all the energy has been displayed in the comedy direction with results, that this offering will outclass a great many of the similar kind.

The whole world loves to laugh, yet once in a while you will find a human being who has apparently promised his mother he wouldn't indulge in that form of healthful exercise, but if one of them went to see "Stop Thief" he would of a surety break his pledge, for nothing but a wooden Indian could withstand the risible inclinations that come from viewing this funny play. The audiences that assemble to see the new Carlyle Moore piece begin to laugh three minutes after the curtain goes up on the first act and from then on the house is in a veritable laughing panic. They laugh at the ridiculous situations in the piece, and then laugh louder at the antics of their seatmates who fairly rock the house in their paroxysms of pure delight as the crook continues to outwit every effort of the bluecoated policemen who try in vain to trap him.

If you are a grouch go and see "Stop Thief." It will cure you. On the other hand, if you are good natured, an evening spent with this prince of pilferers will be an event that you will recall with a grin for many days after.

The original Gaiety Theatre, N. Y. scenic production will be used here, also those well-known artists, Bert Leigh and Hazele Burgess in the roles of the Thief and his pal. The show appears at the Plainfield Theatre Thursday night.

All remember that "Mutt and Jeff" succeeded in properly opening the new canal at "Panama" last season. None too soon, however, as their services have been enlisted to aid in settling the Mexican controversy. Mediation is what the President desired. While our eccentric friends are not quite clear in their minds as to just what it is; "Jeff" kindly offers to cook it if "Mutt" will get some. "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" is the vehicle the current season. The first act is laid on the American battleship "Psychology," and the final act is at Vera Cruz, during the fall of the famous old fort. It is one round of hilarious laughter, tempered with an unusually pretty bunch of choristers who can both sing and dance. The plot tinges a little of the melo-drama, with enough love interest to be pretty without being "mush."

"Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" will be at the Plainfield Theatre next Friday night and matinee. It is the one musical comedy that weathered all theatrical storms. It's a play for the entire family, without a line or a situation that will bring the blush to the cheeks of young or old. Secure seats early and thereby get the best.

CROWD AT CHALK TALK.

Several hundred people gathered at the corner of Church and Front streets, yesterday afternoon, when the second of the series of the open-air meetings was held under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Robert E. Y. Pierce gave an interesting chalk talk and the singing was accompanied by the Dutch Arms Band.

MIDWEEK CONCERTS.

Midweek concerts are to be in vogue hereafter at the Kandy Shope, starting Wednesday evening of this week, The Colonial Quartet, which has been furnishing the music Saturday evenings up to this time, will furnish the semi-weekly programs of classical and popular selections.

GREAT CHANGES IN FAR EAST

cessful attack made on one of the large steamers which resulted in loss of life although the piratical raid failed. Now the steamers are fitted with several grated partitions surrounding like cages the quarters wherein the officers and engineers operated. Outside of these trusted Indian soldiers with loaded rifles keep constant guard, night and day, over the lives of the officers and the safety of the passengers. It seems rather grim on a pleasure trip to see these warlike preparations but it is necessary for since we were at Canton a steamer has been fired on five or six times. Canton is noted for being a hotbed of disturbance.

This year the railroad has been extended to Canton from Hong Kong and in time will run to Hankow, from which point Pekin can now be reached by the Kiuhan Railroad. The Y. M. C. A. is doing much for China. Large buildings are in evidence at Hong Kong, Shanghai, Pekin and Mukden and also at Seoul in Korea. Many of the natives are making use of the educational facilities afforded and in time the usefulness of this excellent institution will be widely felt.

But to resume our narrative. We arrived in Shanghai on a piping hot July morning and finding that the weekly train-de-luxe would start for Peking via. Nanking, Fukow and Tien-Tsin, we engaged a compartment thereon and at the oppointed hour were off on a one thousand mile railroad ride to the ancient Manhcu capital, the city of Pekin. An automobile ride before leaving enabled us to see in part the progress that the foreign quarter of Shanghai had made since our last visit and also allowed us to peep into the Astor House for a cool lemonade and put such letters into the United States mail box with 2 cent U. S. stamps on as were ready for mailing.

Uncle Sam has for a quarter of a century conducted a postoffice here but he will soon have to go as well as the other foreign powers, for the Republic of China is soon to enter the Postal Union. Then foreign post offices within her bordens will be porhibited.

Promptly at 1:05 in the afternoon, when it was just after midnight in Plainfield and we were upside down as compared with your city readers, we started on the Shanghai-Nanking section of the line. Mrs. Ackerman and I had a large compartment the size of a drawing-room on a Pullman sleeper through the middle of which ran a collapsible table on which meals could be served. An electric fan produced a pleasant breeze and "tiffin" or lunch was announced as ready. It was as enjoyable a meal as unexpected. Everything was daintily served and the hot dishes seemed to have been supervised by a French chef. Dinner was likewise a treat. Many of our railroads in the United States on which I have ridden could profitably take a lesson from the dining car service on this route.

At Nanking you cross by ferryboat the Yang-tse-Kiang, that mighty river which safely provides sufficient water for vessels of five thousand tons capacity as far as Hankow. On the opposite side is Pukow where the train journey is once more resumed and for twenty-six hours you are traversing some of the richest provinces of China, dotted with villages and covered with farms, growing corn and rice and beans and looking like the farms of Illinois, Iowa or Kansas in a prosperous year. At Tien-Tsin we sleep in the car for the night and in the early morning resume the journey to Peking, the eighty-seven miles being covered in less than three hours. We leave the train at the Chien-Meu station and passing through the walls of the Tartar city at the Water Gate we are in two minutes at the Wagon-Lits Hotel in Legation street. At the left is the German Compound. In front the Stars and Stripes float proudly from a tall pole while the Marconi wires are much in evidence connecting as they do with the flotilla of torpedo boats at Tien-Tsin. To the right is the British Legation Compound, comprising twenty acres or more and which was used as an aslyum for the beleagured foreigners during the disquieting times of the Boxer troubles in 1900. Adjoining the British Compound is the Russian Legation and across the street the Japanese, French Italian and Dutch Legations have commodious quarters for their representatives. The sentries of the respective nations ceaselessly guard the lives of the foreigners and upon the great wall Uncle Sam's soldiers keep lookout over the Tartar city for the first signs of anything that look like anti-foreign demonstrations.

Since the Boxer trouble affairs in Pekin have vastly improved. Streets have been widened, a police force has been inaugurated, a new water system provided and streets are sprinkled and electric lights installed all over the Tartar Chinese imperial cities.

The money used in China is quite varied. The government issues its own notes through the Bank of Communications while the British banks and the International Banking Corporation of New York do likewise. The denominations are dollars and cents but the dollar is a silver one and worth at the present time about forty-three cents in gold. But that is not all. The silver dollar of China circulates on a parity with Mexican dollar and the British and American trade dollar, although the latter is seldom seen. These dollars are known as "big money" and are composed supposedly of one hundred cents or are worth that much. Such is not the case. They are worth more and if you go to a money changer's with a "big" dollar he will give you silver 10 and 20 cent Chinese coins aggregating in value 115 cents, of if you will take copper instead of silver you can have 125 one cent pieces in exchange for the "big" one. Don't think, however, that you can take your small money to the general stores and thus make from 15 to 25 per cent. on your original exchange. While prices are normally in dollars should you offer ten dimes for an article priced one dollar they would not be accepted for the seller would then say the price was a "big money" one and not a "small money" quotation. Of course, you can pay for articles priced less than $1.00 in the expressed amount of small money and it is quite useful for feeing and for paying the jinricksha boys, and if you hand out a "big" dollar in a store for a purchase less than that amount you will only receive the difference between the amount of your purchase and the dollar tendered based on 100 cents being contained therein.

Then a note of the banks dated Peking is at a discount at Shanghai or Canton. Tien-Tsin notes will pass at par in the capital for Tien-Tsin is only eighty-seven miles away but Honau notes will not, and it is a wise individual who can keep his loose bank roll on a parity basis when moving from one zone to another. In Manchuria the Japanese have such a hold that while it is territorially China yet most transactions are in "Yen" which is "Dai Nippon's" or Japan's unit of value.

MRS. HELEN HOY GREELEY SPEAKS AT SUFFRAGE MEETING

A meeting under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield was held at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, on Saturday night.

A large audience heard Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, of New York, give an outline of the case for woman suffrage. She begged her audience in considering this question to divest themselves of all prejudice, and to see what the possession of the vote really meant, and what its effect had been in the States where for over twenty years women had enjoyed full powers of suffrage.

She reminded her audience that the question of woman suffrage was to be submitted to the voters in many States this fall, an in 1915 New Jersey men would have a chance to prove their intelligence and chivalry in restoring the vote to New Jersey women, who for over one hundred years have been arbitrarily and illegally deprived of their right.

Mrs. Greeley said that women were now voting in ten States, an area three times larger than the thirteen original States of the Republic. Much beneficial legislation along the lines of public hygiene and of better conditions for women and children had resulted from the woman's vote in these States.

She strongly emphasized the point that woman's place is in the home, but that since government has invaded the home, woman must be enabled to meet the invader and to see that the conditions in the home, created by government, are good conditions. She compared the position of woman today with her status seventy-five years ago and said that her vastly better conditions had been brought about by the women who first had the courage to claim for women the right to be considered as human beings, and not merely as chattels. At the close of the speech questions were answered and sympathizers slips were signed. Mrs. Greeley is a New York lawyer.

CHAPTER XII.

Trapping and Woodcraft.

MARKS in snow tell the trapper that an animal has passed, but his knowledge, gained from experience, allows him a more complete understanding, and by it he can interpret the disturbances all along the trail.

By observing the lay of the land the experienced trapper who comes upon undergrowth and ferns understands why the path is zigzagged.

He is able to tell what kind of an animal is ahead of him by the size of the tracks and by the distance between the steps.

By studying the shrubbery the trapper can determine what the animal has eaten, and if he knows what the various animals feed upon it will be easy for him to tell just what sort of creature has preceded him without seeing it at all.

There is always some sign along the trail, and the experienced man can never go wrong. Marks of antlers on the bark of trees point out the direction a deer or moose has taken.

The man who knows the woods is always at home in the forest. He always knows north from south without the aid of a compass. He is sure of himself in regard to direction, knowing that moss always grows on the north side of trees.

The woodsman also knows what the situation of the sun means. If he is forced to travel any distance on rainy days the moss acts as his compass. The moss was the only compass I had during my sixty mile tramp through the wilderness to Canada.

If a man is traveling through the forest a number of miles to a certain point and he is acquainted with the woods and wild life he does not always travel in a perfectly straight line. He allows himself to drift along the trails of least resistance, keeping in his mind all the while the point of the compass he is headed for.

For instance, if he strikes a trail that bears to the northeast and his destination is directly north he can follow this trail to the northeast for miles, which goes partly in the direction he is aiming for. Doing this, he is always on the lookout for the next trail along the line of least resistance bearing straight north or even northwest. If it is a northwest trail that turns up he knows by following it along for some distance that he has brought himself back to his course or even crossed it to the westward of north. Consequently he knows that north is still to the east of him. Of course under such circumstances he watches for trails as he walks along which lead to the east or north of the trail that he is following.

Thus by zigzagging through the forest on the natural trails of the least resistance he finally reaches the point he started for.

In a country with which a man is fairly well acquainted there is no difficulty in finding water at any time.

Even at the time you need water you are unconsciously walking along a natural game trail that leads to water. It isn't necessary to go in a straight course over the tops and underbrush and through the tangles to find water.

Simply follow the natural game trails in the forest, from the smaller to the larger ones, and such a course will always lead you to water or a camp.

Perhaps the questions may arise: Why do these big trails lead you to water? And why do the trails get bigger? Because these trails always lead to something, and the constant frequenting of them by animals makes them bigger. They lead the animals to something, or there wouldn't be any big trail there.

Anything that is good for the animal is good for the human being. In a word, all a man has got to do in the wilderness is to live in perfect harmony with his surroundings. He hasn't got to resist anything.

It isn't necessary to walk into a stream and wade up against the current. Build a crude craft and float downstream with the current. You will get a whole lot more out of it.

In building a fire always kindle it to the lee of your lean-to, so that the smoke of the fire won't pour into your camp and smother you.

I would pick the site of a camp in the open, under the shelter of spruce or cedar, or some other black growth timber. This is perfect shelter, for all the dew or frost that would fall during the night would land on the limbs of trees.

On the spills under the trees it is always dry, no matter how damp or frosty it may be outside. This black growth timber protects the ground beneath it from frost, fog, and dampness which come from the atmosphere. The black timber absorbs all this as nourishment for itself. This explains why under black growth timber there is never any sign of vegetation and spills that have fallen the year before.

There is not a thing in the forest, dead or alive, but what is of some use. Even the dead leaves are invaluable. They can be used to kindle fires and also to make a fine top covering for a forest bed.

The trapping season in the woods starts early in the fall when fur is getting good and prime. The trappers have what they call trapping lines, a territory extending for miles through the country. This trapping line section is "baited up"—that is to say, food liked by the animals is scattered about through the district in order to get the fox, mink, otter, sable, bear, muskrat and beaver coming there.

Then the setting of the traps begins. The trapper does not work according to the eight hour day schedule. Sometimes he is up and away at 4 o'clock in the morning and continues working until after dark at night.

After the catch the skins are fleshed and stretched and dried in camp. Without tanning they are sent direct to market.

Any one who devotes his whole time to trapping and understands his business can make as much as $3,000 a year. A five dollar license at present allows any resident of the state of Maine to catch all fur bearing animals in any place in the state during the respective open seasons.

As to the various modes of trapping, I will start with the bear. The most modern and up to date way to catch a bear is to use a steel Newhouse trap. The Newhouse trap weighs about twenty pounds and has two heavy steel springs which control two heavy steel toothed jaws. Attached to this is a chain about four feet long with a ring on the end. This ring is to fit over a piece of timber ten feet long and four inches in diameter which is called a clog.

This clog is used so that when the steel jaws close on the bear's leg he will drag it along. As long as he can make headway he will keep going, but if he finds himself fast he will "leg himself," or, in other words, gnaw off his own foot and make his escape. If a bear starts the trap and finds that he can make progress he will work all kinds of ways to clear himself from any tangle he gets into. But you will always find him in a Newhouse trap.

In trapping a bear in this manner bait is necessary. Anything in the way of fish or fresh or stale meat is good, but best of all is the carcass of another bear.

Another way to trap a bear is through the use of a deadfall. The deadfall is built of logs. First place a bed log so that it lies about one and one-half feet above the ground. Next drive four long, heavy sticks into the ground, two on each side of the bed log and about eight feet apart.

In the slots between these sticks another log, called the drop log, is placed upon the bed log. At one end it is raised up and supported by a prop, which is known as a figure 4.

Then this top log is loaded with four or five other logs, these logs fitting into the slots made by the extending sticks. Among trappers these logs are known as the load.

The bait for this trap is placed on the back of the deadfall and is protected by brush and sticks in such a way that it can only be reached from the front of the deadfall. The bait is likewise put at such a distance that the bear will have to step over the logs before he can reach it.

When he pulls the bait the trap is sprung, and the drop log falls and crushes the animal between the logs.

An older method, and one used by the Indian squaws to trap grizzly bears in the west, is to dig a pit in the ground and build a deadfall of logs and stones above it. When the trap is sprung the bear is buried in the pit under the heavy load.

This kind of a pit and deadfall is similar to the one I used to trap my bear during my wilderness experiment. If I had had an ax I would have built a regular deadfall. As it was, I was forced to use what loose material I found about me. With this rough material I constructed a combination pit and deadfall which caught the bear alive.

The only difference between my trap and the one used by the squaws was that my trap did not crush the life out of the animal.

In a previous chapter I have explained one way of catching a partridge. Partridges may also be trapped in a snare, just as a rabbit is caught. The snare can be made out of many different materials that grow in the woods. Even grass and roots will make strong snares and the lining bark of the cedar.

In making a snare make a loop with a slip noose in it. Bend a little bush over the trail and fasten this bush in a notch made on another bush. Attach the loop to the bent bush and hang it just a little above the trail.

When a partridge or rabbit touches this snare in attempting to pass through he brings a strain on the bent bush, which is released with a swish, catching the quarry by the neck and dangling him over the trail.

It is a cowardly thing to snare a deer, but it can easily be done. A man who gets a deer in this way or in a bear trap is called a "pot hunter."

By making a snare out of rawhide and using a larger tree for a spring it is just as easy to hang a deer in the trail as it is a rabbit.

The trapping of mink is a different story. The trapper goes alongside of a stream and digs a hole in the bank. Into this hole he forces some stale fish or other bait. Then he places his steel trap, which is attached by a chain to a hitcher, at the mouth of this hole. The trap and hitcher are well covered up with dirt and leaves. The mink in trying to get at the bait in the hole steps on the hidden trap and is caught.

To catch these animals in the lake country set your trap in about two feet of water on a flat rock or a natural stepping place which the mink would use in coming from the water. The placing of the bait close by entices the animal, who, coming by way of your trap, falls a victim.

Beaver castor, the essence of the seven barks which the beaver eats, is very penetrating, and a little of this spread in the vicinity of the traps will attract the animals very quickly.

Catching the otter is somewhat more difficult. If he is going upstream he always goes through the biggest swell of water.

Otters breast themselves against the flow of water and push themselves over the falls with their hind feet until they reach another flow, and so on.

Their front feet, which they use very little, are so small that a trap would slip off one in a second. They must be caught by the powerful hind legs.

Place a trap below the flow in about eight inches of water and attach the chain of the trap to a hitcher which has been put out in deep water. For this particular hitcher a limb is chosen with its branches, which are trimmed down to about an inch in length, pointing downward. Thus the ring of the hitcher can go down over these small projections, but it cannot be pulled up.

When the otter starts to push himself over the flow he pushes his foot into the trap and immediately dives, pulling the ring down the stick. Then the sunken hitcher holds him under water, where he drowns.

In case the otter is coming down stream the trap is set just below the flow.

Not being in sympathy with the wholesale slaughter of animals through our system of hunting today, I will not dwell at length on that particular side of wood life. However, I wish to say just a word. Anything that the law allows a hunter to do is accepted by everybody to be fair.

For the mere payment of so much money to the state authorities hunters are allowed to go into the forest with rifles and rapid fire guns and kill a stipulated number of deer and moose. But they can't do this unless they pay so much money.

Such practices are not in accord with nature. They are not in harmony with the great out of door movement and are of no benefit to the people.

The killing of animals for the mere sport of it should be absolutely stopped. Let woodsmen and campers kill game only when they are forced to do so out of necessity.

There should never be a law prohibiting the killing of animals for use in case of necessity.

The animal has not got a square deal when he is pitting his craft against that of the hunter with a gun. The gun should only be used when meat or skin is necessary. Under such conditions its use is perfectly fair.

So called sport as it exists today is nothing more than the instinct in man to kill inferior animals. What pleasure is there in putting a bullet through a running deer? Why does a man kill a deer?

After all my life in the forest I have not got a single animal head or anything like that in my home. I would rather know that the animals were roaming free in their natural haunts.

Instead I have some photographs of the inhabitants of the wilderness which I prize more highly than any trophy obtained by trap, snare or rifle. These photographs were taken down streams in the darkness of the night, under the jacklight, in the deep snows in winter, where the animals live in yards, and along the trails in the open places.

While I have killed much game for various reasons, I have passed hundreds of wild animals by when I could easily have slaughtered them.

Friends with me have said, "Why didn't you take a shot at that fellow?" I would reply to them by saying, "I would rather see a wild animal running than falling."

That trip of mine into the wilderness means that I was literally born again. The day I came forth from the woods was the beginning of a new life for me.

During my life in the world of civilization I had never really given the time to think about things. I never really stopped to consider all the great advantages of nature. I never reviewed in my mind the various experiences I had had in previous years in the woods. I did not stop to consider the many interesting things that I knew about animals, trapping, hunting and woodcraft.

These two months in the forest I sat time and time again in front of my campfire and really thought for the first time in my life. It seemed as if every experience I ever had came back to me in the most minute detail. This made my brain worth something to me. In a word, my two months in the woods have been a wonderful education. The experiment made me find myself. It gave me perfect health. It demonstrated to me that there were thousands of things in our present so called civilized life that are unnecessary, in fact foolish, ridiculous, wasteful practices that stand in reality for nothing.

It established for me the realization that people are slaves to luxury, and that luxury is making great inroads on the mind and health.

My friends know that the notoriety, which perhaps has come as a result of this experiment, means nothing to me. I have always aspired to do my part in the world, if I could but make a start. For every man it is a hard thing to start. I made up my mind one day that I would get such a start. Then the idea of this trip came to me just as I have previously described it.

I am glad that the idea stuck with me, and I am glad that I gave the time to think it out. The thought that perhaps I was doing something was an incentive, although many times in the forest I wondered just what the people on the outside were saying about the experiment.

Perhaps the experiment will demonstrate to the man who is lost in the woods that all is not lost. Perhaps the thought that I existed for two months without the slightest aid may help a man under such circumstances. I sincerely hope so.

The one thing that stands out more strongly than the rest, perhaps, is the health side of the question. I mention this about myself just as I would tell the story about any man because I believe the comparative values to be of vital interest.

On July 30, just before I left for the northern Maine country, I was examined by Dr. Dudley Allen Sargent, physical director of Harvard university.

At that time Dr. Sargent made the following statement:

"I have made a thorough physical examination of Joseph Knowles of Boston, and from the results I am certain that if it is possible for any human being to accomplish the experiment, Knowles can do it.

"His attempt to live like a primeval man will have a scientific value. It will also have a practical value, depending in extent on what he actually accomplishes in the woods.

"I believe it is possible for man to revive many things which he has lost during the progress of civilization. There is no question that in our advancement from primeval life we have dropped through disuse a great deal of natural knowledge; our artificial life has robbed us of some of our greatest powers and has stunted others.

"The 'getting back to nature movement,' which I have consistently indorsed and which is now gaining ground everywhere, is turning the tide backward. Out of door life is today being demonstrated as the ideal and natural life for human beings.

"The attempt of Knowles to live entirely cut off from civilization is a further move in the right direction, and it reaches the fundamentals. Few men dare attempt such a sweeping change of living, and few men are equipped physically to accomplish the result. Still fewer men have the previous knowledge of the woods which is necessary.

"However, the object lesson of any man's success in living independently in the woods for months would be of great value to people who enter forests. A lost man should be self sustaining. He should know how. To know that it had been done would give him assurance, and any actual experience under these circumstances should furnish him with methods.

"We will be interested to know how the lack of salt will affect Knowles and to find the effect of a sudden change of diet from city fare to wild things. We want to know how his wild life will affect his physical condition, his weight and his measurements. How greatly the cold will affect his comfort after he becomes inured is also interesting to science.

"When Knowles returns to Boston after his two months in the woods I will again make a complete examination and by comparison with his condition when he entered will be able, I think, to say what effect his experiment has had.

"When I examined him he showed considerable fat, which will aid him in resisting the cold. He had a remarkable vitality and much reserve energy and was altogether fit for the experiment.

"I fully believe that, with his previous experience to aid him, he should be able to accomplish his experiment."

Some Cookery Suggestions

FRUIT JELLIES.

JELLIES are made of equal parts of clear fruit, juice and sugar. Some thrifty housewives put the juice away in airtight jars and make the jelly as it is needed. In this way they avoid becoming overstocked, the extra juice being then used for some other purpose than for jelly.

Plum Jelly.—Put plums into the preserving kettle with water to cover. Heat slowly and simmer until the plums will mash readily; then turn into a flannel jelly bag and let drip until the pulp is dry. Boil juice twenty minutes and skim. Remove from fire, measure and return to fire. As soon as it boils again add as many bowls of sugar as you have of juice and boil fifteen to twenty minutes. Pour in glasses.

Dainty Apple Jellies.

Crabapple Jelly.—Take ripe crabapples, quarter and core and heat slowly in a preserving kettle. Unless they are juicy add enough water to protect them from scorching and cook at a gentle simmer until the apples are broken to pieces. Put the pulp into a flannel bag and let it drip. If you squeeze the pulp the juice is likely to be cloudy. Measure your juice and to each pint of it allow a pound of granulated sugar. Put the juice on the fire in a clean kettle, cook it for twenty minutes after it comes to a boil, skim carefully and add the sugar. Let the jelly return to the boil and cook for one minute and take from the fire. Have your glasses ready and fill immediately, but do not close or attempt to cover with paraffin until the jelly is cold.

Apple Jelly.—Select hard, juicy, underripe apples. Make the jelly after directions for crabapple jelly, only to every pint of juice after it is strained add the strained juice of one small lemon.

Heat Sugar Before Using.

Blueberry Jelly.—Pick over berries, wash and put on to cook with one and one-half cupfuls water to each quart of berries. Cook thoroughly and strain through jelly bag. Measure juice and to each cup of juice take three-quarters cupful sugar and boil thirty minutes or until it will jell on the edge of a dish. Heat the sugar in the oven before putting into the juice.

Rhubarb Jelly.—Rhubarb is not made into jelly as often as should be done. Rhubarb makes a delicate pink fine flavored jelly. Cut one large bunch into fine pieces without peeling, add a large chopped apple, peel and seeds included. Cover with hot water and cook until done. Mash fine and strain through jelly bag. To every cupful of juice add one cupful of hot granulated sugar. Boil juice until it begins to jell, or about twenty-five minutes. Turn into scalded jelly glasses and seal with paraffin.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Big Elm That Grew And Grew.

Oh, the Fun They Used to Have.

"I WONDER if the little elm out in front of our house will ever grow to be very big, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Oh, yes!" replied daddy. "When you and Jack have grown to be a nice old lady and a gray whiskered old gentleman you will see it considerably larger than it is now. But I doubt if it ever grows to be as large as was the famous old elm at Lancaster, Mass."

"Why, how large was that, daddy?" asked Jack.

"Well," answered daddy, "it was larger than any elm you children have ever seen. Few elms have ever grown to be nearly so large. It grew in a pretty pasture near the little Nashua river, in one of the loveliest towns in New England. There were a great many other elms around it, all of good size, but it was so much larger and taller than they that they looked like dwarfs, all looking up at a great big giant.

"People used to come for miles around to see it, and magazines and newspapers used to print pictures of it, so that people from all over the country heard about it, and when they chanced to be traveling near the pasture where it grew they would stop off and see it. It was as famous in its way as the big trees of California that your teacher has read to you about.

"It used to be very popular with the school children of that lovely old town. They used to have picnics under it on Saturdays and games. Oh, the fun they used to have! So widespreading were its branches that it cast a shade away, away over the pasture, and its trunk was so big that I can't tell you how many children could join hands and dance around it."

"Did they used to climb it, daddy?" asked Jack eagerly.

Daddy laughed. "Why, Jack, it would have taken the longest legged and longest armed giant you ever heard or read of to have climbed that tree, because, don't you see, you have to twine yourself around a trunk to climb, and this trunk was so awfully big, and the great long roots ran out into the pasture as if they would never, never end. It was an old, old tree, as wise men discovered when they studied it. It was a good sized tree away back in the days when the Indians were the only people in this country, and where it stood was all forest instead of pasture land. This town of Lancaster, children, was one of the first to be settled by white men in this country."

"What became of the tree, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"There was an awful storm a few years ago, and the tree was very old, so it broke under the wind, and they had to saw it down and chop it up for firewood and lumber. Many people in the country have pieces of it for mementos."

LOOK FOR ARMY-WORM MOTHS WITH ONE COLORED WING

Washington, Aug. 24.—Everyone interested in the destruction of the army-worm pest is being requested by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to look out for army-worm moths with one artificially-colored wing. The Department's entomologists are catching army-worm moths where they are plentiful, coloring one wing of each, and then liberating them in the same territory, so that they may determine whether these moths fly directly west, or north, and how quickly and far they will spread. A better knowledge of the habits of this pest should enable the Department to control its spread. No moths are to be let loose where their liberation could possibly add to the natural damage.

The moths are already showing themselves in Virginia and Maryland, and the Department's agents are catching specimens at Portsmouth and Charlottesville in Virginia, and Hagerstown in Maryland. The agents at Portsmouth are applying a red stain to one wing of each specimen caught; those at Charlottesville a black or yellow stain; and those at Hagerstown, a violet color. Then the moths are left to follow the natural course they would have pursued.

"Look for the army-moth with a colored wing during the coming month," the Department's Bureau of Entomology is advising its agents west of the Mississippi. Any one observing a marked specimen will aid in the campaign by reporting the fact to the Bureau of Entomology, Washington, D. C. When its presence has been noted, the moth should be destroyed.

The wings of the army-moth, when outspread, measure about 1½ inches from tip to tip. The body is about half this length. The general shape of the moth with its wings outspread is triangular. The moths will hover about the lights in the evening. On farms, they will be found on the outside of screens and doors at night. They will probably not be observed in the daytime. On dark, hot, close nights, such as precede thunder storms, they will probably be especially noticeable.

The army-worm pest has caused considerable damage to the crops and lawns this summer throughout the northern United States east of the Mississippi. The worms are only now disappearing in northern Maine and Michigan, which were probably hatched from the eggs of moths migrating from more southern portions of the country. With the additional knowledge that this experiment will give, the Department hopes to control the spread of the pest more completely in coming years.

HAD FISTIC BATTLE.

After being ejected from a local saloon here Saturday night, George Gilbert and Joseph Grant, colored, engaged in a fistic encounter on the city's main thoroughfare and were locked up in police headquarters. Arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning, the men entered a plea of not guilty, claiming that they did not remember what happened, and a hearing was set for Wednesday morning.

RAISE VALUATION BY $2,861,560

Tax Rate Will Probably Be No Higher Than Last Year's $1.87.

BIG RAISE IN 2ND WARD

Personal Valuations Are Lowered In All Wards But Second—Increase Coming From Land and Building Tax.

Plainfield's tax rate this year will not go to $2.12, as has been predicted. From unofficial figures thus far received by the county board, it is highly probable that it will be no greater than that of last year $1.87. The valuations for the city have been made public at Elizabeth at the office of the County Tax Board, and they reach $30,682,635, as against $27,821,075 last year, an increase of $2,861,560, which explains why it will not be necessary to increase the rate although the city expenses have gone up.

The net valuations taxable in Union county, according to figures furnished by the district assessors and prepared by the County Board, exclusive of Union and Springfield, two comparatively small taxing districts which have not yet been received, total $142,518,850, a substantial increase over those of last year. While it is impossible to figure the county rate without the missing districts, it is probable from the figures already in hand that it will be 38 cents on the 100, as against a little over 34 cents last year. The state school tax will probably be 27 cents, and there is a bank tax due under the new bank tax law which totals $14,703.50, which will be divided equally between the municipalities and the county. This will, of course, somewhat reduce the amounts to be raised by local taxation. In Plainfield the bank tax amounts to $8,822, of which the city receives $4,411.

The valuations in nearby places are as follows: Westfield $9,788,330; Fanwood borough, $625,785 and Fanwood township $1,699,660.

In Plainfield the greatest increase in valuations over those of last year has come in the Second ward, the amount being $1,118,185, divided as follows:

Land,	$3,807,100	$2,993,350
Buildings,	4,756,310	4,582,500
Personal,	1,287,025	1,156,400
Totals,	$9,850,435	$8,732,250
Net In'se,	1,118,185

In the First, Third and Fourth wards the land and building valuations have been increased, while the personal taxes show a loss in all three

ATTENDS SON'S FUNERAL.

Richard E. Davis, of this city, is today attending the funeral of his son, Harry Davis, of 141 West Sixth street, New York, who died after an attack of acute indigestion. The young man, who was twenty-two years of age, leaves no immediate relatives aside from his father.

RUNYON CONSENTS TO RUN FOR ASSEMBLY

But Says That If It Had Been Left to Personal Desires, He Would Not.

At the earnest solicitation of a number of friends and leaders in the Republican party throughout the county, former City Judge William N. Runyon has consented to run for the Assembly nomination at the Republican primaries. He has been very reluctant to accept the opportunity, but has finally consented after continued requests to do so. Judge Runyon is an experienced campaigner, and that he will be one of the three nominated seems to be the general impression. Five men are seeking the nomination in the party, three of whom are from Elizabeth. It is the intention of the leaders in the party to urge all the voters to vote for the two men who are seeking the place outside of the county seat, so that all sections of the county may be represented in case the Republican ticket is successful at the fall election.

Judge Runyon's statement issued today is as follows:

"After much careful deliberation, and at the earnest and cordial solicitation of a goodly number of citizens, I am today announcing my candidacy for the Republican nomination as one of the members of the General Assembly from Union county.

"In making this announcement, however, I trust it will not be amiss for me to say that if I had consulted my personal desires only, I should not this year be a candidate for any office, and that my present course is prompted solely by the thought, which has been urged upon me, that I may be able to render some genuine service to the State.

"In the event of my nomination and election I promise the people the best that I have to offer in their behalf. In case of my defeat, either in the primary or general election, I promise a ready and cheerful acquiescence in the will of the majority."

JUST OUT OF PRISON, HE IS ARRESTED HERE

Although he has just been released from State Prison, where he served two years for stabbing a fellow countryman, Andrew Strussco was arrested with his brother-in-law, John Harlick, in the East End section of the city Sunday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. The two men were brought to police headquarters by Patrolman McCarthy who found them battling in the center of a throng of 200 Italians.

Both admitted their guilt and said that they were intoxicated. Arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, they were sentenced to pay fines of $5 each or go to the county jail for twenty days.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR A LOCAL CHINAMAN

Laundryman Given His Choice of Spending Forty Days In Jail Or Paying $10 Fine.

Although prisoners of the "57" varieties are brought before Judge DeMeza in the city police court, seldom does a Chinaman make his appearance before the bar of justice as an accused individual. One of the rarest charges aired in several years resulted in the committment of a local Chinaman to the county jail for a period of forty days this morning after he had been arraigned on a charge preferred against him by a white woman.

Jimmy Lee, a laundryman with a place of business on Park avenue, was given his choice of paying a $10 fine or spending forty days behind the bars. He chose the latter this morning but it is understood that fellow countrymen of this city are making arrangements to secure his freedom by the payment of the fine.

Lee has given the local police considerable trouble by annoying patrons of his laundry and it was with a view to putting a stop to his lawlessness that he was given the sentence this morning.

BANKRUPT FIRM GET STAY IN ADJUDICATION

Following the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, the Service Motor Car Company has obtained an order from Judge Haight, of the United States District Court, putting off the adjudication in bankruptcy until September 14. The concern intends to take steps to make a compromise settlement with its creditors. The business of the concern is now being conducted by Edwin F. Miller, of Duncllen, the receiver.

The Service Motor Car Company places its liabilities at $46,630, of which about $40,000 represents claims of unsecured creditors. Its assets include stock and machinery in Newark and at the company's plant in this city, valued at $25,000, together with outstanding accounts amounting to upward of $20,000.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD POSSE ABANDONS ITS SEARCH

Those who clung to a hope of finding the body of the woman whose head was disinterred by Chief Hamilton, Justice Kaine and Police Officer Guernsey, Saturday night, at South Plainfield, abandoned their search last night and the posse broke up. All are now satisfied to accept the coroner's version of the case.

It is the supposition that the woman's head came from an old Indian burying ground in that vicinity or a relic of the primitive methods of former dweilers. Those who have been interested in the rumor that a double tragedy was committed on the upper end of Park avenue, one night last week, are satisfied that the finding of the old skull has no bearing on the case.

"UNCLE DAVE" SMALLEY HAS A FINE NEW FUR COAT

David C. Smalley, of East Front street, has received a large number of Coon skins from his brother, A. I. Smalley, who lives in Florida. These skins to make it and the product is Smalley shot while on a trip last winter and are expensive as well as attractive. The local man has made good use of them and has had a large fur overcoat made out of some of his skins. It took thirty-six whole skins to make it and the praduct is really a beautiful piece of work. It was made by Charles Kurtzman, the East Front street furrier.

Mr. Smalley has more of the skins and intends to have a cap, a pair of gloves and a pair of overshoes made soon so that he will have a complete outfit. These things he is going to send away to Gloversville to have made. The skins are very attractive and have distinct and regular light and dark lines which adds more to their beauty. They were tanned in this city.

OPEN DISCUSSION ON CONSOLIDATION

Mayor Clark Today Sent Out Announcements to Borough Voters.

Announcements of the meeting on consolidation to be held at Debele's Hall, the borough, September 1, are being sent out today by Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., who has appointed a large committee of North Plainfield's representative citizens and voters to arrange the details of the meeting. Other meetings will, in all probability, be arranged in order that all voters may have sufficient opportunity to express their ideas upon the question.

It is the desire of those in charge to have it understood that those opposed to the movement will have ample time to give their views in the matter, and the meetings will be in no case closed to those who believe that consolidation would be an unwise step to take for the interests of the borough. All phases of the problem are to be discussed, and an endeavor will be made to answer in an intelligent way, any questions which may be asked by the voters, that they may have sufficient light upon the subject to vote intelligently at the special election, September 24. The full committee in charge of the meeting is to be announced shortly by Mayor Clark, as well as those who were approached to serve, and, for various reasons, could not accept the appointment. In making the appointments on the committee, Mayor Clark did not take into consideration whether the men were for or against consolidation, as he desired that both sides of the question be heard before the day of the special election.

FOWLER OUT WITH SNAPPY PLATFORM

Former Representative Tells Why He Seeks Re-election to Seat In Washington.

Former Congressman Charles N. Fowler made public today the platform upon which he seeks nomination for and election to Congress in the Fifth district on the Republican ticket. He favors immediate revision of the tariff, national incorporation of boards of trade in order to aid foreign commerce; an American merchant marine; a change in the banking and currency system and arbitration in labor disputes. The platform is not long, summing up his belief in the least number of words. Here is what he says:

"I am in favor of the immediate revision of the tariff for the purpose of bringing back prosperity to our stricken industries and of a tariff commission to guarantee the continuance of that prosperity when restored.

"I am in favor of the national incorporation of our boards of trade for the purpose of promoting our domestic industries and developing our foreign commerce; also of establishing in connection with these boards of trade an employment clearing house to secure an equilibrium of labor throughout the United States.

"I am in favor of an American merchant marine that will carry out every pound that we want to sell and bring back every pound that we want to buy. I want to see the Stars and Stripes floating over every ocean, across every sea and in every commercial harbor on this globe.

"I am in favor of a financial and banking system founded upon the eternal principles of banking economics and American experience; a system that will make New York instead of London the financial centre of the world.

"I am in favor of the application of the principle of arbitration in all labor disputes and ultimately the inauguration of the principle of co-operation so far as practical to the end that we may have perpetual industrial peace and permanent prosperity.

"America with all its advantages and privileges should be held in trust and be preserved for the benefit of the American people."

TOLD TO SEPARATE.

"That there woman is a disgrace to the letters that spell woman," said Henry Lewis in testifying against Sarah Scott, colored, before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning. "There's not a man's bone in Henry Lewis' body," retorted the woman. With instructions to keep away from Lewis in the future the woman was allowed to go on a suspended sentence after being arraigned on a disorderly charge.

PRELIMINARY PLANS FOR CAPSTICK ORGANIZATION

A number of the local supporters of John H. Capstick, of Morris county, candidate for the Republican nomination as Congressman, met last evening at the law offices of William Newcorn and discussed plans for the organization of a local club for the promotion of Mr. Capstick's campaign in this city. No definite action was taken, but an organization will be perfected at another gathering to be held Thursday, September 3. The meeting place is to be announced later.

LEAVES FOR ENGLAND TO BE READY FOR SERVICE

John H. Houghton, who for the past few months has been employed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at its local offices, will sail tomorrow for his home in Birmingham, Eng. Mr. Houghton has served in both the army and navy in that country and feels duty bound to return home in view of the internal troubles now brewing on the continent.

Mr. Houghton will join his wife and family in Birmingham. While in Plainfield he made a large number of acquaintances and his departure is a source of keen regret to many.

MEMORIAL FOR REV. W. E. L. WARD TO BE HELD SUNDAY

The warden and vestrymen of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, earnestly ask all the members of the congregation and friends of their late rector to attend a special memorial service for the Reverend Warner Esmond Lee Ward, at St. Stephen's church, Sunday, August 30, at 11 o'clock. It is hoped that the congregation will avail themselves of this opportunity of showing their love for the late rector and their sympathy for the family in their bereavement. Reverend Henry Mesler, of Kingston, N. Y., a long time friend of the late rector, will conduct the service and preach.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The German Embassy has given out the text of a wireless despatch received from Berlin, via. Sayville, announcing that the German army captured 10,000 prisoners and more than 150 guns from the French, and have dismembered the army of General Joffre, the French commander-in-Chief, so that it is no longer capable of action.

The Hague, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—The first Belgian casualty list published contains the names of 2,000 Belgian dead in the fighting against Germany and it is conservatively estimated here that the total Belgian dead number 16,000. The Belgian wounded, it is reported, number about 50,000. There are about 2,000 interned Belgians in Holland. A camp for them is being built at Ondenirdum in Friesland.

London, Aug. 25—The British loss in the fighting in southwestern Belgium is estimated at 2,000 by Field Marshal Sir John FFrench, commander of the British expeditionary force on the Continent. Announcement to this effect was made in the House of Commons, this afternoon, by Premier Asquith.

A late despatch from Ostend says that wounded are being brought in there. The Belgian Gendarmorie is putting up a stiff fight against the German cavalry.

London, Aug. 25. (Central News Cable)—Heavy cannonading is heard south of Mons, Belgium, near the French frontier, according to reports received here. It is believed that the Germans have already reached the intrenched line of the allies, and that the battle has been renewed, with the Kaiser's army shelling the French and British positions. No official news to that effect has been given out by the Government Press Bureau, however.

Despite the official announcement of the fall of the city of Namur, Belgium, it is thought that the forts there may still be holding out, and that the announcement refers only to the attack on the forts, as in the case of Liege.

A despatch to the Times from Ostend sent today says that 30,000 Germans are attacking Malines, a Belgian city 13 miles southeast of Antwerp. Skirmishing is general in Northern Flanders.

Reports reached here this morning stating that the condition of Emperor Francis Josef, of Austria-Hungaria, is much worse and that his death is only a question of hours.

A despatch from Rome says that the Italian Premier has assured a committee of deputies that no mobolizing is imminent in Italy, and that if it does take place later it will not mean any abandonment of Italian neutrality.

The English people were carried off their feet today by the news that Namur, in Belgium, a strongly fortified place, had fallen into the hands of the Germans. Voicing the general sentiment the Daily News says:

"What is so surprising is the absence of explanations of the fall of Namur after an attack which lasted only three days."

The Times, in its summary of the war situation as revealed by the latest news, says:

"There is as yet no explanation of its (Namur's) sudden fall. No doubt the Germans have attacked the Allies in this part of Belgium with all their available force.

"Namur is a strongly fortified city at the junction of the Meuse and Sembre and it was confidently expected to present a formidable obstacle to the German advance."

The news of the fall of the Belgium stronghold came early today in an official announcement given out by the official news bureau of the British War Office. Local military experts were astounded as it had been hoped that Namur would hold out as long as Liege and offer as much delay to the oncoming Germans. The latter, however, seem to have learned from their experiences at Liege just how to take a fortified place with better grace and in less time.

Turkey has promised the British government that they will permit the free passage through the Dardanelles of British grain steamers.

The Stock Exchange Committee today decided that the situations of clerks who have been mobolized for service be kept open until they return. The rules have been altered so as to allow vacancies to be filled temporarily. The committee has also superceded the rule forbidding members to take other occupations. This action has caused some depression and it is taken to indicate that the officials believe a long interval will elapse before the return of normal conditions.

Paris, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—The French war office has issued an official statement saying for some days the French army will remain on the defensive. It must be regretted that the plan of attack, owing to difficulties of execution which it was impossible to forsee, did not attain the object of shortening the war, but the defensive position is intact in the face of the enemy already weakened. At the moment chosen by the commander-in-chief the French will resume a vigorous offensive.

An Austrian Fleet has been assembled in the Fasana Canal at Pola, according to word brought by travellers from Trieste, who add that the Austrians are concentrating for the defense of the Adriat at Pola and Sevenico, the population of the latter place having been sent into the interior.

Count Von Schwerin, nephew of the German Emperor, has been taken prisoner by the French, according to a despatch to the Excelsior from Coustrai, West Flanders, Belgium. The Count was in command of a detachment of Uhlans who had penetrated to Harlebeke, West Flanders. Information of their presence was sent to the French and when a force of the latter's Chasseurs came up they killed one of the Germans, wounded five, and took all of the rest prisoners.

An extraordinary session of the French Council of war hastily summoned by President Poincare, was held today. Minister of war M. Messimy issued the following statement: "There is no doubt in the minds of the President and his ministers in our final success.' Every engagement in which the enemy suffers losses only weakens him the more. The Germans are far from their main base and were brought close to ours by falling back on French soil. We are content to remain on the defensive for the present, but our time is coming. Desperate fighting between the Germans and the allies is in progress at Oudenarde and Renaix. Twenty-five thousand Germans have been surrounded between Courtrai and Amseghen, six miles west of Ouddenarde.

The Russians have routed the German force which invaded the Czar's territory and was reported to have occupied Mlawa, a town of Russian Poland with over 13,000 population, according to an official announcement of the French War Office.

The Russians are now investing the town of Soldau, in East Prussia, considerably to the east of Willenberg, and 100 miles south and 12 miles east of Koenigsberg.

A large British fleet is near Ostend, a port of Belgium, and is prepared to go into action should the Germans occupy the place, according to reports here.

An extraordinary war council of the French Cabinet, begun at the Elysee last night, was still in session early today. President Poincare presided.

There is an unconfirmed report that serious charges have been brought against the commander of a French corps which participated in the campaign in Lorraine. Nothing is definitely known in regard to the

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Until Saturday evening I could not see how I might become eligible for those ten Woodrow Wilson dollars offered in the Daily Press Trade in Plainfield contest, as years of experience have taught me that it is an absolute fallacy to suppose that New York merchants who pay monstrous rents and whose overhead charges necessitate working on a basis of from 40 to 60 per cent. gross profits, can sell goods of equal quality one whit cheaper than a local merchant whose overhead charges are such as to enable the merchant to operate successfully on a basis of from 25 to 35 per cent. gross profit.

Some sad experiences taught me the value of knowing the merchant you deal with, and when you buy in your home town you know that your merchant will stand solidly behind each sale.

Modern merchandizing has done away with the booth and bazaar methods. (Caveat Emptor) is no longer painted on your vision when you enter a store. The Venetian one price system has gone down the corridors to destruction. Haggling and barter are buried deep under the white sands of commercial honor—the one price system business is building itself on a foundation of truth.

The golden rule has been found to work wonders, wherever it was tried.

I am glad the Plainfield merchants have recognized it for so long, and all their competition today is based on service and quality, with price as the clinching argument.

Until Saturday night I was lost for an opportunity to describe a purchase which brought out these points.

I had ordered a pair of Khaki trousers at the Rothberg store, and a cousin from New York who was visiting here rode into town with me.

The purchase was wrapped and I asked the price.

A dollar and a half, Mr. Rothberg said.

What? said my cousin.

Mr. Rothberg repeated the price.

My cousin asked to see the trousers, and then told us what he had just bought a pair in one of the Rogers Peet Co. stores, for which he paid three dollars, and he assured us that by the farthest stretch of his local pride he could not see more than 50c difference in the value.

This does not mean that the Rogers Peet Co. charged more than a fair working profit, but rather seems to emphasize the difference in operating expenses and overhead charges, which must determine the sales price of each article.

I could cite many comparisons that even overtake the one just related A large hardware order from the A. M. Griffen Co. was 15 per cent. lower than the New York supply houses.

A bill of lighting fixtures, where Gavett's were $21 lower than New York houses, but as these purchases were made in 1913 and do not come under the rules of the Press contest I merely mention them to show that any of our merchants can serve the public to the advantage of the public, which is to the advantage of Plainfield.

A COPPER FOR A NIGHT.

The truth of that adage, "Like father like son," was verified, again, on Sunday night, when "Obie" Mohan, son of Chief Marshal Owen Mohan, of the Dunellen police, put on sleuthing clothes for the first time and at no compensation whatsoever from the borough, remained up all night in an endeavor to run two suspicious characters to earth. His initial efforts were not futile either, as he and Marshal Tarpey ran across one of their quarry curled up in slumber in the lumber yard of the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company a little after 2 o'clock in the morning. Young Mohan's initiation as a sleuth came as a result of overhearing a part of conversation of two strangers seated on the ground near the town pump, which stands in front of Stites' blacksmith shop, while he was getting a drink. He hurried to apprise his father of his suspicions. But when the two returned the birds had flown. Chagrined at not having put them under arrest himself, he decided to remain up all night with the above result. The fellow they found claimed that he was a laidoff fireman of the Erie Railroad looking for work. Papers that he had about his person satisfied Marshal Tarpey and young Mohan on this score and he was let go with a warning to make himself scarce. Although Tarpey and Obie scoured the town thoroughly during the remaining hours of darkness they were unable to apprehend the other fellow.

STYLISH RELIABLE

SELF ESTEEM

"No man can have more self esteem than his suit will permit," once drawled Mark Twain. A hobo may have brass and nerve, and usually does, but never self esteem.

That feeling of superiority only comes with the sweet sense of knowing that your coat fits "right" in the back.

"Why do you pay so much for your shirts?" Beau Brummel was once askt. "No one knows they're so expensive."

"But I do," replied the Beau.

EUROPEAN TOURISTS ARE DUE HERE TOMORROW

Mrs. C. Frank French, of Washington avenue, received a message from her sister, Mrs. E. H. Cory, of Jackson avenue, who has been among the unfortunates stranded on foreign soil, yesterday. Mrs. Cory is in the party which is conducted by Dr. E. T. Davis, of Bound Brook, and they have been touring the British Isles.

The party went from England over to the continent and expected to start for home from the city of Bologne, France, on Sunday, August 16, but, like many other Americans, could not get away. Dr. Davis finally saw a way out and had to buy new return tickets for the entire party. He also had a hard time in getting money. They sailed on a Cunard liner and are due to dock in Canada tomorrow. All of the party are reported well and none the worse for their experiences.

Miss Harriet O Mattison, assistant health officer and local registrar in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, has removed from 2 Grove street to 615 Madison avenue.

It is officially announced that the waterways in the interior of France are to be reopened to facilitate commerce in the republic. Military movements, it is understood will be given preference over all other traffic.

A despatch received here from St. Petersburg states that the Russian troops, following up their advantages in Galicia, have captured several passes south of Tarnopol on the Sereth River. Tarnopol is 80 miles east of Lemberg.

Milan, Aug. 25.—News received here also says that all of the fortifications at Cattaro have been destroyed. It is added that the Austrians did not have sufficient time before the attack to distribute mines through the Gulf of Cattaro.

French soldiers at the front must not write home too much or too often. The penalty for such an event is the confiscation of their letters. An incident of the strictness of the rules laid down for the troopers was given today when a young woman received a letter. On the envelope she quickly recognized her husband's handwriting, but upon tearing it open was amazed to find it empty. A closer inspection revealed the following in one corner:

"Madame—Your husband is quite well but he is too communicative."

The army censors had taken out the letter but permitted the envelope to come through with its warning.

Antwerp, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—The latest type of Zeppelins was destroyed here today. The appearance of the air fighter was viewed with terror in the entire city, but quick work by the forts at Hemixem, six miles away, practically demolished it, driving it to earth. The entire crew of 25 men, including the officers in command, was captured.

The airship dropped seven or eight bombs into the city doing considerable property damage, in addition to the casualties. One of the houses destroyed by the explosives was situated only about a thousand feet from the palace of King Albert.

The Hospital of St. Elizabeth, was partially wrecked by one bomb, but luckily there were no patients in the building.

The explosion of the bombs dropped by the German airmen from their giant cigar-shaped air vessel was terrific and the residents of Antwerp were terrified. One report says that seven persons were killed and six seriously injured by one of the bombs.

Peking, Aug. 25.—Reports received here state that the blockade of Tsing tau, the fortified seaport of Kia-chow, the German concession in China, has begun. Participating in the movement, it is said, are Japanese, British, French and Russian warships.

So far there is nothing to show definitely that the Japanese have made any landing on the German leased territory.

The Germans are generally expected to resist to the bitter end. Kaiochow is strongly fortified, and information which reached here a few days ago indicated that there are sufficient provisions on hand to allow for a siege of eight months.

Tokio, Aug. 25.—The Japanese Diet will convene on September 3. Owing to the war with Germany it is expected that a war loan will be voted.

It is understood that 45,000 Japanese will be landed to seize Kaiochow.

Ostend, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—The Germans have failed to invest this city thoroughly. Uhlans who got as far as the outskirts and learning there were no troops in the city proceeded southward. Belgian cavalry is hurrying the Germans and already has annihilated a detachment of Uhlans.

The Hague, Aug. 25. (Central News Cable.)—The German press is commencing a campaign for the retention of Liege, Belgium.

Nish, Servia, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—The victorious Servian troops continue to pursue the Austrians along the whole front, the enemy making no resistance and seeking to get away with all possible haste. It is stated here that the losses to the Austrians in the recent battle were enormous. The Servian quay at Takia has been destroyed by the enemy.

It is reported that the twenty first, the eleventh, the one hundred and second, and the twenty-eighth Austrian regiments were wiped out by the Servians.

It is stated here that the losses of the Austrians in the recent battle were enormous.

The Servian quay at Tekia has been destroyed by the enemy.

Rome, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—Advices from Berlin say that the city of Namur in Belgium and five of the forts of the city have been captured by the Germans, while the bombardment of the other four is still going on. The fall of the latter, it is added, seems imminent.

Four million men make up the first line of the Russian army now moving against the entire German and Austrian frontiers, according to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Messagero, who adds that the Russian Emperor is now at the front with the Gentral Staff.

Geneva, Aug. 25.—Owing to the strained relations existing between Italy and Austria-Hungary, Italian troops are concentrating on the Austrian frontier, while Austria herself has withdrawn some of her troops from the Rhine in order to place them near her Italian border. It is reported that the Italian army at the present time numbers 800,000 men.

Owing to the mobilization of the Swiss army for the purpose of preserving the neutrality of Switzerland, France, according to reports reaching here, has withdrawn nearly all of her garrisons stationed on the Swiss frontier.

Milan, Aug. 25 (Central News Cable.)—News received here says that all of the fortifications at Cattaro have been destroyed. It is added that the Austrians did not have sufficient time before the attack to distribute wines through the Gulf of Battaro.

St. Petersburg, Aug 25.—It is announced at the war office that a division of Austrian cavalry was routed at Plougoudan, losing two batteries and 200 prisoners to the Russians.

London, Aug. 25.—The Japanese Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, to whom the German government handed his passports on Sunday upon the expiration of the Japanese ultimatum to Germany, is coming to London. He was due at The Hague last night.

Japanese affairs in Germany have been left in charge of United States Ambassador James W. Gerard and he will make every endeavor to obtain protection for the subjects of Japan who remain in the Kaiser's territory. It is estimated, however, that the remaining Japanese do not number much over a score.

New York, Aug. 25.—Hundreds of men and women are being arrested daily as spies and many of them shot in Paris and German cities, according to Frederick H. Harrison, an American who has been living in Vienna for years, and who reached here today. Harrison declared he saw three Englishmen and an English woman lined up against a wall and shot by a Sergeant and a file of men at 5 o'clock in the morning near Aix-la-Chapelle. He declared the bodies were then burned.

"I believe the majority of the Germans are gloomy over the possible outcome of the war. Several prominent men told me they did not sympathize with the Kaiser and asserted that the Emperor had made several mistakes, the first of which was the invasion of Belgium. He counted, they said, on an easy passage through that country and a quick victory in France, so that he would be able to turn and meet the Russians before they were fully mobolized.

"Conditions in Germany are beyond description. The prices on all foods have soared to dizzy heights, advancing 60 per cent. in some instances. The feeling among the thoughtful is that the supply will not last long."

Hugh McAtamney, of the Hotel Claridge, this city, who also reached here with considerable difficulty, asserts a bellboy in the Hotel Astoria, Paris, informed him that a hotel manager had been caught with 250 sheets of German script at a wireless instrument and was immediately shot Mr. McAtamney declared that all military trains were placarded "Eight Days to Paris,' 'Twelve Days to St. Petersburg,' etc.

New York, Aug 25.—Commencing with the Liner St. Paul, which is scheduled to sail from this port on September 2, mail steamers of the American Line sailing from New York after the above date will land their passengers at Southampton, instead of Liverpool, which the company has been doing since the outbreak of the war.

This action on the part of the American line officials indicates that the English Chnanel is undoubtedly clear of mines.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Renewed denial was made at the White House today that any protests had been received by the United States government against its purchase of merchant ships of belligerent nations. Not only has no formal protest been received, but the administration has not even the slightest informal intimation from any foreign capital that such action would be regarded as imposing a strain on International relations.

The Administration Merchant Marine Bill introduced in the House by Representative Alexander, chairman of the Merchant Marine Committe, and which probably will be taken up today, provides for the creation of a shipping board to be composed of the Secretary of the Treasury; the Secretary of Commerce, and the Postmaster General. The board is to vote the stock of the United States in a ten million dollar private corporation, of which the United States is to own 51 per cent. The United States is authorized to issue $30,000,000 of Panama Canal bonds for the purchase of ships and to turn over to the private corporations the vessels thus purchased. The corporation is to pay the United States for the ships by depositing with the Treasury its gold bonds at four per cent. interest. The ships thus purchased will not engage in the coastwise trade of the United States but are limited to foreign trade and trade with the Philippines, the Island of Guam and the Island of Tutuila.

President Wilson today signed a proclamation of neutrality referring the the war between Germany and Japan. The text of the proclamation is practically identical with that issued by the President shortly after war was declared between Germany and France and Russia.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF.

Germany.

The Germans drove back the enemy's first line, routing the French in the fighting in Lorraine and gaining advantages in Belgium. The British say that the withdrawal in Belgium was only what was planned and that the allied troops have merely fallen back on their original position on the French frontier. Through the German wireless station at Sayville, N. Y., the German embassy received a message describing the victory by the German crown prince northwest of Diedenhofen (Thionville), near Metz, over five French army corps. The retreat of the southern French wing on Verdun has been cut off, and the French troops were repulsed toward the river Meuse. The German prince's army, giving chase, took many prisoners. A German army commanded by Grand Duke Albrecht of Wuertemburg has defeated the French at Neufchateau, Belgium, near the Luxemburg border, capturing many guns and prisoners, including officers of high rank. The army under Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria has captured 150 guns at Luneville, Blamont and Cirey, in the department of Meurthe-et-Moselle.

Russia.

The Russian forces which have been invading Germany have taken Gumbinnen, Ortelsburg, Johannisburg and, it is reported, Insterburg. The Russian line extends for 150 miles from Johannisburg to Soldau. The Russians are advancing with a large force upon Koenigsberg, which is 350 miles from Berlin, and it is expected that they will invest this point within a few days. The Germans are reported to be crossing the Angerrapp river, with the Russians in pursuit. The Russians also report that they are in possession of the railroad and thus command most of the important strategic points.

Japan.

Japanese, British, French and Russian warships have begun a blockade of Tsingtao, the port of Kaiochow. The Japanese government says that it will not begin offensive operations against Kaiochow until a note has been sent to the German governor of the province urging him to surrender. This action was decided upon, it is said, in order to avoid bloodshed.

Japan is directing three squadrons against Kaiochow and the German warships in eastern waters. Vice Admiral Tomosaburo Kato has been appointed commander in chief of the first squadron to carry out the main offensive movement. The American ambassador at Tokyo has taken over the German embassy from Count von Rex, who has been handed his passports.

France.

The war office admits a defeat along the border and says that Luneville, Blamont and Cirey are in the hands of the enemy and that the French forces are intrenched around Nancy. The army from Amance and Dieulounard is attacking the German forces which marched into the duchy of Luxemburg.

Another army from the region around Sedan is attacking the German corps marching between the Lesse and Meuse rivers. A third army from the Chimay region is moving to attack the German right between the Sambre and the Meuse. It is supported by an English army which set out from around Mons. The battle on the French side has been going on for more than twenty-four hours. The French lines are engaged in desperate conflict, and the losses on both sides are heavy.

London, Aug. 25.—From the maze of rumors and reports about the war there is one fact that stands out tonight—the great battle expected for days has begun and is raging with unexampled fury along a front extending from Mons, in Belgium, to the Swiss border.

The official reports from the war office here and in Paris admit that the allies have been checked. Part of the British and French forces have been pushed back, although there is no substantiation of the rumor that the Germans have broken through.

In the absence of details and the partial admissions of defeat by the allies it is assumed that the German advance has been conducted with the utmost severity and with a considerable measure of success. The British war office has issued this statement:

"The English forces were engaged all day Sunday until after dark near Mons, Belgium. Word has been received that the first line of defense at Namur has been taken. This necessitated the withdrawal of a portion of our troops from the line of operation on the river Sambre. No casualty list has been received. These lists will be published as soon as possible."

There are persistent rumors here that the crown prince of Germany has been killed. Despite this there comes word that the army under his command started out on a victorious course by routing five French army corps northwest of Thionville, near Metz, and cutting off the French south wing from Verdun.

Luneville, Amance and Dieuloard, towns near Nancy, are occupied by the Germans. Crown Prince Ruprecht is reported to have captured 150 guns on his advance west from Alsace.

The Germans have redoubled their efforts to drive the French from Muelhausen, in Alsace.

The fighting at practically every foot of the long line is sanguinary and desperate. There is no point at which contact between the immense armies has not been established.

French Take Offensive.

Paris, Aug. 25.—In the midst of a growing feeling of uneasiness in Paris, caused by the reports of French reverses, the war office issued the following communique:

"Our armies, facing their objective points, were let go yesterday, taking everywhere a resolute offensive against the enemy's forces along the Moselle river and as far as Mons in a general battle. They are now completely engaged and comment may be left to the combatants themselves.

"Their situation may be summed up like this: In Upper Alsace, on the Vosges and Meurthe line, the ensemble of troops is under command of General Pau. These forces hold the front previously indicated, which hasn't suffered any modification, of the line of Badonviller and Luneville. The latter city has been occupied by the Germans.

"The army from Amance and Dieulonard, leaving the eastern Woevre region and going toward Neufchateau, is attacking the German forces which marched into the Granduchy of Luxemburg, and on the right bank of the Semois, moving westward, another army, starting out from the region around Sedan and traversing the Ardennes mountains, is attacking a German corps marching between the Lesse and Meuse rivers.

"A third army from the Chimay region is moving to attack the German right between the Sambre and Meuse rivers. It is supported by an English army which set out from around Mons.

"A movement of Germans, who sought to throw our left wing into disorder, was followed step by step, and their right consequently now finds itself attacked by our left wing. Our army is acting in conjunction with the English army.

"The battle on this side has been going on in lively fashion for more than twenty-four hours. Along the entire remainder of our battle front our lines are engaged in desperate conflict, and already the losses are serious on both sides.

"On our extreme left troops have been concentrated to parry any attempt on that end."

Later last evening the war office issued a statement admitting that a general battle was raging along the entire front of the Vosges range. The statement concludes:

"The general situation has determined us to bring back our troops."

The mind of the public was disturbed today by reports that Nancy had been threatened. There was even a report this morning that Nancy had been captured.

London, Aug. 25.—The first official word that the British expeditionary force on the continent has been engaged was given out by the official news bureau of the war office in the following brief statement:

"British forces were engaged all day Sunday and until after dark with the enemy in the neighborhood of Mons, Belgium. They held their ground."

This is the first information given of the whereabouts of the British troops since the announcement that the landing had been completed on Aug. 18.

Report German Victory.

A wireless dispatch received at the Selefunken station at Sayville, N. Y., from Nauen, Germany, says:

"Official announcement was made here that the German army commanded by Grand Duke Albrecht of Wurterburg has defeated a French army at Neufchateau and captured many guns, flags and prisoners, including several generals.

"German armies under Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, Crown Prince Frederick William and Grand Duke Albrecht are vigorously pursuing the French. The army under Prince Ruprecht captured 150 guns at Luneville, Blamont and Cirey. The army commanded by the crown prince pursued the French beyond Longwy.

"The Germans are west of the river Meuse and are advancing against Naubeuge. They have defeated an English brigade of cavalry."

Paris, Aug. 25.—The French war office issued the following communique:

"The great battle between the greater part of the forces of England and France against the bulk of the German army continues.

"The mission of the English and French is to hold virtually the entire German army in Belgium while our Russian allies push their success in the east. The Russians occupy territory fifty miles wide on the German frontier.

Paris, Aug. 25.—It is officially announced by the war office that the German force which invaded Russia and was reported to have occupied Mlawa has been driven back by the Russians and that the latter are now investing Soldau.

Soldau is a hundred miles south and twelve miles east of Koenigsberg. This new movement is believed to indicate that the Russian advancing army of invasion extends along a front of nearly a hundred miles. The Germans are also reported in the official bulletin to have evacuated Villenburg.

The reported successes of the Russians in East Prussia have delighted France. War office officials admit that they are hopeful that the allies will hold the Germans in check in Belgium until they are obliged to withdraw troops to aid their forces now operating against the Russians. Minister of War Messimy said today that he believed this was the best plan for France to pursue.

Viviani Praises Russians.

Premier Viviani today sent a telegram of warm congratulation to Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander in chief, in which he said:

"The valiant Russian defeat of three German army corps augurs the crushing for all time of the tyranny which Europe so long has tolerated."

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—Six days of desperate fighting which have marked Russia's swift invasion of East Prussia has placed, according to reports given out here, the Russian troops in possession of Insterburg and other important towns.

ITALY EXPECTED TO MOBILIZE NOW

Diplomatic Relations With Austria Are Strained.

Rome, Aug. 25.—The king and the cabinet are in almost continuous conference. The feeling continues to increase that the country is slowly but steadily being forced into position when she will be compelled to strike, not with Austria, but against her.

Meanwhile, the Italian premier declared that Italy was still determined to maintain her neutrality if that is possible.

Paris, Aug. 25.—The Rome correspondent of the Petit Parisien telegraphs that war between Italy and Austria is a possibility of the next few days.

Austria, he says, has protested to Italy against the action of the latter in affording facilities to the fleets of Great Britain and France in the Adriatic.

CONGRESSMEN TO BE CALLED BACK TO WASHINGTON

Washington, Aug. 25—Representative Underwood, leader of the majority of the House, announced today that he would move to direct the sergeant-at-arms to notify all absent members to return to Washington. The House three times yesterday found itself without a quorum and several hours were lost endeavoring to round up enough members to make up a presence of 218 men in the chamber.

With important legislation pending, the leaders are aware that the Republicans can block all administration plans by points of no quorum.

OIL OPERATORS TO PROTEST.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25.—Independent oil operators of western Pennsylvania have called a meeting in Pittsburgh this week to organize a defense against what they call a campaign of extermination by the Standard Oil interests under cover of European war conditions. The meeting will be the first open protest in which the methods of the Standard Oil have been assailed.

GLASS WORKS ARE BUSY.

Kane, Pa., Aug. 25.—In this city where more glass is manufactured than in any place in the United States, every window glass and plate glass plant is operating in full for the first time in history at this season. This is because of the closing of the glass factories of Belgium.

PLAYGROUND WORK.

Work exhibited at Parker Field Saturday afternoon in connection with the Playground Commission's annual demonstration of summer activity in the four local schoolyards indicates that there is much in the commission's plea for wider co-operation on the part of the citizens. Parents have been urged to lend their support to the project and in some cases the results have been noticeable. Comparatively few of the relatives of the six hundred children who took part in Saturday's big fete attended the affair, and it was worth more than passing notice. Performers ranging in age from six to sixteen years and representing six different nationalities took part in the month-er program.

The vast amount of good which the playgrounds have done is inestimable. Only those who have taken an active interest in the project known of the calibre of work being carried on. The daily routine is classified on a scientific basis and the children come under the care of experienced instructors. Each recreation seeker is given the kind of work most applicable to him. The schedule is arranged in a way that provides a constant round of entertainment of an attractive nature from the time the schoolyards open in the morning until they close at night. The effect that supervised recreation has on the individual is evidenced by the attendance roster. The same children apply for admittance at the playgrounds day after day. Fully 1,200 youngsters are being kept off the city's streets.

While they are getting the recreation which youngsters of this age require they are at the same time learning something that will be profitable to them in after life. Handicraft of various kinds has been taught at all of the grounds, boys as well as girls being subjected to special courses of instruction. The work done by the learners during the summer was exhibited at Parker Field Saturday and those present marveled at what has been accomplished. It is the opinion of many that the schoolyards have been transformed into centres for play only but this is a mistaken impression. The recreation and work are mixed in such proportions as to be attractive to the future citizens.

Why some people try to perform "practical" jokes on their friends, of such a character that they cause unusual annoyance and unpleasantness which is hard to offset, is impossible of understanding. Yesterday some person who evidently thought it was funny sent a notice to the Press telling of an alleged wedding of a respectable young woman of this city, to a former store-keeper. Had the story been true it would have gladly been accepted and given the prominence which such an item of news deserves. But upon investigation of the matter, as is always the case when news is sent in anonymously, it was learned that the yarn was manufactured out of whole cloth. People who will perform this sort of practical jokes should be taught a lesson, and it is a question with us whether or not prosecution could not be made under the act providing for the punishment of persons who furnish false news to newspapers.

On Saturday night we will print an unusual editorial. It is from the pen of a working man of this city who analyses the causes of the European war from his viewpoint and that of thousands of others in his position in the world. He wields a trenchant pen, and at times we have published communications from him which we have not agreed with, but which show that he is a close student of affairs. He places the cause at the feet of capitalists.

For the second time this year the merchants of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day, at which time unusual bargains are promised to the local public. The great success of the first day of the kind, held last February, assures Plainfield housewives another opportunity to make their dollars go a long way. September 2 is the date set, and it should be marked in red ink on the calendar.

Some excitement last Saturday night, for the month of August. Between the Suffragists, the Salvation Army and the Stuchell campaign meeting there was a diversified outdoor program with attractions for all tastes.

So long as the lamentable fact remains true that the Pope did die, what necessity is there for a whole lot of newspapers carrying on the controversy as to whether or not one news association recorded it prematurely.

WILL TELL OF CHAPEL CAR WORK IN GREAT NORTHWEST

Those who want to listen to stories of evangelism on Chapel Cars in the great West should hear Rev. E. R. Hermiston, at the First Baptist church tomorrow night. He covers from the firing line where he has had charge of the Chapel Car Emmanuel for eleven years and it is said that his story of aggressive temperance work and the moral transformation of whole towns sounds like an apostolic revival. The Chapel Car has been a great power in co-operation with R. R. Y. M. C. A. and hundreds of young men have been won and joined the church. The Car Emmanuel has operated in churchless towns of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Rev. J. C. Killian who will speak tomorrow night in the Park Avenue Baptist church, has charge of Car Emmanuel, has a record of twenty-four years. For the four years under J. C. Killian's management the work has been chiefly in the States of Kansas and Oklahoma. Sunday-school planting and church extension, and the resurrection into new life and efficiency of churches that have been closed are features of Chapel Car evangelism.

A cordial welcome to these services is extended to all to hear these men. Messrs. Hermiston and Killian will be guests of Rev. W. W. Pratt, the superintendent of the American Baptist Publication Society work in New York State and Northern New Jersey.

POLITICAL NOTES.

August 28—Last day for filing county petitions.

September 2—Last day for filing petitions for local offices.

September 8—First registry day. Also last day for filing petitions to fill vacancies in all offices except Governor and Congress.

September 22—Primary election day and registration day for general election.

September 29—State convention of each party at Trenton and date on which county committees meet and organize.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

Backers of the candidacy of Edward M. Neafsey, of Elizabeth, for the Democratic nomination for county clerk, did not lose any time in starting work for him. It had scarcely been determined that Mr. Neafsey would enter the fight, when petitions were drawn and placed in circulation. On Saturday, some missionary work was done in his behalf through the country.

That James P. Kelly made considerable headway last week in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for registrar, is believed. Mr. Kelly met a number of Democrats from different parts of the county, and it was said Saturday night that he had assurances of support from leading Democrats in the most heavily populated parts of the county.

As they have no opposition for renominations, Registrar Frank H. Smith and State Senator Carlton B. Pierce are not worrying much about the primaries, so far as it affects them. However, they are beginning to get in some heavy licks looking toward the November election.

HUGE DREADNOUGHT FINISHED AT BOSTON

Battleship Turned Over to Argentine Government.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 25—The great battleship Rivadavia, recently completed at the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, at Quincy, was turned over yesterday by the builders to official representatives of the Argentine Government, for which country the huge dreadnought was built. The transfer was made in Boston Harbor and was accompanied by ceremonies customary to such an occasion. Officers of the Argentine navy and a crew of a thousand men have arrived here to take the vessel to Buenos Ayres.

An international mystery has surrounded the construction of the Rivadavia and her sister ship, the Moreno, now nearing completion at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company, at Camden, N. J. The two vessels have been built for the Argentine Republic, but their sale by that country has been considered almost certain. Members of the Argentine Commission now in this city admit that within the last two months several European Governments have made very attractive offers for the Rivadavia. Owing to the fact that the Rivadavia has no superior in the world as a fighting machine, much speculation exists as to which nation may eventually own her.

The Rivadavia, though built for a foreign power, was designed by a former United States naval officer of world-wide renown. He is Francis T. Bowles, until recently president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, a former head of the Bureau of Construction and Repair of the United States Navy, and an officer of eminent capability.

In the Rivadavia, Admiral Bowles has designed a ship that was the "last word" in marine fighting machines at the time her keel was laid down. There have been no improvements made in her style since, although some navies recently have equipped their ships with heavier guns.

The displacement of the Rivadavia is 27,500 tons, a displacement that is supposed to guarantee a steady boat and insure a high offensive and defensive efficiency. Her length is 585 feet, breadth 98 feet, and normal draft 27 feet 6 inches. The superstructure on the upper deck is suppressed completely to avoid obstruction to the arc of fire of the main guns as well as to reduce the target surface offered the enemy.

The armor protection of the Rivadavia is 12 inches thick, 200 feet long, extending 4 feet 9 inches above and 3 feet 4 inches below the normal water line. This belt is continued 75 feet more at each end, until it comes abreast the extreme turrets, but its thickness is reduced 10 feet. On top of the main belt for its whole length of 400 feet there is 9-inch armor and beyond the central reduct the armor is 6 inches thick forward and 4 inches thick aft.

Below the water line the ship is protected by means of a double bottom, transverse and longitudinal bulkheads, dividing the vessel into watertight compartments, fitted with electrically-driven centrifugal pumps which can be operated even when the compartment is entirely flooded. Externally, in time of war, the Rivadavia will be protected by a steel torpedo net which will be held in place 30 feet from the ship's sides.

The battery of the Rivadavia is a formidable one. She will have a dozen 12-inch, 50-caliber guns, mounted in pairs in six turrets arranged so that all can be fired on either side. These twelve guns are capable of perforating an armor plate of cemented steel of 14-inch thickness at a distance of 6,000 meters.

As a secondary battery the Rivadavia will carry twelve 6-inch, 50-caliber guns, and twelve 4-inch, 50-caliber guns. Besides the guns the ship will carry many small field and saluting guns.

Electric power will be supplied the ship by two main stations in duplicate, each fitted with turbo-dynamos, capable of generating all the power required in action and located within the armored casemate. There is also a third installation, operated by heavy oil motors of sufficient power to illuminate the ship and also handle some of the turrets in practice.

The ship is equipped with triple screws, being one of the first vessels completed with Curtis marine turbines, to have more than two propellers. The builders figure that the Rivadavia will be able to go 10,100 knots at 11-knot speed, 7,200 knots at 15-knot speed, and 3,600 knots at 22.5-knot speed.

"BIG DOINGS" AT PISCATAWAY

Harvest Home, First In History of Village, to Be Held Next Wednesday.

ITS HISTORY IN BRIEF

Charles W. Britton, Chairman of General Committee—Rev. Henry Hale Gifford to Address Gathering—Civic Association Responsible.

Piscatawaytown is planning for a big night on Wednesday, September 2. This village, one of the oldest in this section of New Jersey, will have its first harvest home at that time. Piscatawaytown has a unique history, having been at least once honored by having the General Assembly of East Jersey meet there and was also the county seat of Middlesex for a short period. It was settled about 1660 by pioneers from New England who brought the name Piscatoqua with them from the Indian tribe of that name in New Hampshire. Many of the original families are represented by their descendants who are active in the life of the township today.

In 1695, the Board of East Jersey Proprietors, in the reign of King William III. of England, gave three plots of ground to trustees for the use of the freeholders of the township. The largest one was for a burial ground and for exercising the town company. It originally comprised about 14 acres, but part of it has been used by private families for a long period. St. James' Episcopal church, commonly called the "White Church," was granted a site on this property in 1701 and around it are clustered the graves of many generations including many notable persons.

The great storm of 1835 destroyed the church and most of the village and it never regained its population. New Brunswick then came into prominence at the expense of the village which was much further from the river. A new White Church was built by Joseph Foulke, of New York city, and the old pulpit was restored in the ancient elevated style. It is probably the only one in New Jersey of that character in the Episcopal church. The people built a schoolhouse in the rear of the church by private subscription and when it was burnt by an incendiary the present building was erected from the insurance.

About fifty years ago, Forman Martin and others planted trees through the commons and they are now in a flourishing condition. Recently the Raritan Civic Association of Piscatawaytown, was organized and their first work has been to use the old commons for a public park and playground.

The Township Committee appointed a Board of Playground Commissioners and they form the park committee of the association. They are John McNaughton, Charles A. Blake, Dr. Manning Drake, Charles W. Britton and Rev. Henry Hale Gifford. On application of this Commission the Board of Education of Raritan township have transferred the old school building to the Township Committee and it will be used for public purposes and to promote the interests of the park and playground. Undergrowth and weeds have encumbered the park and for several Saturday afternoons volunteers have been clearing up the grounds, working diligently with grubbing hoes, scythes, etc. Though much has been accomplished and the grounds have already been resorted to daily by increasing numbers, the plans are for a fully equipped playground and beautiful park wholly free to the public. To secure funds for this purpose a harvest home has been planned for Wednesday, September 2. As the community in the neighborhood of the park is small, though growing steadily in numbers, they should be encouraged by contributions of money and materials for this object.

The general committee consists of Charles W. Britton, chairman; Charles A. Blake, secretary; Frank E. Miller, treasurer; Rev. and Mrs. Henry Hale Gifford, Ray Davis, William E. Barlow, Miss Elizabeth Bauer, Mrs. Blake, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Britton. The usual features of a harvest home will be provided.

A country store selling fancy and useful things, refreshments, etc., is being arranged, and also fruit, vegetables, etc., in great variety is being arranged.

Rev. Henry Hale Gifford has been asked to make an address in which he will refer to the aims of the civic association. The celebrated Goodwin's Band, of Cranbury, of 17 pieces, has been engaged for the occasion.

The list of committees will be completed at the next meeting of the Raritan Civic Association tomorrow night in St. James' Parish house in Piscatawaytown, to which all interested are invited.

OUT OF HOSPITAL.

Roundsman Andrew Saffron, of the local police force, was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday where he underwent an operation for the removal of a blood tumor. It will be at least two weeks before he is able to return to duty again.

KNIGHTS' CARNIVAL IS WELL WORTH SEEING

Animal Show, Motordrome, Flea Circus and High Divers Among Many Attractions.

The lot at the corner of Front street and Grant avenue resembled a miniature Coney Island, last night, and will for the rest of the week, and the illumination, music and the many noises attracted a large crowd to the opening of the annual Knights of Columbus carnival which will run for the remainder of the week. Those who attended last night found many new attractions and there were enough to keep the pleasure seekers busy the entire evening.

The Johnny J. Jones Exposition Shows are complete in every way and besides the attractions for which fees are charged, there is one free exhibition which is well worth seeing and that is the high diving feat in which Thomas and Margaret Quincey feature. They held the large crowds spellbound for a long time as they poised on a platform ninety feet above the earth and then dropped into the small tank of water below. The sideshows are all of the high-class variety and are worth the patronage of men, women and children.

One of the big features is the animal show which was the most popular of last night's entertainments. Charles Austin, the trainer, who fearlessly steps inside the cage of the wild beasts, gives a fine exhibition with the animals and although his life is in danger at times when he plays with one ferocious lioness, he has a peculiar power over the animal and apparently is not afraid.

One of the shows that also attracted much attention was Babcock's Motordrome in which motorcycle riders go around a small saucer at terrific speed and at one time there are two on the track at the same time. The many performances of the flea circus were well attended and it is remarkable how the smallest insect can be trained. The fleas do everything that is advertised and the demonstration is such as there can be no doubt in the minds of the spectators that they really do perform.

Many members of the local organization are assisting in making the carnival as attractive and popular as possible and there is no doubt but what it will be as profitable as in previous years.

"BREAD AND BUTTER" SLOGAN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25—The Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania, is scheduled to meet in this city tomorrow to adopt a platform. The meeting will be made the occasion for a gathering of the candidates and other party leaders and in reality will mark the formal opening of the Republican State campaign. Senator Penrose and other candidates, will, it is believed, deliver addresses which will sound the campaign keynote. It is believed that the declarations of the State platform and the addresses of the speakers will put particular emphasis on the issue of prosperity and the effects of the Democratic tariff. As in the celebrated campaign of 1896, the slogan of the Republicans in Pennsylvania this fall will be "the full dinner pail."

Mr. Rose D. Rittman, of Chicago, high chief ranger of the order, presided, and Archbishop Quigley was one of the speakers. The convention will continue through the remainder of the week.

ELKS MEET AT HAZLETON.

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 25—Hazleton was in gala attire today in honor of hundreds of visiting Elks who gathered here from far and near for the annual convention of their State association. The gathering will last three days. An unusually large attendance and an attractive program of entertainment combine to give promise of one of the most successful conventions ever held by the order in Pennsylvania.

SCIENTISTS MEET AT EVANSTON.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 25—The annual meeting of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America was opened at Northwestern University today and will be continued until Saturday. Pickering, the well known astronomer of Harvard University.

IOWA PYTHIANS IN SESSION.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 25—A gathering of great interest in Pythian circles began here today with the opening of the forty-fifth annual convention of the Iowa grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias. The Pythian Sisters also are in annual session. Delegates from every part of the State are attending the two meetings.

CAUSE OF BIG CONFLICT WHICH WORLD HAS DREADED

Austria-Hungary, a great imperial power in Europe, with a population of something like 50,000,000 and a fighting strength consisting of 2,000,000 men made an attack on Servia, a small inland kingdom in the Balkan Peninsular, with a population of only 4,000,000 and an army of something like 250,000 men. This apparently unequal conflict threw all of Europe into one of the most terrible wars of history.

About a year ago Servia, Greece and Bulgaria succeeded in driving Turkey further back out of Balkan territory. The northern boundary of Servia touches the southern boundary of Austria-Hungary, and this great empire desired to annex Servia. A few months ago an Austrian Crown Prince was assassinated and Austria claimed that this was the result of a conspiracy on the part of Servia, and made demands which Servia took exception to. Thus war was declared, and one nation after another has entered into it. Every reader of the Daily Press will be interested in following this great conflict of nations. For this purpose the Press is offering an official war map with which one can easily follow all the great events of war. The offer is fully explained in the war map coupon in another column of this issue.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

One of the most talked of up-to-the-minute burlesque companies, is Joe Hurtig's "Social Maid Burlesquers" who will be the attraction at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. A musical comedy in two acts will be presented with special electrical effects and beautiful scenes of the boardwalk at Atlantic City and the Suffragette jail, and nothing left undone to make this the most talked of all burlesque shows.

There are fifty people in the cast including a chorus of thirty of the most beautiful girls with sweet voices and one of the best dressed shows on the road.

The whole world loves to laugh, yet once in a while you will find a human being who has apparently promised his mother he wouldn't indulge in that form of healthful exercise, but if one of these elects to go and see "Stop Thief," the new farce soon to be presented here, he would of a surety break his pledge, for nothing but a wooden Indian could withstand the risible inclinations that come from viewing this funny play. The audience that assemble to see the new Carlyle Moore piece begin to laugh three minutes after the curtain goes up on the first act, and from then on the house is in a veritable laughing panic. They laugh at the ridiculous situation in the piece and then laugh louder at the antics of their seatmates, who fairly rock the house in their paroxysms of pure delight as the crook continues to outwit every effort of the bluecoated policemen who try in vain to trap him.

If you are a grouch go and see "Stop Thief." It will cure you. On the other hand, if you are good natured, an evening spent with this prince of pilferers, will be an event that you will recall with a grin for many days after.

The original Gaiety Theatre, N. Y. scenic production will be used here, also those well-known artists Bert Leigh, and Miss Hazele Burgess in the roles of the Thief and his pal, when the show appears at the Plainfield Theatre Thursday night.

Gus Hill's fourth season's offering of the irrepressible cartoon character play "Mutt and Jeff" called "In Mexico," has been framed up on a more elaborate and costly scale than the original production. Fully one-half of the lines, situations and business of a Hill production is the fruits of his indefatigable brain and energy, therefore "Mutt & Jeff in Mexico" contains the pure essence of real comedy entertainment properly compounded right from the doctor's prescription and is given in large and pleasant doses for a small price of admission. The famous cartoon characters are better surrounded than in either of the previous offerings. The scenic production is an elaborate one, with its numerous mechanical effects and thrilling climaxes, dramatic sensations, etc. It reminds one of melodrama, farce comedy, refined travesty, extravaganza and the accepted musical comedy vein, all rolled into one happy thought conglomeration of nonsense and hilarious frivolity which makes laughter incessant for two and one half hours at each performance. "Mutt and Jeff" and their whole official family are scheduled to arrive in Plainfield on Friday, August 28, at the Plainfield theatre, matinee and night.

CAMP DAMBHCTUD.

Camp Dambhctud will be established tomorrow in the rear of Smalley's stone crusher on the Watchung mountains, at which several members of the Dutch Arms Band will camp for a short season. Those who are to register tomorrow are Edmund D. Young and his two sons, of South Second street, and William J. Trembath, Jr., and two sons, of Chatham street, the borough, and Edgar Seadar, also of Chatham street.

ENTERTAINMENT AT NETHERWOOD HOME

Children to Perform Next Monday Night—Amusing Songs On Program.

The Auditorium at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be the scene of a unique and interesting entertainment next Monday night, when participants in the various acts will be the children of the Home. The program is diversified, each part having been selected with the idea in view of giving those who attend an enjoyable evening.

There will be some recitations, a dialogue in which four of the girls will take part entitled "Four Celebrated Characters," which are well known to the young folks, and folks older grown will have recalled to their hearts those nursery rhymes loved so well in days gone by; there will be a number of tableaux, each having characteristic settings, with some of the Home's smaller children in the pictures. Aside from the above the following features have been arranged which are new to Plainfield.

"Four Little Maids at Tea," is a novelty action song. The scene is set at a tea table on the lawn, where the little girls are discovered, doing just what their mothers do now-a-days; gossiping. The music is sweet and catchy.

"I Cant Do a Thing With My Hair Since It's Wasaed," is a song illustrating a matter important to the fair sex, that of keeping their hair in order after it's washed. The young ladies who sing this song tell how, in a very entertaining manner.

"The Litle Soldier and the Red Cross Maid," is a novelty duet, with characters as the title indicates, which should prove a decided hit. The words and music of this number will be sure to remain with those who hear it long after the entertainment is over.

1914 GRIDIRON SEASON PROMISES TO BE A RECORD-BREAKING ONE

New York, Aug. 25—Spectre-like football is beginning to stalk baseball. Although the prospective pennant-winners and world's championship contenders are yet in the making, the gridiron game is less than a month away. On Saturday, September 19, the initial call to mimic conflict will sound and from that day until the first Saturday in December football will rise and wane in its short but active reign.

Viewed from every angle the approaching season promises to be a most remarkable and record-breaking period in the gridiron sport. In the number of games alone the season will stand out with unusual prominence. Many notable intersectional contests are scheduled, including a game between Harvard and Michigan. Early in the season both Yale and Princeton Universities will dedicate new and mammoth stadiums..

As has been the case for several years, the Carlisle Indians and the Albright College eleven have the honor of opening the season with the game set for September 19. Cornell follows close on their heels with a game against Ursinus on September 23, and on the succeeding Saturday, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and a host of other elevens in various parts of the country will get into action.

Before the month of October closes the premier elevens of the country will begin to meet foes worthy of their best efforts and the season will be at its height. The schedule for the middle Saturday of October is typical of the increasing activity. Carlisle plays Pittsburgh, Amherst meets Trinity, Princeton faces Lafayette, Chicago lines up against the State University of Iowa, Oregon will oppose Washington State, Wisconsin and Purdue clash, and the Annapolis eleven will establish a precedent by journeying to Philadelphia to play the University of Pennsylvania.

From this date on the big games follow rapidly. The final Saturday in October will witness the biggest intersectional game of the season when Michigan plays Harvard at Cambridge. Other sections, however, will not be lacking in feature contests for Cornell and Holy Cross play at Ithaca, Chicago and Wisconsin at Madison, Carlisle and Syracuse at Buffalo, Dartmouth and Amherst at Hanover, Princeton and Williams at Princeton, Vanderbilt and Virginia at Nashville, Yale and Colgate at New Haven and Pennsylvania and Swarthmore at Philadelphia.

The opening Saturday of November will find the college elevens of all sections on edge for the championship games of the season. Close to 150 games between rival and well matched teams are scheduled, the principal feature contests being. Harvard vs. Princeton, Yale vs. Brown, Wisconsin vs. Minnesota, Pennsylvania vs. Michigan, Vanderbilt vs. Tennessee, Mississippi vs. Tulane, Wesleyan vs. Williams, Pennsylvania State vs. Lehigh and Carlisle vs. Holy Cross.

The second Saturday of November will be a red letter day in football. Princeton opens the new Palmer Memorial Stadium with the Yale game, Cornell goes to Ann Arbor to play Michigan and Carlisle to Chicago to face the strong and spectacular Notre Dame eleven. Harvard has Brown as an opponent, Syracuse and Colgate clash, Illinois and Chicago meet in their annual conflict, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth do likewise, while Virginia and Swarthmore, Wesleyan and Trinity, Washington and Oregon, and a score of other big games round out the day.

The football classic of the year will be played the following Saturday, November 21, when the teams of Yale and Harvard meet. Unusual features mark this game, for it will serve as the dedication attraction of Yale's new stadium. On the same day Dartmouth and Syracuse play at Boston, Lehigh faces Lafayette, Chicago and Minnesota clash, Wisconsin and Illinois are opponents, and many other games feature the day.

The Cornell-Pennsylvania match will be the premier attraction in the East on Thanksgiving Day, but other sections have equally interesting games. Notre Dame plays Syracuse at Syracuse, Virginia and North Carolina meet at Richmond, Vanderbilt and the University of the South at Nashville and Louisiana and Tulane at New Orleans.

The season will close with the Army-Navy game at Washington on the following Saturday, and the game between the two United States training academies is expected to take an added picturesquesness in its capital setting. For years those who are most interested in giving this contest a real governmental sanction have sought to have the game between the soldiers and sailors played at Washington.

ROD AND REEL

Many weakfish are being caught at Forked River at the present time and all that are landed are good weighers. One party of five landed ninety-six in a short time.

Weakfish and fluke are still biting well at Morgan and many fishermen go there and try their luck daily. The former are caught in the largest numbers.

There is a little spot at the mouth of Keyport Cove where there are lots of weakfish and those who know about it go there and fish to their heart's content.

Many anglers are casting their lines in Raritan Bay and they generally get some large ones for their efforts.

Fishing is still good at Weequahic Park Lake and many go there for a day's enjoyment. Catfish, perch and eels are caught regularly.

Good catches have been the rule all week in Raritan Bay. A few blues have made their way into the bay this week, as well as some of the larger weakfish that generally are to be found only outside in the ocean. Several weeks running up to four and five pounds, and one that went to eight and a half pounds, were landed this week. Shedder crabs continue to be the popular bait, and the fish are biting on both the ebb and flood tides.

Catches of weaks and blues are being made in the surf at Seaside Park, and the first channel bass to be taken there this season was beached last week.

Everybody caught fish at Water Witch yesterday. The boats that tie up at the yacht basin brought in anywhere from twenty to sixty. Several of them hooked into the bluefish off Sandy Hook.

John H. Schenck, of this city went to Waretown Monday afternoon. He caught twenty-six on Tuesday, but Wednesday was blue for him, as he only caught six. The east wind put a crimp in all the fishing that day, so John didn't feel very bad over it.

WINNER OF LONG RACE.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 25.—Michael McDermott of the Illinois Athletic Club, of Chicago, won Cincinnati's annual long-distance swimming race here yesterday. His time for the eight-mile course on the Ohio River was three hours ten minutes and twenty-five seconds.

THREE GOOD MEN TO LEAVE SCHOOL

North Plainfield High School Pitching Staff and Outfielder Will Not Return.

Although the North Plainfield High School baseball team lost only two players by graduation last June, it has become known lately that several of the veterans who are most needed to make a successful team next season, are not going to return to their studies in the fall. Ashley Burner's absence will be greatly felt and a new man will have to be "made" to cover the initial sack which is one of the hardest positions on the diamond.

According to latest reports Dan Denny, the mainstay of the pitching staff, will not return, and Bab Hebert, one o the fast outfielders, will enter the business field. Both of these men will be greatly missed, especially the former, as there are plenty more aspirants for the garden positions but there are very few who are made to be pitchers. Ernest Stahl, the other pitcher who figured prominently in the city series last year and who promised to be far better in years to come, has also decided to leave and will continue his education at a local business school, where his ability to toss the ball over will not be appreciated as they have no athletic teams at that place and then his arm will surely go bad. Stahl was also a slugger.

With these three men gone, which includes the entire pitching staff, the outlook for next season is not as bright as it was a few months ago although when the preliminary practice comes next spring there will probably be some new material that will answer the calls for the various positions.

Oscar Dilts, who was a pitcher before the High School management turned him into an excellent short stop, might again be put on the firing line but that would be bad policy as the little "Soph" certainly can pick them up between second and third Dilts has been in the pitching department for several years back but is perfectly satisfied with his present position. Getting pitchers will be the hardest work for the captain and coach next year.

AMATEUR CHAMPION GIVES SOME TIPS

Jerome D. Travers, Four Times Golf Champ, Has Written Interesting Article.

In the September American Magazine, Jerome D. Travers, four times amateur golf champion of the United States, write an article entitled "The Winning Shot," in the second series of golf articles which he is doing for this publication. Mr. Travers regards the putter as having forty-five per cent. playing value as against fifty-five per cent. for all the remaining clubs in a player's bag. On the importance of the putter he writes in part as follows:

"The average golfer starts out upon his round of the course with an average of seven clubs, which are likely to be driver, brassie, cleek, mid-iron, mashie, niblick and putter.

"If each one of these clubs was of equal value in the task of securing the proper score, upon the basis of one hundred per cent. for the round, each club would represent a playing usefulness of about fourteen per cent. But this is where the system cracks. There is one club in the bag that has a greater value than fourteen per cent. It is the shortest, lightest and smallest club of the entire lot, the simplest and yet the hardest to play, the club that many unknowns can handle well and yet a club that baffles an Evans and a Vardon from one year into another. I refer to the putter, and I put its playing value at forty-five per cent. for the remaining six, seven or eight clubs for the round.

"'Forty-five per cent. is too high a rating for any one club,' a number of experts have said to me; but if I have made a mistake here it is on the short side. I only wish some of those who underrate the tremendous value of the puter had been at Brookline last September when the open championship of America was at stake. If they had, they would have gone well beyond my computation and put the vaue of the putter at seventy-five per cent. Alec Smith, the well-known professional, kept track of different scores turned in through this tournament, and he figures that of every one hundred shots played, seventy-five were taken on the putting green. It was no uncommon sight there to see crack golfers reach greens over four hundred yards away in two perfectly played shots, and then scatter three or four putts all over the green before the bottom of the cup was reached. I saw one crack professional get within four feet of a four-hundred-yard hole in two shots and finally get down in six. He missed his three, went well below the cup and then took three more coming back."

WOMEN TENNIS PLAYERS TO BATTLE FOR STATE TITLE

The annual tournament for the women's tennis championships, of New Jersey, will be held under the auspices of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association on the dirt courts of the Morristown Field Club on Monday, September 7, and succeeding days. The events will include women's championship singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles.

The championship cup to be competed for in the women's singles will become the property of the player winning the tournament three times not necessarily in succession. The tournament has been won once by Mrs. C. H. Beard and twice by Mrs. Marshall McLean.

First and runner-up prizes will be given in every event and a consolation prize in women's singles to be competed for by all players defeated in their first match actually played. The consolation will be handicapped. H. S. Tenney is secretary of the tournament committee, and is to receive entries before Friday, September 4. Play in singles will commence at 10:30 a. m. on September 7, and the women's doubles at the same hour on September 8. The mixed doubles will start at 3.30 on September 9. J. P. Allen will act as referee. The members of the special tournament committee are Miss Ruth Dean, Miss Leslie Hill, Miss Marjorie Pierson, H. S. Tenny and J. P. Allen.

MOTOR BOAT CARNIVAL.

New York, Aug. 25—All arrangements are complete for the National Motor Boat Carnival, which is to have its opening tomorrow on Manhasset Bay, Port Washington, L. I. The races will continue through the remainder of the week. These are the real championship races of the country, inasmuch as the contests are for perpetual challenge championship trophies, established nearly ten years ago, and for which there has been a competition every year.

LIEUT. PHILLIPS ON JERSEY TEAM

Major Martin, Formerly of This City, Captains the State Aggregation.

Sea Girt, Aug. 25—New Jersey and Massachusetts divided the honors on the opening day of the twenty-fourth Sea Girt tournament. The Second New Jersey for the first time captured the inter-State regimental match with 775, the Seventy-fourth New York, Third New Jersey and Fifth Massachusetts crowding with 772.

Major William B. Martin, formerly of this city, who is captain of the New Jersey team, is confident that the team under his charge will give a good accounting when the matches get well under way. Major Martin is confident that his team of privates and non-coms are going to make a good showing, and he has accordingly entered a large number of men in a number of individual events. Lieutenant Arthur Phillips, a member of Company K, is the only local representative and he is on the Second Regiment team of which Major Martin is the leader.

The matches are of importance in the United States owing to the fact that they take the place of the national matches which in years past have been held at Camp Perry, Ohio. The country this year is divided into five divisions, with matches being held in each division, with the exception of the central division. The central division was to have held its matches at Sparta, Wis., but they have been canceled, and the Government gives the marksmen from those States included in the division the privilege of coming here for the Eastern division matches.

Seven teams were here last night and others arrived today. There will probably be teams arriving late in the week from some States which have teams eligible only for the divisional matches. The United States Army and Marine Corps, New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia were among the early arrivals.

BOB FITSZIMMONS WANTS A DIVORCE FROM WIFE

Bob Fitzsimmons does not want his wife to get a divorce and has filed a cross bill to Mrs. Julia Gifford Fitzsimmons' suit in the Circuit Court, of Chicago, asking that he, not she, be given a decree.

Fitzsimmons has also filed an answer to his wife's bill, in which he attempts to show that his vaudeville actress-spouse was an expensive acquisition. He says he spent $200,000 for jewelry and clothing for her since their marriage July 24, 1903. Besides this, he says, he expended large sums for the culture of her voice.

Moreover, Fitzsimmons produces evidence to show that he was generous toward his wife and treated her with confidence. He says that on July 24, 1910, and for a long time prior thereto, all of his money amounting to more than $100,000, was deposited in her name.

This the vaudeville ex-fighter sets forth to offset his wife's allegations of cruelty. She charged him with beating her, striking her with his fists and knocking her down. One of the instances of the cruelty charged was said to have taken place on January 23, 1910. Bob replies that on this occasion he only touched her lightly and playfully, not injuring her, while she was dancing with her sister, in the Fitzsimmons home.

LOCAL ANGLERS SAW 450 POUND SHARK BROUGHT IN

Three local anglers took a day off yesterday and went fishing over at Seabright. They had an opportunity of seeing a good sized shark landed. The three local men were Alfred Seidel, Herbert Smith and Morris Block. They went out on the Helene and had fine luck, bringing home a good mess of the finny tribe. Mr. Seidel made the best catch of the day when he landed a six-pound humpback bass.

The crew of the Helene landed a shark that weighed four hundred and fifty pounds.

WATER BASKETBALL.

A large crowd of basketball followers attended the opening game of water basketball that was played at Mulberry Beach, yesterday. The home team was beaten by a five from Tottenville by the score of 6 to 0. In water basketball, baskets are erected and the game is played in a similar manner to the court game, excepting that penalties are given for ducking the ball or an opposing player. The game is played in four three-minute quarters.

HIGHLANDERS ARE BEATEN IN HOTLY CONTESTED GAME

The Ironsides won a well played game from the Highlanders on Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, by the score of 4 to 2. Neither pitcher was hit to any extent and only ten safe singles were chalked up, each team getting five. The Ironsides started off in the first round with one run and they also scored once in the second. In the third frame the Highlanders tied the score but could not get the lead.

For the next three innings both sides were blanked, but in the seventh the Ironsides started a batting rally and hit two runs across the plate. The Highlander batters were powerless at the hand of Clarke after that and could not score. Trotter and Boss led the Highlanders in batting, with two hits each, while Glaeson was the only one on the winning team that hit for two.

COPS AND DOCTORS HAVE SOME BUSINESS TO SETTLE

The Coppers and Doctors will meet again Thursday on Parker Field, and the latter are going a little faster than they did the first time they met the cops and expect to win the game. The bluecoats lost the last battle they played last week and are going after this one as it is against their principles to lose two in a row. The first contest resulted in a victory for the midnight prowlers but it was not until the ninth inning that they were given the verdict.

The coppers will have their regular squad at the field to pick nine men from but who the doctors will play is a secret. If Estey Foster is again on the mound and the cops have as much trouble hitting him as they did the last time, the pill dealers will stand a fine show of "bringing home the bacon." Fritts will probably pitch and Connie McCarthy will be on the receiving end of the battery.

FACTORYMEN HAD A GREAT OUTING

Ransome Concrete Co.'s Employes Went to The Pines, at Metuchen, Saturday.

ATHLETIC COMPETITION

Running Races and Jump Provided Entertainment For a Large Gathering—Noon-Day Banquet Served—Officials of Company Present.

The third annual outing of the Ransome Mutual Aid Society, Saturday, went down in history of that organization as one of the greatest social gatherings ever held.

Seventy-nve members went to Metuchen by auto bus and enjoyed the sports and excellent dinner that had been provided by the outing committee.

Athletics were one of the features of the outing. The results were as follows: 100-yard dash, Stranahan, first; Bowden, second. Running broad jump, Bowden, first; Anderson, second. Standing broad jump, Jensen, first; Halenar, second. Standing high jump, Stranahan, first; Bowden, second. Running high jump, Stranahan, first; Halenar, second. 440-yard run, Stranahan, first; Ryan second; Bowden, third.

The tug-of-war provided a great deal of amusement and also created great rivalry between the two teams. The sheet and iron shop team was captained by Jensen, while the machine shop team was captained by Hill. After great loss of perspiration, cuticle and a lot of wearing apparel, the boilermakers succeeded in pulling the machinists all over Mr. Herr's 68 acres of real estate, blackberry bushes and potato plants.

One of the features of the day was a long distance running race between Zwaan and Oscar Smidth. They both started from scratch and undoubtedly one of them would have won the race if the committee had foresight to move the refreshment stand to the finish line, but as it was, after running 18 feet their instinct changed their course for the refreshment stand and as near as the judges could guess it was a dead heat for the Pilsner prize.

After the dinner came the ball game between office and shop teams. The office team was managed by Mr. Givens, while the shop team was managed by Jack Roman, who also acted as umpire, assisted by the whole office team. There was one man who was satisfied by the umpire's decisions, that was Mr. Ralston, who caught the 3:15 train from Metuchen to New York. The game started at 3:30. After ten innings of base "bawl" the game was won by the office team by the score of 6 to 5, so the scorekeeper, Miss Goebel, testified, and the male players would not question her scorekeeping.

The members made a very neat appearance in white caps furnished by the committee in charge, Jack Roman, Cornelius Zwaan and Chris Larsen.

The members were honored by the presence of A. W. Ransome, vice-president of the Ransome Concrete Machinery Company, and John A. Hall, superintendent, acted as judge and timekeeper of the running races.

PETS AND SAURERS WILL MEET IN RUBBER GAME

Ernest Dorflinger's Plainfield Pets and Brit Martin's Saurer ballists will meet for the third time this season on Parker Field next Saturday. This is one of the five games of the series, and as each team has won one contest, both want the third and there will surely be a fight to the finish for the decision. In the first game the Pets were shutout while the Saurers scored one run. In the second encounter the Pets came back and won.

Both managers will present their regular lineups and Townley and McLaughlin will oppose each other. Both of their previous meetings have resulted in interesting pitchers' duels and the one Saturday will probably be as good if not a little better. Each team has lost three games this year and are as evenly matched as they possibly could be. A record crowd is expected to witness this battle.

From the above figures it will be seen that the increase for the year is divided as follows:—Land, $2,237,375; buildings, $612,760; personal, $11,425, making the total increase, as noted above $2,861,560.

The exact amount to be received from the railroad tax and other sources which may reduce the local amount to be raised is not known, but it has been predicted that the rate this year will not go over the figures last year, which were $1.87 plus.

GENERAL APPEALS TO AMERICAN FAIRNESS

Francisco Villa Says He Is the Moral and Physical Champion of People.

Chihuahua, Aug. 25—General Francisco Villa when asked today if he would accept the present Carranza government, declared he was the moral and physical champion of the Mexican people and appealed to the American sense of fairness to assist him in obtaining for the citizens of Mexico the constitutional rights that Americans enjoy.

"I consider myself the moral and physical champion of the Mexican people," said Villa, "especially of my own people here in the North, and I now appeal to the American spirt of fairness to assist me in obtaining rights for the people—the rights that Americans enjoy.

"Say for me that I have no personal feeling for or against Carranza. My interest is in the country and in my people. I have shown this by following others and allowing them to obtain benefits for which I fought. My position is that this country shall not be under military regime again, and I believe my position is well taken.

"Read our constitution and you will find that the army is second to the constitution. Yet the constitution has been trampled under foot by the iron heel of the army and its dictators. It is now high time that this should stop. There has been too much personal politics and not enough statesmanship to suit the Mexican people. Let the people rule, for then they will not be ruled by a military crowd like the Cientificos.

"There is no need to fear because of me. I am simply representing the people who have never before been represented. I shall bring every bit of moral suasion to bear to obtain the rights for the people under the constitution. I shall bring whatever pressure upon the President or any government which is to follow. This is not a threat, but a statement of conditions. Because of the sufferings my country has experienced at the hands of Dictators, from Diaz to Huerta's drunken debauch, I wish to see civil government replace dictatorship. This is all I wish, and I intend to do everything I can do to see that we get it."

Villa has been invited to go to Sonora with General Alvaro Obregon to settle the internal trouble He has not yet given his consent.

STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 25—Plans are being pushed by the Merchants' Association for the establishment of a school in the Woolworth building, the pupils to be office boys, office girls and other junior employes of the tenants of the big structure. The Merchants' Association, whose own offices are in the Woolworth building, has been making a canvass of the tenants, to find how many will be willing to let their employes attend the sessions of the school for a period during the regular business day. The response by tenants has been satisfactory to the association officials having the matter in charge, and the establishment of the school is looked for within a short time.

Railroad traffic men admit here that their business is being seriously affected by the European war. A falling off in traffic, they said, was bound to follow the embargo placed on grain and other export freight, which runs unusually heavy at this time of the year. The complete tie-up of imports has also had a tendency to reduce freight received from manufacturers dependent upon Europe for raw materials. Officials of the leading trunk lines, however, are of the opinion that the setback in railway earnings will be only temporary, and that the improvement, when it comes, will be permanent and of great value to our industries.

The leaders of New York's fashionable circles at Newport are organizing a money-raising campaign in support of the International Red Cross Society's war work. The prime movers in the affair are Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr. A sort of fair or fete, is being planned to take place at "The Breakers," the sumptuous abode of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. It will continue for two afternoons and evenings of tennis week, when the Newport season is at its height. A small charge will be made for entrance tickets, and various shows will attract both the attention and the shekels of the great of the earth, as well as of those who follow in their wake.

House wreckers leveled to the ground a few days ago the three finest examples of oldtime city homes left in lower Varick street. Like the dwellings in the upper part of that thoroughfare, they have been sacrificed after an existence of more than seventy-five years to furnish the additional space needed to widen Varick street. The three houses which have just disappeared stood on the southwest corner of Varick and Beach streets. For many years they attracted the attention of artists and others interested in the few existing memorials of earlier days because of the simplicity and grace of their neat Colonial architecture. Viewed from the street the entrances with the delicate door posts surmounted with Doric capitals, and a simple carved design in the archway over the door, were their characteristic features. This Colonial style was maintained in a slightly more elaborate manner inside, especially in the large front parlor, adorned at one end with white enameled Doric pillars and designs of fruit and flowers carved in the white marble of the old-fashioned fireplace.

Among persons stranded in New York by the war is the Princess Braganca d'Avellar, whose stage name was Ruth Maycliffe when she appeared in "Girls" and other comedies in this city several years ago. The Princess was born on a Texas cattle ranch, and, after appearing in several plays in this city, she went abroad about two years ago and was not heard of again on Broadway until she returned to America last May, when she surprised former acquaintances by telling them that she was a Princess. She was introduced to Prince d'Avellar, of Portugal, in Madrid, she said, and it was a case of love at first sight. Since May she has been visiting her mother and grandfather, C. A. Roberts, in Oklahoma. For several weeks she has been in New York waiting for a ship to take her back to Lisbon.

Extensive alterations are about to be made to the basement and several floors of the American Tract Society building, on the corner of Spruce and Nassau streets, for new quarters for the New York Sun. For more than a year it has been known that the newspaper was preparing to quit its old home, but not until recently was it learned that The Sun would follow the example of The Times in moving uptown, but evidently the owners of the paper have decided to stick close to Park Row.

The building now occupied by The Sun is more than 100 years old, having been erected in 1811 as the home of Tammany Hall. It has had a long and interesting political history. In 1867 the building was sold to the late Charles A. Dana and others and remodeled for The New York Sun's newspaper offices, and has been occupied by the paper ever since. Several years ago plans were prepared for erecting a tall building on the site, but they never materialized.

Plans for greatly increasing the membership during the ensuing fiscal year were made. The report of the treasurer showed that the finances of the Hibernians are in excellent condition.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Value of the Experiment.

ON Oct. 9, the day I arrived in Boston, I was again examined by Dr. Sargent, and the comparison between the two examinations was most interesting.

In commenting on my examination after coming from the woods Dr. Sargent said:

"Knowles is in the pink of condition if ever a man was.

"According to the system employed at Harvard, he tested 876 points before going into the woods and 954 on coming out.

"His test was 150 points better than the hardest test taken by the football men.

"He surpassed every test he took before starting on the trip.

"His total strength test was 974 points. A university crew test is 700.

"With his legs alone he lifted more than 1,000 pounds.

"The strength of his lungs increased five points on the manometer, while the capacity of his lungs increased forty-five cubic inches, a remarkable increase.

"Subjected to the action and the stimulus of the elements, Mr. Knowles' skin has become a perfect skin. It serves him as an overcoat, because it is so healthful that its pores close and shield him from drafts and sudden chills.

"His scientific experiment shows what a man can do when he is deprived of the luxuries which many people have come to regard as necessities.

"No deterioration, only splendid increase of vigor and vitality, came to him as a result of this experiment. Forced to eat roots and bark at times and to get whatever he could eat at irregular hours, his digestion is perfect, his health superb.

"Mr. Knowles has lost eleven pounds in weight; his height has increased one-tenth of an inch; his chest has gained nearly one-half inch; his waist line has decreased two inches. Some little weight has left his hips and thighs. His calves have enlarged, due, of course, to his long tramps in the woods.

"As to the lack of salt, it didn't seem to affect him in the slightest.

"Sandow was perfect in strength and development; Knowles is perfect in strength and development, but has probably the staying powers of three Sandows."

The following comparative table compiled by Dr. Sargent when compared with the measurements of Sandow furnishes interesting data:

When I speak of the boy scout movement I do so with enthusiasm. This movement more than anything else today is leading the people back to nature.

Of all human beings the boy is the one who should take the burden of this needed education upon his shoulders, because the boy of today will be the man of tomorrow.

First of all, boys are naturally closer to nature than grownups. Then they have that unquenchable enthusiasm, which after all is the biggest factor in accomplishing big things.

There is more or less tendency today on the part of parents to take responsibility away from the boy. They are catering to his every wish and as a result are weakening character rather than benefiting the child, as they feel they are doing. There is an abundance of the so called scientific training and too little of the practical.

Years ago, in the days of our grandfathers, the boy was very close to nature. He had more responsibilities. He had his chores to do, and he had to act more for himself than he does today. Today all kinds of luxury surround the average boy. Even the sons and daughters of the very poor have their clubs and, having them, enjoy more privileges than the boy of means of years ago. The boy today plays mechanically and does not depend upon his own resourcefulness as he used to. He does not have to make his own toys. They are bought for him instead.

I never had a toy bought for me in my life. Everything I had of this kind in my boyhood I had to make myself from materials that cost nothing.

I remember once the delight I took in a bow and arrow I made. It would have been impossible for me to have gone into a shop and with money given me by my father to purchase such a weapon. My father had to use his money in other ways. However, best of all, the bow and arrow that I made myself was far stronger and more practical than any I could have bought. And I had the satisfaction of knowing that I made it myself.

There were times when I envied the boys who had fine toys and good clothes. I often wondered if they had them why I could not have them too. I always had the ambition to catch up with those boys and to have the same things that they did.

I said to myself, "Some day I will have good clothes, and then I will be on an equal footing with those boys."

From that day to this it has been one continual fight, and I want to tell the boys right here that I believe that I am a bigger man because of this constant struggle.

I did not try to catch up with these other boys for the sake of just mixing with them. My ambition was to show them that I was as good as they were.

In my position of poverty the only way to show them at that time was to fight them, and I used to do this. I was a fighter with my hands. I could hold my own with any boy in this way.

My idea was all wrong. I believed that a man was not a man unless he could fight with his hands. If I fought with a boy and he conquered me I would meet him again. All this was before I used my brains.

Then I met men who fought with their brains. Boys, you all have brains. There is no need of fighting with your hands. It is a silly thing to fight with fists when a matter can be settled with your mental equipment.

I listened with great interest to these men who settled differences with cool words. They appealed to me. I believed in them.

I said to myself, "This is another kind of fight, and it is bigger and broader."

These men seemed to like me, and we drifted along together. I watched them and saw how they lived and how they looked. Then I would notice that people admired them.

I would say again to myself, "What can I do to become a man like these men?"

I knew these men had been educated in the schools. I hadn't. They were refined and could speak different languages, and I looked up to them. Boys, such a thing is one of the best things I know of. If there is some particular big man who is loved by the people and who appeals to you as being a big, worth while kind of man make him your ideal and work and fight to become a man like him.

Don't for a moment think that you cannot do this. Your success depends on your grit and determination. When you are discouraged, fight the harder. A man who always keeps at a thing is bound to win out. None of us realize what we really can do until we are called upon by necessity.

These men meant more to me than money ever could. They possessed something that money can never buy—big qualities.

I have seen much of life in the forest and on the sea. I know one thing above all else, and that is that a man must be fair to get anywhere. He must be true to his friends and true to himself.

The Golden Rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," is the best thing in the world to follow. It can't be beat. If every one lived up to it we would have a perfect world such as the Almighty wants us to have.

The boy scout oath is the embodiment of the Golden Rule.

Its laws are perfect. "A scout is trustworthy," reads the first law. A man in order to succeed must above all else be trustworthy.

Law No. 2 says, "A scout is loyal." Loyalty is one of the greatest words in the English language, because it goes with friendship. A true friend is one of man's greatest possessions.

Regarding the third law of the boy scouts, "A scout is helpful," I want to say that I believe this to be a most important law. Helping another is the truest sign of friendship.

However, I believe this doing things for others may be overdone. Perhaps I am treading on dangerous ground, but I do it honestly. I believe in aiding others only when they actually need help. If a person is ill he needs assistance. If a man or woman is infirm, offering to assist them in crossing a street, or in other ways is the right thing to do.

If a boy can relieve his parents of responsibility it is again a noble thing to do. But the world is full of what I call "hangers on." They live like the bank beaver in the woods—on what others do for them. They have so much done for them that they do not know how to do things for themselves, and they become valueless. I believe every boy and girl should want to do everything that they can for themselves. By not leaning on the other fellow they become masters of themselves. Depending upon their own resources, they can accomplish wonderful things.

I do not want the reader to misunderstand me. I believe in helping others, but only where it is absolutely necessary.

Perhaps I can well illustrate this point by relating a story, which is told by one of the biggest Salvation Army workers in New England. One of the biggest and kindest men of the city met him on the street one day and said:

"Captain, every day I am approached on the street by unfortunate men who ask me to help them. Sometimes I wonder when I give them something if they are deserving. I am blessed with money, and I want to help these men if they deserve to be helped, but I am constantly wondering if at times I am not encouraging begging and indolence."

"Well, I'll tell you," answered the captain, "if I were you I would change my method. When a man approaches you on the street and asks for something to eat and a night's lodging give him one of your cards with the address of the Salvation Army People's palace written on the back. Tell him it is good for food and a bed at our home. If that man comes to us I will charge his expenses for the night up to you."

The wealthy man thought this was a fine idea and during the next two months gave away twenty-five of his cards to men who approached him for aid on the street.

In all this time he did not receive the slightest word from the Salvation Army authorities.

One day he called up the captain on the telephone.

"I must owe you quite a bill," he said.

"Why, no," answered the captain; "you owe us just 25 cents. One man with your card has come to us since I met you."

The rich man was amazed. It showed him that out of the twenty-five cards he had given away only one had been a truly worthy case. All the others had wanted money instead of food and a bed.

However, a boy instinctively knows when he should help another, and when his instinct tells him to he should never fail in his duty. The boy also knows that courtesy is a great factor in the world and that he should be polite and always considerate of others.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss, and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

The plain blouse with flaring collar makes one of the features of the late season.

This is so essentially youthful in effect that it is admirable for young girls and also for women of girlish figures.

Since it can be made with either long or short sleeves, it is an exceedingly practical garment that can be utilized in many ways.

In one small view, the neck is shown with a rolled over collar and, for many purposes, that finish is a good one, but there is a tendency to the open neck even with the plainest blouses.

The tuck over each shoulder provides becoming fullness and effectually conceals the armhole seam, but the sleeves are separate and joined to the blouse.

For the medium size, the blouse will require three and one-fourth yards of material twenty-seven inches wide.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for girls of sixteen and eighteen years and for small women. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 8342, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

FISH DINNER.

DINNER MENU.
Boiled Salmon With Tartare Sauce.
Peas in Turnip Cups.
Celery Cream.
Riced Potatoes.
Cucumber Salad.
Apple Pie.
Coffee.

A MOST acceptable way of serving salmon is with tartare sauce as suggested here. The menu outlines a well balanced dinner.

A Clever Plan.

Peas In Turnip Cups.—Steam white turnips till tender. Then scrape and scoop out the tops until you have formed a little white cup. Cut a slice from the bottom to make the cups stand evenly. Season each with salt, pepper and butter. Then fill with fresh cooked or canned peas, heaping the peas in the center of the cups.

Celery Cream.—Boil celery until very soft and squeeze it through a sieve to give a pint of celery. Add to this a quarter of a pint of thick white sauce and a tablespoonful of grated cheese and let cool. Then add a quarter of a pint of liquid aspic jelly and stir in slowly a pint of whipped cream. Season with cayenne and celery salt. Pour it into molds and put them by the ice for several hours.

Served With Sauce.

Boiled Salmon With Sauce Tartare.—Cover two slices of salmon steak with a quart of bouillon and simmer until the salmon is thoroughly done. Remove very carefully, so the fish is not broken, and garnish with capers, hard boiled eggs and parsley.

Serve with sauce tartare, which is a thick mayonnaise dressing, to which has been added one-half tablespoonful each of finely chopped capers, pickles, olives, parsley, one-half a shallot finely chopped and one-quarter teaspoonful of powdered tarragon.

Like Pumpkin Pie.

Apple Pie.—In flavor and appearance this tastes much like a pumpkin pie: Grate some fine, rather sweet, apples after peeling and coring them. To the pulp of three apples add a cupful of sugar, two eggs, a teaspoonful of ginger, a scant one of mace and half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Bake in a hot oven, with a lower crust only.

The Boy That Teased His Little Dog.

"I threw him in."

"BILLY BOYNTON has the cunningest little bull pup," said Jack to daddy one evening.

"Yes," charged Evelyn, "and you boys tease the little fellow awfully, and you're spoiling his disposition. I've seen you."

"Yes! Tell, of course!" cried Jack.

"Don't quarrel, kiddies. But you boys had better be careful how you tease that little beastie. As he is a bull pup, maybe he will get even with you after a little with his sharp white teeth. Besides, it is wrong to tease small, weak animals, anyway. I will tell you what cured me of it. Do you remember the little black and tan dog I used to own called Joe?"

"Oh, yes, daddy!" answered Evelyn. "You mean the little fellow that lived to be seventeen years old?"

"Yes," said daddy. "My daddy brought him home for me when he was the littlest puppy you ever saw. I remember daddy carried him in his overcoat pocket. He was so tiny that he looked like a rat. And how we laughed when he capered around the kitchen table on which daddy had placed him and barked in the funniest, snappiest, little bark you ever heard! It was as if a bark had an echo and you heard the echo.

"Well, Joe and I were great chums, and we played together a great deal. He was a brainy little fellow, and I taught him many tricks. Of course daddy really taught him the tricks, but I used to like to think I did, and so daddy let me think so. I was not more than eight years old.

"Joe and I got along very well, except that I used to tease him. I used to like to make him bark in that funny way and whine and show his funny little teeth. So I'm ashamed to say I used to pinch his tail and take his meat away from him and things like that.

"I used to like to see him swim very much. He was the funniest sight. He didn't like to, either, but when he was once in he could swim like a fish. So I used to chuck him in whenever I could.

"The spring he was two years old I was walking through the fields with him one Sunday. There was a little pond of water in which pieces of ice were still floating. I tried to get Joe to go in, but he wouldn't. Then I threw him in.

"I was never so sorry for anything in my life. He swam in, but how he shivered! He ran home, and I after him, and he caught the most awful cold. We had hard work getting him over it, and all the rest of his life he had colds and rheumatism caused by my having thrown him in the cold water.

"I was always sorry, but that didn't help the little dog any, and I never teased little helpless creatures again."

"I guess I won't, either, any more, daddy," said Jack thoughtfully.

COUNT VAN NEST TRIES ABILITY IN NEW ROLE

Now a Justice of the Peace, He Holds Court On His Front Porch.

Following a trial in which the counsel for the defense and the defendant were given an indescribable "ride" of words by Justice of the Peace "Count" Van Ness yesterday afternoon, decision was reserved in the case of Frances Sinker against Stephen Sinker, the latter being charged with the non-support of his wife and five children. Going back to the days when justice was meted out according to number of sheep a man had in his pasture, Justice of the Peace Van Ness held court on the front porch of his home on East Front street.

During the proceedings the "Count" took occasion to expound on the genealogy of V. W. Nash, Jr., counsel for the defense and called him many other things besides "pretty boy." Much time was consumed in hearing the testimony offered on both sides of the case and after a prelude of unprintable oratory the justice announced that he would reserve his decision until noon today. The defendant and his counsel and the complainant and her counsel, W. S. Angleman, met in the office of the latter to await the arrival of the decision bearer. After a short delay Justice Van Ness arrived on the scene and announced that after twenty-four hours deliberation he had concluded it best to see the defendant in private, inasmuch as Counselor Nash was in the office at the time the justice instructed the accused to meet him at the East Front street courtroom alone to hear his fate. Whatever the justice's plans might have been in the matter, Mr. Nash did not wait to learn but ordered his client to remain away from the place and it now seems probable that the case will be carried to the higher courts.

In the opinion of the counsel for the defense and the accused party, the court proceedings at the justice's house were biased and the treatment accorded them at the place was not what it should be.

HAIR PULLING CONTEST.

A hair pulling contest on Pearl street, the borough, yesterday morning, resulted in the arraignment of Mrs. Mary Clark today, on a complaint brought against her by Mrs. Albert Cain, of the same street. The hair pulling was the outcome of a quarrel over children, and excitement reigned for but a few moments. Recorder Hand imposed a fine of $5 on Mrs. Clark.

SKINS ON EXHIBITION.

Two rattlesnake skins, one of the male and the other of the female variety, are on exhibition in the boys' rooms of the local Y. M. C. A. The trophies were presented to Boys' Secretary C. William Bingeman, by a farmer who caught the reptiles in the Northern part of the State. They are unusually fine specimens, each being over four feet in length and beautifully marked.

ONLY WANTED TO SPOIL HIS FACE

"I'se wasn't gwine ter do 'im any bodily arm, I'se was just gwine ter smash his face," said Joseph Grant, colored, when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning charged with disorderly conduct and striking a white man. The trouble between Grant and his pal, George Gilbert, and two white men, James Caulfield and Joseph Cregar, started in a local hotel when Gilbert pushed Cregar into a cigar lighter.

The two colored men were ejected from the place and waited outside for Caulfield and Cregar to make their appearance. Fifteen minutes later when the white men emerged from the place they were confronted by the two negroes and a number of sympathizers. Gilbert announced to Cregar that he was going to beat him up and tried to do so but the white man and his companion got away.

Gilbert and Grant, who were partially intoxicated, according to their own statements in court this morning, created general disorder in the centre of the city, and Patrolman Henderschott placed them under arrest. Grant was fined $3 with the option of spending ten days in the county jail and Gilbert was let go.

POLICE AFTER THOSE WHO BUY FOR "BLACK-LIST" MEN

Complaints have been brought to the attention of the police regarding the practise which local saloon keepers are alleged to have been making in selling intoxicants to men on the "black-list," and Judge DeMeza announced in the city court this morning that determined efforts will now be made to bring these offenders to justice. It is a misdemeanor for any individual to purchase liquor for a man who has been "black-listed" and there is a severe sentence provided for an offender.

Arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning William Mullin, of North avenue, admitted under cross examination that a friend had purchased liquor for him last night but refused to divulge his name. He was picked up in an intoxicated condition by Patrolman Muir last night and was remanded this morning to await further investigation. Mullin has been on the "black-list" for several years and the police intend to deal severely with the person who purchased the liquor for him last night.

FAILED TO SUPPORT WIFE AND CHILDREN

George Green Will Now Have to Turn Over His Entire Wages To Family.

Charged with non-support of his wife and four children, two of whom are suffering from tuberculosis, George Green was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, and instructed to turn over his entire wages, $14, each week to his family. As a means of forcing him to live up to his promise, his employer, George O. Stevens, agreed to see to it that his wife received the money each week.

The Green family has been under the city's charge for sometime past and previous efforts to make the father support his family have proven futile.

In imposing this penalty on Green, Judge DeMeza said: "It's too bad there isn't a place where I can send a man like you where you will be compelled to crack stone and your earnings turned over to your family. I would take delight in sentencing you to jail, but in doing so I would deprive your family of the support they need and are entitled to."

PLAINFIELD BOYS LEADERS AT CAMP

Local Y. M. C. A. Campers Well Up In Athletic and Aquatic Standings.

Lake Wawayanda, Aug. 26—A party of camp strikers are the only persons left at the State Y. M. C. A. camp here. They will occupy several days in making things shipshape for the winter. Perusal of the camp record discloses but little illness and few injuries during the season.

The Ridgewood boys succeeded in capturing the cups for both athletic and aquatic sports, according to the records now being compiled. In field sports their point score was 1,768, while in aquatics they beat this by twenty-one points.

In athletics the other associations finished with Orange, Montclair, Plainfield and Elizabeth in the order named. In aquatics Montclair was second, with Elizabeth, Plainfield and Morristown following.

Three records were broken. George Anderson, of Ridgewood, smashed the seventy-five-yard dash record for 110-pound contestants, and broke the hop-step-and-jump record. Clement Boyd bettered by a foot the record he made last year in the running broad jump.

ACCUSED LIQUOR SELLER TURNED OVER BY BONDSMAN

James Smith, of South Second street, one of the accused liquor dealers whose trial is set down for Friday in the city court, was rearrested this morning, when Morris Latzko, his bondsman, asked to be relieved of the responsibility. He was arraigned in court and a new bond for $300 filed out.

Smith was summoned to court on Monday last, but failed to appear. Patrolman Martin Flatley was sent for him this morning and brought the man to headquarters. Latzko was fearful that the man would skip town before the hearing came off. Smith and Latzko are both accused of three alleged infractions of the city excise ordinance.

HELD LAWN PARTY IN HONOR OF NIECE'S FIRST BIRTHDAY

A birthday party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John K. Van Ness, on East Front street, this afternoon, in honor of their niece, Miss Violet Margaret Woods. This is the little girl's first birthday and a number of friends were present at the occasion.

The party was held on the lawn of the Van Ness homestead and games, music and refreshments were enjoyed.

TOOLS ARE MISSING.

The night watchman at the Sauer Motor Company's plant reported to the police last night that some one had stolen a box of tools from the place sometime around 6:30 last evening. No trace of the culprit has been found as yet.

FELL FROM A TREE AND IS BADLY HURT

John Catter, While Engaged In Trimming Work, Lost Balance His

While trimming shade trees on Madison avenue shortly before noon today, John Catter, of 508 West Second street, fell from one of the trees and was seriously injured. He was removed in the ambulance to Muhlenberg Hospital in an unconscious condition. Shortly after reaching that institution the victim regained consciousness but his injuries are said to be of a serious nature, the exact extent of which cannot be ascertained at the present time.

Employes working with Catter said that he was engaged in cutting a limb when the accident occurred and it is supposed that he lost his balance. He fell a distance of thirty feet to the road and was picked up by his companions.

CIRCUIT JUDGESHIP FOR GEO. S. SILZER

Trenton, Aug. 26.—Governor Fielder yesterday named Prosecutor George S. Silzer as Circuit Court judge to succeed Charles S. Black, who was recently elevated to the Supreme Court bench to succeed the late Justice Willard P. Voorhees.

Regarding the appointment of Mr. Silzer, the Governor said:

"The appointment of Prosecutor Silzer to the judgeship is a purely personal one. My long association with him in the Legislature convinces me that he has given the State the benefit of very valuable work. He was an able, conscientious and honest legislators. He is a good lawyer with a large practice and will have to make a great sacrifice when he takes the place which he is eminently qualified to fill.

"All things being equal, I think I ought to appoint younger lawyers to these positions so that the State in later years may have the benefit of their training for many years to come, and because the judges ought to be kept on the bench regardless of their politics."

George S. Silzer was born in New Brunswick, April 14, 1870. He was educated in the public schools and graduated from the High School in 1888, being the valedictorian of his class. He was admitted to the bar as an attorney in November, 1892, and as counselor in November, 1899. Since then he has practiced his profession in New Brunswick, residing in Metuchen.

He has served on the Board of Examiners for candidates for admission to the bar, and also in the New Brunswick Board of Aldermen as a member from the Third ward, and as chairman of the Democratic county committee. He was unanimously nominated for State Senator by his party in 1906 and was elected by a plurality of 106 over the then Senator William H. C. Jackson. He made his fight on the principle of anti-bribery. In 1909 he was renominated without opposition and was reelected by an increased plurality of 1,879 over Judge Hicks, Republican.

It was on March 26, 1912, that Mr. Silzer was named as prosecutor of Middlesex.

MISS BESLER MAY BE IN HEART OF WAR ZONE

News was received by Representative Tuttle that Miss Helen Besler, daughter of Vice-president W. G. Besler, of the New Jersey Central Railroad, who resides in this city, is safe and comfortable at Coucy-le-Chateau. This place, however, is said to be on the very edge of the war zone, if not already within it.

MEXICAN FEDERAL TROOPS IN REVOLT

8,000 Said to Have Started Trouble—Problem For General Funston.

Vera Cruz, Aug. 26—A general revolt among Federal soldiers seems to have broken out in various places in Mexico. Word has reached here that 8,000 of them, under General Ortega, revolted at Salina Cruz. Nothing is known about General Villa's movements, and many fear a fresh outbreak.

To make matters worse all Federal soldiers, already mustered out, are thronging Vera Cruz. They have been falsely instructed that the United States army here will take care of them and all have been paid in money that Carranza has decreed to be worthless. As a result many of them are penniless and on the verge of starvation.

General Funston will have to face this situation, but as yet he has announced no plans. It is generally recognized, however, that the problem is serious and may cause trouble.

SAMUEL WILSON SPEAKS AT ANTI-SALOON MEETING

The first meeting of the campaign now being held by the Anti-Saloon League was held Monday night, in Warren chapel with Samuel Wilson, of Jersey City, as the speaker. Mr. Wilson outlined the work of the league in a very clear way and also touched upon national ends, speaking especially of one of the States that has become "dry."

In the course of his speech Mr. Wilson spoke of the value of the Employers' Liability Act that has been passed. The prohibition fight is now on in six States of the Union. The speaker also gave some interesting statistics which showed the percentage of law violations that were due directly to liquor. The proportion was very large. As a concluding point Mr. Wilson stated that this question lay in the hands of the voters and it will be the people who will have to finally decide the matter.

DEATH OF THOMAS LYNESS.

Thomas J. Lyness, of Union street, died last evening, after an illness covering some weeks. Mr. Lyness was a machinist by trade, and was well-known throughout the city. Aside from his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Miss Mae Lyness; two sons, Thomas and John W. Lyness. One sister, Mrs. Thomas DeMeza, of Duer street, the borough, also survives. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

CARNIVAL MATINEE.

The committee in charge of the Knights of Columbus carnival at West Front street and Madison avenue has arranged to have all of the amusements opened for mid-week matinee tomorrow afternoon. The Johnny J. Jones Company will have all of its attractions going full sway on this occasion.

MRS. E. M. STELLE.

Mrs. Eliza Maria Stelle, widow of the late Isaac M. Stelle, died this morning at her home on Sprague avenue after a lingering illness. Mrs. Stelle has been an invalid practically all her life. She was eighty-eight years of age, and left no near relatives. The funeral services and interment will be private.

Paris, Aug. 26 (Central News Cable).—That the Allies are making up for lost ground was shown today when it was officially announced that the British and French troops have retaken positions in Belgium. These positions are characterized as advantageous ones.

Late this forenoon the French war office issued an announcement saying that advices received from the front declare the big battle now in progress is going in favor of the allies.

The War Office issued an official announcement today in which it was stated that an attack by the Germans on the French army in Alsace was repulsed, the Germans suffering heavy losses. The German attack was directed from a number of points simultaneously, the evident intention being to rush the French off their feet. The latter, however, were prepared for the movement. British reenforcements are coming to France, it is also officially announced.

Referring to the fighting near Mons, the Petit Parisien says that the British bore the brunt of six furious attacks. Wounded British soldiers declare that the allies raised a veritable hectacomb of German corpses near Mons.

It is officially announced that a German prince has been killed in battle, and the Ministry of War says it presumes that it was Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Blucksburg.

Vivid accounts of the fighting between the allies and the Germans near Mons, Belgium, are being told here by Englishmen arriving from the Belgian city. The Britishers they say fought like a solid wall. Six times they were furiously attacked by as many different bodies of Germans and each time they beat them back. The arrivals estimate the British casualties at 2,000.

Near Mons, it is said, the allies made a great sacrifice of the Germans, portions of the battlefield being covered with German dead heaped to such a height that the Turees, the French African troops, in their attack on the Prussian guards experienced trouble in making their way over the dead bodies. This attack by the Turees was of the most desperate character.

London, Aug. 26 (Central News Cable).—It is announced here that the allies, after their repulse, have resumed the offensive. The opposing armies, it is said, have clashed at Charleroi, Belgium, on the line of the Sambre River from Namur to Maubeuge in the Department of Nord, France. It was announced in Paris by the French War Office, last night, that a great battle is on between Maubeuge and the Donon River and that on this battle will depend the fate of the war for France, and for Alsace with her. The fact that the fighting is now going on at Charleroi indicates that the allies are pushing forward.

With the French and British forces retired from the defense of Namur and the fortifications in the hands of the enemy, censorship has addd to the mystery surrounding the unexpected downfall of the fort. It is now denied that the city has fallen. The denial carries the confirmation of the previous announcement that the advance of the German armies through Belgium and Luxemburg into France has been checked by the allies.

Russia will put 3,000,000 men in Germany and 2,000,000 in Austria within ten or fifteen days, according to the Russian General, Spirovich, who is quoted to that effect in a despatch from Rome.

The Paris correspondent of Reuters' Telegram Co. says that a raid by a German cavalry division in French territory is reported. The Germans encountered a regiment of French artillery which practically annihilated them.

The Daily News published a despatch from its Antwerp correspondent saying it is reported there that the American minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlock, has sent an energetic protest to the German government against the hurling of bombs into Antwerp from Zeppelin airships.

A despatch from Paris says that the War Office has issued the following communication: "In Lorraine the allied armies have taken up a combined offensive movement. The battle recommenced yesterday and is still raging.

Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today that the Germans in Togoland, following the destruction of the wireless installation, now offer to capitulate on certain terms. "We have [illegible]d," the Premier said, "That [illegible] just surrender unconventional[illegible] our troops have occupied an important position."

The Russian Embassy is in receipt of telegrams from the general staff at St. Petersburg which announces fresh Russian victories against both Germany and Austria. These messages declare that Russian troops now occupy the whole of the Eastern and Southern half of Eastern Prussia.

An official announcement received here from St. Petersburg says that the Russians continue to pour into Austria. The Austrians made a serious resistance to the Czar's forces but were forced back, the Russian offensive then proceeding.

It is also announced that an Austrian aeroplane was brought down by the guns of the Russians. Two Austrian officers were killed while another was wounded.

The allied armies have assumed a combined offensive movement in Lorraine, the French War Office is quoted as announcing, according to a despatch from Paris.

It is added that at the time the bulletin was issued the battle recommenced yesterday was still going on.

How Emperor Wilhelm, of Germany, in a fit of anger tore off his English medals and orders was told today by the Daily Express. It is said.

"When Sir William Edward Goschen went to say good-bye to Emperor Wilhelm, the latter stalked into the room where the British Ambassador was waiting. The Emperor was wearing several English medals and orders on his breast, and these he tore off, saying: "Tell your King that that is what I think of him and his medals," whereupon the Emperor marched out of the room.

This story is not carried by any other London newspaper.

The following message has been sent to the Italian Government by General Corad, chief of the Austrian staff, according to a news agency despatch from Rome: "The reports published in Italy that Austria-Hungary has aggressive intentions against Italy in order to revenge herself for Italy's failure to take part in the war are absolutely without foundation and are stigmatized as malignant efforts put forth by a third party."

Stockholm, Aug. 26 (Central News Cable).—The waters near the Aland Islands, which are situated near the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, are reported to be the scene of a naval battle between German and Russian warships. Cannonading in the Baltic Sea, according to reports reaching here, is being heard in towns to the east and north of Stockholm.

Hong Kong, Aug. 26.—The German steamship Elizabeth, according to a report which reached here today, was captured in mid-ocean by a warship. Later she was sent to the bottom by a shell. It is said that over fifty persons were drowned. The shot which sunk the vessel is thought to have been fired by a Japanese warship, but there is no confirmation.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

There are people today who delight in saying they get everything from "out of town." The purchasing of any article from Chicago does not necessarily mean superiority in quality, or a reduction in price. This is the delusion which a good many live under and don't know it.

An unjustifiable preference is given to merchandise which might very advantageously be procured here in Plainfield. It is incumbent on every Plainfielder to encourage home industry. We are aware of the marvelous commercial expansion of Great Britain; this is mainly due to the hearty support given to English merchantmen by their countrymen throughout the British Empire. An article inscribed "Made in England" is invariably preferred to any other in the estimation of English people. It is this simple faith in the stability of one's country, which impresses foreign nations with the merit of English goods.

Unfortunately in America there is an abnormal craving for freakish things—the more un-American it is the better they like it. This is very much to be regretted.

"Encourage home industry" should be the patriotic motto of Plainfielders.

Without the co-operation of the citizens of our home town it is unreasonable to expect business to flourish or prices to be within the reach of the common people. Notwithstanding this, an unprejudice survey of the business methods in Plainfield compare favorably with out-of-town rivals.

A brief description of a few interesting items will, perhaps, illustrate the truth of our position. The writer purchased a pair of rubbers last winter from Force's. They were worn in a machine shop covered with steel clippings, and also went through a hard canvassing trip; besides the recent heavy rain season, and they are yet serviceable. This pair cost only a dollar. In Tepper's, dress goods purchased have been so satisfactory in quality and price, that we have abandoned the idea of doing better in New York.

The steadty stream of patrons pouring into the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and Scheuer's, is conclusive evidence that our local merchants deserve the public support and sympathy.

Home-seekers could do no better than locate right here in Plainfield. The real estate business is flourishing. A suburban town like Plainfield ought to attract the very men who breathe its atmosphere to build and possess a home of their own.

The question naturally arises, is it better to wait until one is financially situated, or to live in a mortgaged house? Which ever way may be preferable, it is a fact that probably ninety-five per cent. of the residences in the city, or near the city, and that fully sixty per cent. of the country houses are either under mortgage or were obtained with the aid of a mortgage. So universal is this custom that it would be difficult to argue against mortgaged homes.

Economists of every class, and leading philanthropists are unanimously agreed that it is preferable to own a mortgaged home than no home at all.

WRENCHED ANKLE.

Clifford Fenner, of First street, is detained from his duties on the Central Railroad by a wrenched ankle sustained on Saturday afternoon while working on the Boice, Runyon & Company dock at Plainfield. The dock is practically being rebuilt by the construction department of the railroad. Mr. Fenner, who is a member of the gang of which Ambrose James, of Columbia street, is foreman, was working on a scaffold when the board upon which he was standing broke in two, causing him to drop fifteen feet on lumber piled up under the dock. The whole weight of his body landed on one foot and it is considered most fortunate that his ankle was not broken.

BITTEN BY SNAKE.

Walter Nelson, son of Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, of New Market, was bitten by a snake, that is believed to have been a copperhead of the poisonous variety, yesterday afternoon. Walter was loading stone on a wagon from the slope of the neighboring mountain to be used in the erection of a dam just below the new icehouse for Dr. Nelson. He was in the act of lifting a stone from a pile when he felt a stinging sensation on one of his fingers. Releasing his hold on the stone he perceived a copper colored snake gliding away. The flight of the snake was so rapid he had no opportunity of slaying it. Dr. Nelson happened to be on the scene at the time and leaving the horse and wagon, Walter was taken by him in his automobile to the Pennock pharmacy where the proper treatment was given the bite. Dr. Buchanan, of Plainfield, who was immediately summoned, assisted Dr. Nelson. The treatment was successful, as Walter was able to be out and about this morning. If any of the poison germs had not been destroyed by the treatment any alarming symptoms would have been noted before this morning.

A CASE OF HONESTY.

All those having no faith in the honesty of their fellow-man, that is in instances where dollars and cents are the consideration, had best read this. On Sunday night, C. L. Wahl, of Washington avenue, lost a five dollar bill on North avenue. He discovered his loss in Paul Ratti's store when he put his hand into his pocket to pay for some goods and discovered that the greenback was missing. Knowing that the bill had been lost somewhere along North avenue, as it was in his possession about ten minutes previous when he had put his hand into his pocket at the corner of North and Washington avenues, and assisted the cause of the Salvation Army, Wahl retraced his steps. John P. Fenner, of Washington avenue, noted Wahl coming slowly along the pavement with head down, furtively taking in every angle of the walk. "What have you lost?" asked Mr. Fenner. "A five dollar bill," replied Mr. Wahl. "I guess I have what belongs to you then," said Mr. Fenner, "as I picked one up about five minutes ago."

That street, with several others, were recently accepted from the H. C. Lockwood Realty Company, who macadamized it from North avenue to Paterson road. That section of the borough has grown rapidly and the increased traffic made the need for other than a dirt road.

Mrs. William Roberts and sons, Holton and Robert, are spending several weeks at Delaware City, Del.

Work has been started on the erection of a two and one-half story house at the corner of North and Farley avenues, the borough, by a man from Brooklyn who recently bought the property from H. C. Lockwood. Real estate and building, which have been slow all summer, are beginning to liven up with the coming of fall and work will soon be started on seven or eight houses on land purchased from H. C. Lockwood, the owners preferring to await the coming of cool weather to build.

The anti-suffrage organization which was organized in the borough last spring will start activities this fall after doing nothing during the summer. The association was organized at the home of Mrs. Burton P. Hall, on North avenue, with nearly fifty members. The officers elected for a period of one year were: President, Mrs. Burton P. Hall; secretary, Mrs. James Carter; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Robinson.

The people living in the "Big Woods" section of the township where the new school is to be built soon are planning to ask the Board of Education to permit them to use the building as a social center. The Board has discussed the matter and are about agreed to let it be used for that purpose occasionally with the understanding that those using the building will pay for the light and heat. At present there is no building in that section that can be used for that purpose and any one wishing any amusements must go to Westfield.

SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE

New York, Aug. 26—Discussing the chances for the development of trade in South America, Ashbel Green, president of the River Plate Trading Company, declared there is a splendid opportunity in South America for Americans if they will accommodate themselves to the customs and methods of Latin Americans.

"One important thing," said Mr. Green, "is that Americans must remember that the Latin-Americans have their own ways of doing business. They have different customs, different habits, different ideas. We cannot go down there and immediately announce that we will show them how to do business; that we will tell them what they want and how they will take our goods. To do this will make things worse instead of better."

READY FOR VOYAGE OF RED CROSS SHIP TO WAR ZONE

New York, Aug. 26—"Everything is in readiness for the voyage of the Red Cross ship," says Miss Mabel Boardman, chairman of the Red Cross executive committee in Washington, now here to charter a vessel to carry the supplies and nurses. With her are Rear Admiral R. M. Watt, chief constructor of the United States navy, and Major-Gen. George Davis, members of the Red Cross ship committee.

"No ship has been decided upon as yet," said Miss Boardman. "However, everything in the way of salves, bandages, iodine and other supplies are ready for loading as soon as the vessel is obtained. One hundred and twenty nurses and thirty physicians, all of them expert surgeons, are ready to start at a moment's notice."

DEMOCRATS AT SEA.

The Plainfield Democratic Club are to hold their regular meeting next Monday evening at their club rooms, at which time it is expected that the committee which is at present at work securing candidates for local offices will report. The Democrats of the city appear to be at sea at present, as but one candidate for councilmanic honors has yet actually expressed himself as such, the one being John Coyle, of Waynewood place, in the Fourth ward. Candidates for the mayoralty are as few and far between as candidates for the Common Council.

LODGE NOTE.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., is to have important business presented at their meeting tomorrow evening, at which time S. E. Ward is to be installed as prelate of the lodge. Other important business matters are to be considered.

WAR NEWS

Cable).—Austrian troops are massing on the Italian frontier. The American embassy, through the consuls, has advised all Americans to leave Italy. Americans doing otherwise remain at their own risk, the warning says.

The Messagero has received a despatch from its correspondent at Nish, Servia, saying that the total Austrian prisoners in Servia number 10,000. The Austrian casualties since the commencement of the war have been in the third southern army. Some of the prisoners which the Servians have taken declare that the Austrian mobilization bore a great resemblance to a fiasco. It is estimated that fully forty per cent. of the men called upon to serve failed to answer.

Amsterdam, Aug. 26. (Central News Cable).—The indications are increasing that should Germany prove victorious in the war there can be but little hope for the maintenance of the independence of Belgium. Reports received today stated that Germany has assumed charge of a portion of Belgium for civil administration. Freiherr Von Der Goltz has been named as military governor, while the civil government will be administered by the civil governor of Aix La Chapelle in the Rhine provinces of Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 26 (By Wireless).—According to an official announcement made here today, Lieut. General Prince Frederic of Saxe Meiningen was killed by a shell before Namur on August 23.

Official reports say that a battle of three days' duration at Kraznik, in Russian Poland, twenty-eight miles southwest of Lublin, ended yesterday in a complete Austrian victory. The Russian forces were repulsed along the entire front of seventy kilometers and are now in full flight in the direction of Lublin.

Nish, Servia, Aug. 26 (Central News Cable).—It is stated here that the losses of the Austrians in the battle of the Drina River with the Servians continue to be augmented.

Out of 300,000 Austrians, according to a story here, 15,000 were killed, 30,000 wounded and 15,000 taken prisoners. Among the captured equipment of the Austrians are seventy-five guns.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Ambassador Jusserand, the French envoy, declared today that the French and Belgian forces advance in Belgium had been in the nature of a reconnissiance in force, and that they had been more or less prepared for a setback. The allies, it was contended, merely fell back to the original line of defense from which they had moved to attack. The ambassador denied knowledge of the reported victory of the German forces at Namur, although this report came from the British Press Bureau in London.

News of a victory of the Belgian troops over three divisions of the German army at Malines and Valvorde, Belgium, was received today at the Belgian legation here. The despatch declares the advancing Germans were thrown back with heavy losses and were being puursued by the Belgian cavalry.

New York, Aug. 26.—Two steamships arrived today from Europe bringing Americans returning after many difficulties in reaching seaports. They were the Oscar II, of the Scandanavian-American Line, arriving from Copenhagen, and the Tormina, of the Italian Line, from Genoa.

As a result of the cable from Rome stating that Americans had been advised to leave Italy, the Delaware and Hudson Transportation Company has cancelled the sailing of the steamship Oceana, which was scheduled to leave here next Saturday for Italian ports, flying the American flog.

Halted by the British cruiser Essex off Fire Island, the Austrian freight steamer Ida is docked here today after being held up by the British vessel while the English officers examined her papers to decide whether the Ida should be allowed to enter this port or not.

The Ida's papers showed that she had steamed into Quebec after war was declared and not being equipped with wireless did not know of the hostilities. The Quebec Prize Court held that she should not be held and was accordingly allowed to steam to New York under the promise that she would not try to avoid capture after reaching this port.

It was said at the Austrian consulate today, that a trade has been effected whereby the Austrian Government agreed to release an English ship which entered an Austrian port under similar conditions.

Officials of the large express companies with offices here are facing today an unparalleled situation. With many European hotels closed by the war and Americans fleeing for home minus baggage, the companies are being asked to do the impossible. Requests for baggage left in Germany, France, Italy, England, Switzerland and other European points flow in by wire, cable and letters. The following despatches sum up the situation:

"Can you undertake to locate and forward baggage left in Munich Can you ship from Paris to England. Will you get my trunks from hotel in France ,and is it possible to have them shipped home."

From the foreign managers in Europe the following were received today: "Impractical to ship baggage from Switzerland and French interior points. Conditions changing daily. Traffic may soon open any day. Many hotels where baggage is left have closed during the war. Can't do a thing in Germany, Belgium or Austria-Hungary."

In the meantime the express companies are busy and it is now planned to ship baggage between Marseilles and Paris, in either direction, via canal and Havre and Paris, in either direction, via. the river Seine. The average time is about forty days to the United States.

San Francisco, Aug. 26—Action against the San Francisco Chronicle by the United States War Department may be started following information furnished today to the United States District Attorney here by the United States Army. The information is that the newspaper published in connection with an article on coast artillery corps, photographs of the mortar batteries and disappearing rifles of Fort Winfield Scott. Under the Federal law, it is asserted, this is punishable by fine or imprisonment.

A similar case brought by the War Department is pending against the editor of Sunset, a monthly magazine, of this city, which published illustrations showing the defense of the Panama Canal, the author of the article and the photographers who took the pictures ,and the aviator in whose machine they crossed the Isthmus.

Cincinnati, Aug. 26—Cincinnati will soon suffer from a famine in foreign beer. The supply of imported beer is now almost exhausted and no more can be obtained because of the war. As a result the myriad Germans and Austrians of this city, who drink only imported beers, will be compelled to resort to the native article or go dry.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH IS SINKING

Death Is Only a Matter of Hours, Is Report.

Copenhagen, Aug. 26.—News from German sources confirms the report that Emperor Francis Joseph has been stricken and is in a very serious condition.

It is reported in Berlin that his exertions in endeavoring to get the army ready to assist Germany brought on an attack which forced him to his bed, and he has gradually grown weaker.

One report reaching here stated that his death was considered only a matter of hours. It is impossible, however, to obtain news of his exact condition or the precise nature of his malady.

CARDINAL FARLEY IN ROME.

Asks All to Pray For Worthy Successor to Late Pope.

Rome, Aug. 26.—Cardinal Farley arrived here from Chiasso. The cardinal is in excellent health. He expressed deep grief at the death of the pope, who always had treated him, he said, like a son, with the utmost affection, and also because he was convinced that the influence of the pope, could he have lived, would have ended the present European war.

Cardinal Farley asks that all the people of New York pray both in their public and in their private devotions for the election of a pope who may be a worthy successor to the saintly Pius X.

Over 50,000 Wounded In Fight With Kaiser's Troops.

The Hague, Aug. 26.—First indications of the number of Belgians killed and wounded in the German invasion of Belgium were given today with the arrival of wounded and destitute from the little kingdom. It is understood here that the Belgian wounded in the fighting against the Germans will number 50,000. While the first casualty list published contains the names of 2,000 Belgian dead, conservative estimates made here place the total number of dead at about 16,000.

Holland will do all in her power to assist those who are fleeing before the German army from Belgium. Besides the wounded soldiers arriving at various places in Holland, women and children are also pouring in. A camp for those Belgians, of whom there are thousands in Holland today, is now being constructed at Oudenirdum, in Friesland.

AUSTRIA BREAKS WITH JAPAN

Dual Monarchy Declares War on the Mikado.

Vienna, Aug. 26.—Austria declared war against Japan. Formal declaration was served on the Japanese ambassador, and he received his passports and will leave for Rome as soon as possible.

The declaration of war was decided on at a council of the ministry at which the action of Japan in declaring war on Germany was discussed. Under the terms of the treaty of alliance with Germany it was agreed that there was nothing for Austria to do but formally to declare war, inasmuch as in this instance Japan was the aggressor and had raised the issue.

German Cruisers In Gulf.

New Orleans, Aug. 26.—Two German cruisers are reported in the gulf of Mexico, just off the mouth of the Mississippi, and as a result ships flying flags of the allied powers are tied up here.

WHERE IT CONCERNS US.

With something like four-fifths of the world's civilized people engaged in a destructive warfare in Europe, Plainfielders often ask with seriousness, "Where does all this concern us? What does it mean to this city?"

With all Europe one vulture-luring battle-ground, the hallowed places of art, the palace of universal peace, the models of much of our own municipal government and public school systems, the discoveries of many modern factors in public service and human welfare crushed under foot by the mighty armies of the war lords who have breathed a prayer and then gone forth to wage their might despite the right, this war does concern the world at peace as much as that which is at war. So it concerns us.

And how? Financially and commercially, the affects have been much discussed. Chiefly, however, it concerns the welfare, the comforts, the happiness, the institutions of good government, of which things American cities, together with the cities now engaged, have been the stewards and protectors. But the European cities are snarling at each other's throats to tear down all that is good in municipalities and countries.

We alone are left to preserve the types of constructive civic life. We alone must save these types of community welfare that the nations of the world, civilized and to be civilized, may have them. We alone remain constructive while the others have become destructive.

Is it not evident then that we must dwell in peace. By so doing America may appropriate the markets of the world and become materially stronger than ever; but our greatest opportunity is to continue the principles of good government and sympathetic reign over mankind that the world may continue to enjoy these principles.

Ours is a peace mission. As a city, Plainfield may do its part. The glories of peace will be greater because so much of the world is at war. To preserve the better things of civilization, to keep them intact, to save them not only for ourselves but for the other nations in spite of themselves, is a duty in which we are concerned not only as a nation but as a city as well. The challenge to us is renewed espousal of good government and public welfare.

The publishers of the World's Work in the September issue have done a great service, not only to the newspapers of the country, but to the general public. Abandoning the regular plans, and in a very short space of time placing on the newsstands a splendid war manual of the present great struggle in Europe, is an achievement worthy of mention. It must have been a superhuman task, trying the nerves and ability of every person connected with the magazine to prepare and publish in such a short time this splendid book, which will remain on the desk of every editor in the country, and upon tens of thousands of library tables until the war is over. The book is so carefully indexed that almost any question regarding the people involved, the location of the points of interest and other topics can be found instantly. The causes of the conflict; what the nations hope to accomplish; the position of the United States; the alliances which made the war; descriptions of the armies involved as well as the navies; over a hundred pictures and maps, and other information of great value can be found within its covers. For a book hastily compiled it is probably the greatest publication of the kind ever put before the people of the country.

An experiment is to be tried in New York city, which, if successful, may reduce the high cost of living. An open market will be established on Tuesday of next week, on the streets at Fort Lee Ferry, Manhattan Bridge, Queensboro Bridge and 129th Street and Third Avenue Bridge. No charge will be made to the farmers who drive in to use the space. They are invited by the city officials to place their vegetables, fruit and other food supplies on sale at wholesale so that the retailers can avoid buying through middlemen. In the case of surplus stocks, after the wholesale selling is completed, cash sales can be made at retail. It is the belief of the city authorities that in operating the markets temporarily without charging any rental fee, the surplus supplies will be brought cheaply to the people. The experiment will be watched with much interest.

There are more than a few people in the Second ward who will want an explanation as to why the personal taxes in all the other three wards are lower this year than they were last year. No one will dispute that the Second ward assessments are right, but it is hard to understand why the people of the other three wards have suddenly become more or less impoverished. It looks as if the new Board of Assessors was doing its duty on land and buildings, and reaching an equitable valuation, but the drop in the personal assessments needs some kind of an explanation.

Will someone please tell us why it is that in the bands accompanying the various carnivals and circuses that come to town the smallest man always carries the biggest horn?

We suppose that the foreign governments are charging the increased expenditures for aeroplanes to overhead expense. Call the wagon!

"Germans Can Sing," says a headline. And they also have indicated that they can make the bullets sing.

The politicians are going ahead trying to interest the people just as if there was no war abroad.

The real optimist is the fellow who looks at the rim of the doughnut—not the hole.

CAMP ENDEAVOR TO CLOSE NEXT WEEK

Has Benefitted Many New York, Elizabeth and Plainfield Poor People.

Camp Endeavor, on the mountain, back of Scotch Plains, will close soon after the first season since it became a benefit to Union county people. For several years past it had been conducted by a New York Children's Society for the purpose of giving the poor children of that city a few weeks in the country air, but this year the Camp has been conducted by a committee from Elizabeth and this city. During the month of July women and children from Elizabeth spent two weeks each at camp and for the last month Plainfield people have had a chance.

Since last spring a dormitory housing forty people has been built and a fully equipped playground is another feature. Nearly fifty people from this city will have spent two weeks at the Camp by the first of September when it will close for the year.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Babson on Suffrage.

The irrepressible woman suffrage question has cropped up in one of the last places where it was to be expected, viz., in Babson's Reports. Under the title, "Economics of Equal Suffrage," Roger W. Babson wrote on July 14, 1914:

"For two reasons, I have thus far said little relative to the movement for equal suffrage; first, because I have felt that clients might think the subject unbecoming to this service; and secondly, because it is bound to come, irrespective of our wishes for or against. Hence, I feel that the sooner it comes the better, especially since what is really needed is a revision and contraction of the entire franchise. Such a contraction will never come until the franchise has first reached a miximum. After everyone has had a vote, and it is found that conditions are no better than at present, then there will be a general movement for a restriction of the franchise to those who have rendered some service to deserve it.

"In the meantime, as the women gradually acquire the vote, there will be much legislation passed in their favor. I refer to laws relating to the inheritance of property, exemption from certain forms and customs, and the further protection of women and children. Labor laws, which heretofore have been enacted by men primarily for men, will be enacted for women, all of which will result in higher commodity prices and increased taxation. Shorter working hours and safety appliances are good and are to be recommended, but both result in increased prices for manufactured products. Under equal suffrage, the women on our farms will receive attention heretofore undreamed of, which will still further increase the price of food products, unless we get busy and compensate therefor by using new labor-saving devices.

"But by far the most interesting will be the effect of the woman suffrage movement upon dress, millinery and other lines depending upon constantly-changing fashions. History shows that as man has acquired independence he has dressed more simply and has gradually standardized his clothes. It is common knowledge that the development of the equal suffrage movement in England and other nations has been accomplished by a growing simplicity in dress among its followers.

"That women should standardize their dress seems, at first thought, unthinkable, but it is wholly possible and very probable. As the Indian and Oriental nations have given up their gay decorations when they have grown wiser, as our ancestors forsook their wigs, ruffles and gay dress after they acquired independence, so it is very probable that today may be witnessing the height of woman's folly in useless hats and gowns. What the economic effect of this great saving will be, is almost beyond comprehension. It may offset the increase in prices which the legislation above referred to would ordinarily necessitate. Certainly, it will cause many to seek other lines of work, turning them to the production of things which will make people fundamentally happier and healthier than will mere clothes.

"Moreover, unless some such change takes place, the American woman will become extinct. Our daughters are of little use today They produce nothing and demand much. When married they insist upon commencing housekeeping on a scale reached only by their parents after a life of effort. From the beginning they must have maids and conveniences which are both uneconomic and deteriorating. Their time is given to 'bridge' and 'tangoing' while their one child is being brought up by servants.

"Unless their is some change, the self-respecting, honest young man who wishes to have a family can do only one thing, —namely, to forget the American woman entirely and marry a frank, healthy specimen of some other nation. Moreover, we cannot consistently criticise young men for seriously considering this today. If the advent of equal suffrage would be to cause our young people to better realize their responsibilities and thus prevent the people of some other nation from swarming here and putting us on reservations as we have the Indians, its economic effect will be good. At any rate, its development is worth watching, both for financial and social reasons."

Mr. Babson evidently forgets that the vast majority of American women are doing their own housework, with no maids at all. The frivolity and luxury which he censures are limited to a comparatively small class. But it is interesting to note the conviction of this expert observer that equal suffrage will lead to more favorable property laws, to shorter hours and more safety appliances for women in industry, more attention to the welfare of women on the farms, and more sense and less extravagance in dress.

Notes and Comments.

Mrs. Wilson never ranged herself definitely in favor of woman suffrage, as her daughters Jessie and Margaret have done. Like many other excellent women of the older generation, she seems not to have felt sure enough about the merits of the question to wish to take a stand either for or against it. But two years ago she personally assured Miss Annie Peck, the famous mountain-climber, that she was "not an anti."

The Provincial Council of Natal, South Africa, has passed two ordinances—one granting the municipal franchise to women on exactly the same terms as it is exercised by men, and providing that where the rental qualification is sufficient a double vote can be cast by married couples. The other ordinance confers the right of women to sit and vote on Town Councils and Local Boards.

The latter ordinance was passed at the instance of two new members of the Provincial Council, who had made election pledges to support the right of women to sit and vote on the Councils and Boards, and Natal seems likely to be the first Province in South Africa to confer that privilege, although the last to grant the municipal franchise.

Women and War.

Women have already taken over most of the masculine jobs in Paris, and now Premier Viviani calls upon the women of France to "complete the work of gathering the crops left unfinished by the men who have been called to arms." No one doubts that the appeal will be met and that the wheat and grapes will be harvested as if every fighting man of France was not with the colors.

The episode is but one of a thousand to point out the far-reaching touch of war. The men, cheering and dying at the front, are the conspicuous actors upon the stage. In fixing our eyes upon them we need not forget that when a country goes to war the whole nation fights, and often the greatest hardship and toil and suffering fall on those who never smell the smoke of actual battle.—N. Y. Tribune, Aug. 8.

Doubtless the farm women of France did not require the spur of Premier Viviani's appeal to them to "complete the work of gathering the crops left unfinished by the men who have been called to arms." The women of Paris have taken up so far as they could the work of the menfolk who had to go to the front, and in rural France the women are full partners of the men in farm management. What the women of the Balkans did they will be prompt to do.

This work the nation is glad enough to have them perform for its defense; of course they cannot fight, as they will be reminded if they ever ask for the ballot. That is the final argument against votes for women. Yet is not gathering the crops as important for national safety as service on the firing-line? Is it still true, as Napoleon said, that an army travels on its belly; and God is on the side of the full granaries equally with the strongest battalions. With every advance women make in industry, with every proof they give of their ability to do man's work of peace, they weaken traditional argument against their fitness for the ballot. If they cannot participate in campaigns as soldiers, they make it possible for men to do so.—New York World, Aug. 18.

I am in favor of bringing the votes of women to the re-inforcement of all good causes.—Rev. George Hodges, Dean Episcopal Theological School.

SEVENTY-ONE PARIS GOWNS AND WRAPS

To Be Exhibited in the Wanamaker Auditorium, Tomorrow and Friday of This Week, at 11 and 2

From the countries where war has been let loose have come many thrilling tales of refugees; but this is the first account of the difficulties met in gathering fashions in war times, and in bringing them back to America for the start of the Fall season.

Packed in osier hampers, and taken in a swift automobile from Paris to Havre through the military lines, the gowns which we shall show tomorrow form the first important exhibition of new Paris Fashions given in this country for Autumn 1914.

The story of the search for them is so full of human interest touches, of thrills and of pathos, of what is happening in this part of the world of Paris and what fashion-making in war time means, that we give it in full.

I.

When I reached Paris a few weeks ago in quest of the new fashions for the Wanamaker Stores, the city was hung with flags. They streamed from every window along the Boulevards and streets.

The wireless had told us of trouble in Servia, the railroad all the way down from Havre was patroled with soldiers, but no one appreciated the seriousness of the situation.

"Is it a fete?" someone asked lightly.

"No, it is war," was the grim reply.

II.

A friend telephoned early the next morning: "better leave for London; if mobilization is declared you will have difficulty in getting out of the city. And there will be nothing to stay for —no fashions. Everything will be closed."

That evening this notice was posted:

MINISTRY OF WAR
CIRCULAR OF
THE FIRST DAY OF THE MOBILIZATION IS SUNDAY, AUGUST 2.

All night long the city echoed with the tramp of feet, the singing of the "Marseillaise" and the famous "Chanson du Depart."

With morning came those scenes which one who witnesses them can never forget.

A quick good-bye, a clasp of the hand, a kiss, a hastily brushed aside tear, and a cheery, "there, there, little mother, it had to come some time, but it won't last long, and perhaps I may come home with the medal of honor" —and thousands of families were separated, never to be united again.

III.

Americans and other tourists were in distress also, though not so seriously.

They found posted on bulletins this notice:

Foreigners wishing to leave Paris must do so today (Sunday); those remaining must shortly obtain "Permis de-sejour." Foreigners must leave the entrenched camp of Paris before the end of the first day of mobilization, that is to say, midnight tonight. They will have at the time of their departure to justify their identity to the Special Commissariat at the station. They will not be able to avail themselves of automobiles."

Crowds rushed to the stations and left for London at once. Others besieged the steamship offices for passage home, taking steerage accommodations without a murmur. Still others waited to see what the new day would bring forth.

But by the next day conditions were worse.

Authority passed from the civic to the military. Banking operations were curtailed. Letters of credit and travelers checques were not honored. Gold was unobtainable. One hotel after another closed its doors. Taxis and omnibuses were requisitioned by the military. The subway was crippled.

Only third-class tickets were sold to Havre, and the journey there took 11½ hours. Millionaires found themselves in cattle cars labelled "thirty-six horses," and they were glad to be there.

"What shall I do," I said to myself, "have I come three thousand miles for nothing, shall America, have no Paris fashions this Autumn?"

IV.

I left the waiting crowds in front of the Embassy clamoring for passports. I left them in the ticket offices seeking transportation.

I turned away and started to make the rounds of the couturiers.

Callot was not ready.

Cheruit promised an exposition for the thirteenth.

"Women must have clothes, war or no war," said Madam Cheruit, "and those who make them must have a way to earn their living. Yes, we shall keep open and make what we can."

I went to the beautiful atelier of Paul Poiret. It was closed and the uniformed porter missing. I went around to the private entrance on the Fabourg St. Honore. I entered the courtyard. I looked into the windows. There I saw Monsieur Poiret, dressed in a soldier's uniform, surrounded by a crowd of weeping women, his devoted helpers.

I entered quickly. "I am going to join my regiment," said M. Poiret calmly. "An artist is nothing when a soldier is wanted—France needs men today, not artists."

"But have you nothing ready—no models, that I may show again to America your genius," I said.

"No, the atelier is closed, it shall remain closed, with nothing touched until I return—if I do return."

I passed out silently.

At the famous Rue de la Paix House of Worth I was greeted by Jean and Jacques Worth, also in soldier's uniforms. They were taking a last look at one of their gowns, just finished, which by the way will be shown in the Wanamaker exhibit tomorrow. Their father M. Gaston Worth, who retired some years ago, was called into the business again and is in charge of the House while his two boys are fighting for their country.

At Doeuillet's on Place Vendome, the same scene was repeated. M. Doeuillet had joined the volunteers, but a few gowns were made up and these I also procured.

V.

That day's tour, sad as it was, showed that some fashions were to be had.

"I will wait and finish my quest," I said, "and get home the best I can."

The great steamer "La France" was being held at Havre, "the sea is not yet clear," they said.

"Let me know the latest minute to leave Paris," I said to the manager of the Compagnie Trans-Atlantique, "I have work to do, and I don't want to waste any time waiting for the boat to sail."

I arranged for an automobile to leave at a moment's notice.

I procured my passports and steamer accommodations.

I started again my visits to the couturiers.

Then came the great opportunity.

The House of Bechoff-David was forced to close. M. Bechoff also had been called to arms.

His entire collection was offered to me—at war prices; half the usual figures. I took them all—some two hundred garments. Sixty-four are in the present exhibit; the remainder are on their way.

"At last my quest is ended, I have succeeded," I said.

VI.

But I spoke too quickly.

The real problems were still ahead.

How to get the gowns on the boat?

Trunks were barred from the trains. And they were too heavy for the automobile.

"I will try those huge French osier baskets," I thought, "they are light."

Into them the garments were packed and taken to my hotel.

Then I waited word from the steamship company.

Sunday morning it came. "La France sails tonight at midnight."

The big Daimler was summoned. With it came the manager.

At the sight of my luggage he was appalled. "We can't take all those pieces," he said.

"But that isn't all I have," I replied with a smile, "around the corner are two big baskets, I must take those also."

"No, no, no, it can't be done," he replied.

"Now I AM in trouble," I said in despair.

Those words and the way they were uttered, I afterwards learned, saved me. The chauffeur was English. He understood them. And afterwards he said, "I decided to see you through, trouble or no trouble."

And see me through he did, as you shall see.

VII.

"We can manage those baskets," said the chauffeur, and after much trouble he tied them to the rear of the car, the manager expostulating all the time.

It was then four o'clock in the afternoon. Havre was 140 miles away. "La France" was to sail at midnight and we had to make the run through a great part of the French Army.

We started, skirting the lovely old forest of St. Germain, and out through Couflaus and on towards Rouen we sped.

My last look at Paris was sad, indeed. The city and its environs never looked so lovely. "Beautiful Paris, your wonderful buildings, your museums of art, your great workshops and stores, your priceless treasures—will they be here just the same when I return? Who knows!"

At Rouen we found it necessary to get a special police permit to travel after nightfall—"a laissez-passer de nuit." This we obtained through the courtesy of the Police Commissariat and at 9.30 we proceeded again, taking with us a native boy to show the way to Havre.

Our difficulties seemed over. At high speed we flew along the smooth road.

But our troubles had only begun.

"Halte!"

Seventeen times that word had been thundered at us.

Seventeen times we had been forced to halt and show our papers.

The minutes were slipping by and the "France" was to sail at midnight.

The seventeenth time we came to rest at a military camp only twenty-six miles from Havre.

Four armed sentinels barred the way.

An officer was routed out of bed. He refused to pass us. Another officer was summoned. He examined the night pass and to our dismay found the Rouen Commissariat had failed to date it.

The car was surrounded by soldiers with fixed bayonets.

Now the officer was mad indeed.

"Where is the passport for this boy?" was asked—the boy we had taken on at Rouen. He had none.

"Descendez," came the order.

The poor lad, half frightened out of his wits, made no move to leave the seat.

"Preparez-vous a tirer" (get ready to shoot) roared the lieutenant.

For one second everyone was petrified. Then the chauffeur gave the boy a push! "get down faster than you ever did anything in your life," he said in French.

The boy clambered down. At a word two soldiers took hold of him and marched him away—under arrest. We never saw the lad again, but undoubtedly he was released in the morning and sent home happy with the fee we had given him to act as courier.

Then the automobile was ordered to turn 'round and wait for morning. There was a bridge in front of us. In turning we got near the bridge. The officer thought we were trying to escape. "Halte," and the soldiers started to bayonet the tires.

How we turned I do not know, but we managed it, without losing either our tires or our lives, and back to the nearest town, we went with a sad heart thinking we had missed the boat.

My departing memory of that midnight camp is of sentinels with pointed bayonets and a very angry adjutant.

The next morning we decided to go to Havre, as the Chicago was also there.

Three times we covered that bit of road, passing through the camp in the gray of the morning

And great was our joy when we pulled into Havre to find that the "France" was still there, her sailing again delayed.

On her decks were the Americans who had been there idle for more than a week, while I was getting those much-wanted fashions in Paris.

The baskets, with their precious freight, and the other parcels were placed on board.

Four days later we sailed, reaching New York August 20th, the first French ship to reach our shores since the war.

And the first—and latest—French fashions!

VIII.

While in Havre, I wanted to get a photograph of the car which had carried the first Paris fashions to America. Loaded with the bags and baskets, we drew up the automobile in front of the Hotel de Ville, as a good background and the photographer prepared to make the exposure. But an official rushed up to us—

"You will all be in jail in two minutes!" he cried. "Stop! Stop!"

And so we have no photograph to show here as a souvenir of that wild night ride.

But the gowns are here!

The gowns are here!

The undated night passport, which caused the trouble at the camp.

All the gowns, the gowns! You may see them yourself tomorrow in the Wanamaker Auditorium, one of the most notable collections we have ever presented.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Joe Hurtig's Social Maid Burlesquers" will make their initial appearance at the Plainfield Theatre, this afternoon and tonight and the patrons can look for something out of the ordinary. The company is brand new and carries fully fifty people in the cast, including thirty beautiful chorus girls full of life and ginger, who will wear costumes that have been especially designed by one of the best costumers. The program opens with a two act comedy.

"For laughing purposes only" is Carlyle Moore's funny farce "Stop Thief," which is to be seen at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night, and as a play constructed for the sole purpose of exciting that particularly healthful exercise, it is certainly fulfilling its mission.

"Stop Thief" will make you laugh in spite of yourself. Its unusual situations and brilliant lines fairly bristle with wit and repartee while the complications that are thrown around the Rhode Island detective in the play, and his endeavors to trap the crooks who are operating in a household blessed with kleptomaniacal tendencies furnishes irresistible fun through the three acts in which the piece has been written.

"Stop Thief" moves at such a fast pace that its humor might be likened to that of a whirlwind, let, withal, it is a refined entertainment that your wife, children, mother or sweetheart may enjoy to the full without casting apologetic glances in the direction of your seatmate.

No better person could be more suited to the role of the Thief than Bert Leigh, the same can be said of Miss Hazele Burgess who plays the role of the Maid, his sweetheart. The balance of the company include Boyd Trousdale, Edward Lawrence, Dale Devereaux, Paul Linton, Clyde Smith, Harold Hubert, Edwin Pe Miss Fa na Oliver, Miss Forrest, Julie Latimore, Helen Acker, Ernest Hickok.

Bud Fisher, the New York American's clever cartoon artist, doesn't allow an opportunity to escape for extracting humor from every complication or phase of national or international government. Like the present financial stringency, "Mutt and Jeff's" visit to Mexico is purely "Psychological," which means science of the human mind or soul, therefore "Mutt and Jeff's" sole object in going to the seat of war is to make you laugh and forget the less agreeable things in your mind, or that you have a sole or a heel. It is Mr. Hill's intention to keep "Mutt and Jeff" ever new, by giving them an entire new play and production each year. Just now, Mexico, that "Comic Opera" country, where revolutions grow on trees, seems to be the logical point for Bud Fisher's brand of comedy. The country and environment give ample opportunity for scenic display and beautiful electrical effects. "Mutt and Jeff," truly American in spirit, as long as the spirits are plentiful, join the United States Navy and sail for Vera Cruz, where they succeed in creating so much laughter that the Mexican Navy, consisting of one "gravy boat and a soup tureen," surrendered while the Mexican marines were only "half shot." However the big City Show of "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" with a car load of brand new scenery and a cargo of pretty girls will visit Plainfield Theatre on Friday matinee and right.

A special and added feature of "Hanky Panky" which appears at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday, is a troupe of dancers from the famous Jardin De Danse, in New York. They will be seen in exhibitions of all the latest dances that have made this resort the most aristocratic and famous place of its kind in the world. Correct expositions will be given of all the modern dances that have such a grip on the people of today and the correct and authentic steps will be carefully shown. Among others who will be seen in "Hanky Panky" are Miss Virginia Evans who jumped into fame overnight with the original production of "Hanky Panky," who will sing the famous and tuneful "Rose of Pyramid Land" and "Dixie Love" and will illustrate the famous "Serpentine Tango" from the Winter Garden, New York. Miss Fannie Stedman, the funniest woman on the stage, will play Clorida Scribbem and can be depended upon to force the fun, while Davy Jones, Lester Bernard and Ralph Edwards are too well known as comedians to require comment. Al Stedman is seen as Wailingford and in their well known specialty with Fannie Stedman. Others are Jack Allman, Ruth Harris, Florence Cripps and Sally Dolly in their original roles.

CITIZENS SAY AUTOMOBILE PARTY ACTS SUSPICIOUSLY

Residents of Crescent avenue and East Ninth street have reported to the police that a mysterious looking automobile with five occupants has been noticed in that vicinity for the past four or five days. The occupants of the machine have been acting suspiciously, according to the complaint, and efforts will be made by the police to ascertain their mission.

Rumors of a band of thieves lurking around in this manner have been circulated and the residents in that section are fearful lest their places be entered at night.

LOCAL LAWYERS ARE CALVERT PETITIONERS

Many Well Known Local and County Names On His Nominating List.

There is in County Clerk James C. Calvert's office one of the most unique and valuable books in existence. It bears the autograph of every master in chancery who ever practised in this county. Many of them are now dead, but the majority of those still living and practising law have affixed their signatures to Mr. Calvert's petition. He is a candidate on the Republican ticket to succeed himself, having the endorsement of practically all of the Republican lawyers of Union county.

The first signer of his petition was former Chancellor William J. Magie, who was also Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of this State. He signed the autograph book many years ago and long before Mr. Calvert ever thought of being the custodian of it. Ex-Chancellor Magie is considered the dean of the Union county legal profession and said it was with a great deal of pleasure that he was able to sign Mr. Calvert's petition.

In addition to the former chancellor the petition bears the name of Foster M. Voorhees, a former governor of the State, former Judge Clark McK. Whittemore, former Judge and ex-Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, former Judge Wm. N. Runyon and, William N. Newcorn, Judge Wm. J. DeMeza, Paul Q. Oliver, president of the Union County Bar Association, Ed. S. Atwater, Jr., E. D. Mulford, Frank A. English, Wm. F. Groves, G. Bartram Woodruff, George Schmidt, Jr., Richard F. Henry, N. R. Leavitt, Raymond T. Parrott, Robert L. Eaton, Sidney W. Eldridge Charles L. Morgan, Charles A. Otto, Jr., Otto Froebel, Louis Messing, Jr., David Feinswog, Donald H. McLean, all of Elizabeth; Berkeley C. Austin, of Cranford; Cora N. Williams, Frederick C. Kentz, Schuyler M. Cady, of Summit; David Armstrong, of Rahway; Walter L. Hetfield Jr., Francis J. Blatz, Robert Newton Crane, Harry C. Runyon, Asa F. Randolph, Vincent W. Nash, Jr., Augustus C. Nash, Martin B. Stutsman, W. R. Codington, of Plainfield; Charles N. Codding and Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, and others.

The endorsement of these men, all of whom have had intimate associations and business dealings with Mr. Calvert, is a power in the campaign he is now making for the nomination, and carries with it the assurance of his ability and integrity as a public official, for they are men who could not lend their approval to any person or act in accord with the high standing they have in the community.

JONES SHOWS DREW BIG CROWD LAST NIGHT

Vibrating strains of Vitucci's Royal Italian band and the syncopated melodies blasted forth by Opuice's Ragtime band; the splash of the Quincys in their three-foot tank; the mincing steps of "Baby Sue"; whir of the bike riders in the inverted cone; the snap of snake whip and snarl of jungle beasts, the ballyhoo of the minstrel show and the back of the concessionieres continue to make the Johnny J. Jones Exposition shows popular at the carnival of the Knights of Columbus.

The enthusiasm of the opening two nights was most auspicious and presages a big week for the carnival promoters. When the crowds begin to thin out the verdict was unanimously given that the Johnny J. Jones shows are well worth while, in fact the best show of a carnival or exposition nature that has ever come to Plainfield. It would be difficult to pick out any one act that in every respect is superior to all others, but the animal show is certainly splendid. Every act was good. A special free program featured Thomas and Margaret Quincy in their high diving act, Michael Vitucci's celebrated Royal Italian band, Joes Oppice's Ragtime band and "Baby Sue" the trick elephant.

Acts worthy of mention were the pit show, Babcock's motordrome, the Minstrels, Joyland Tango Palace, Roger's athletic show, Merry-go-round. Ferris wheel, Trip to Mars, Prof. George, Minnie and the Flea Circus.

Some men achieve fame, but others—Fred Merkle and John Anderson, for instance—simply blunder into it and get their names enrolled indelibly on the pages of history.

Anderson, who once played ball for Washington, passed from major league view many years ago, but his memory still lives and will live as long as baseball lasts. Anderson isn't remembered because of the fact that he was once a brilliant fielder and a real slugger. His creditable accomplishments have been forgotten. Anderson lives in memory because he was the first man in major league history to steal second base with the sacks full.

Nowadays when some player duplicates Anderson's accomplishment the scribbling persons don't describe it by saying that "Hinky Dink stole second with the bases full." They simply state that "Hinky Dink pulled a 'John Anderson'." And every man familiar with baseball knows just what Hinky Dink did.

Fred Merkle is another who never will be forgotten. He committed a "bone" back in 1908 that cost the New York club about $60,000 and each of his teammates from $1,000 to $3,000 in world series money. That one foozle will make Merkle's fame—or infamy—undying. And it has added a new verb to the dictionary, for in these days when a man performs some bonehead action it is not termed that way. The recounters of the incident simply state that "Smith merkled," which is description enough.

Merkle, as many will remember, is the gentleman who failed to touch second base in one of the final games of the 1908 season in which the National League championship and a divvy of the world's series money were at stake. One of his New York teammates slammed out a hit in the ninth, sending a man across the plate with the winning run. Merkle was on first when the hit was made. He started for second, but when he saw that the runner had crossed the plate in safety he gave second base a go by and hustled to the clubhouse.

John Evers, of the Cubs, who were the Giants' rivals that day, noticed that Merkle failed to touch second. He rushed to second, shrieked to have the ball thrown to him and finally managed to get hold of it, although the crowd then was swarming into the field. Evers touched second base for a force out on Merkle, who by that time was under the shower bath in the clubhouse. Evers grabbed one of the umpires, called his attention to the fact that Merkle hadn't touched second, and the arbiter backed him up. The game had to be played over, and the Giants lost it and their chance to get into the world series.

Harry Niles long ago passed from view on the major league horizon, but the memory of his two famous "bones" still remains. Niles, who was an outfielder and a speedy man on the sacks, smashed out a terrific drive to center. Danzig, a slow runner, was on first when Niles connected, and he started lumbering down to second. Niles turned first, crossed second and pulled up at third after a whirlwind slide. It was not until then that he discovered that he had run past Danzig, who had stopped at second. Oh, yes, Niles was declared out for passing a runner, and the chances for victory by his team—the Boston Red Sox—were lost right there.

A short time afterward the Sox were playing one of the Eastern teams. It was in the ninth, Boston leading by two runs, the other side having three on bases and only one out. The batter sent a long fly which Niles easily captured. Just as soon as he snared the ball Niles shoved it into his back pocket and started for the clubhouse. His amazed teammates yelled at him, but their yells were in vain. Niles was under full head of steam for the cooling shower, and the yells, which he took to be cheers as a reward for his catch, halted him not at all.

Of course, one of his teammates finally chased Niles to the clubhouse and relieved him of the ball—and himself of some cuss words—but the damage had been done. The three runners had crossed the plate and the Red Sox had lost. Niles thought that his catch made it three out.

The game would not count for anything even if it were played as the Newarkers are still considered the State "champs" as far as the official end of it goes. Manager Bader claims that he cannot prolong his schedule as none of the teams will sign up.

McFARLAND DROPS INTERESTING DOPE

Pugilistic philosophy is an attribute of one, Packey McFarland, the Chicago stockyard boy, hailed as one of the classiest fighters the world has seen. Packey retired from the ring when he joined the ranks of the benedicts. He is now touring the world with his bride. On the Pacific coast he dropped these few highly interesting and instructive remarks:

"Anybody who fights twenty rounds has to have a strong back and a weak mind.

"Jimmy Duffy is an accident. He would make Welsh look bad for a while but wouldn't beat him.

"Ad Wolgast was a great fighter, but couldn't have beaten Welsh in his palmiest days.

"You've only got one face to wear through life. Why let some other fellow spoil it for you?

"The only thing that would tempt me back in the ring would be a chance to win the lightweight championship back for America."

Speaking of spoiling faces of prize fighters sounds funny, but Packey McFarland has got a pretty face at that.

PLAN TO HOLD NATIONAL JUNIOR TENNIS TOURNEY

Newport, Aug. 26.—Plans for a national junior tennis championship, to which players under eighteen years of age will be eligible, were adopted tonight at a meeting of the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The meeting discussed plans for recovering the Davis Cup recently captured by the team from Australia. Although no action was taken, it was the unanimous opinion that the United States should challenge next year.

BRUGGY NOW HITS .308 FOR LEADERS

Former Pet Nearing "Flick" Luyster For Batting Honors Of Lawrence Team.

Frank Bruggy and "Flick" Luyster, formerly members of the Plainfield team, but now of the Lawrence team of the New England League, are playing fine ball and are the shining light of the Lawrence club. Both men are hitting the ball hard, with Luyster leading Bruggy by a few points. "Flick" leads the team in the batting department with an average of .312. He has been in a bad slump lately and if it continues much longer Bruggy will pass him at the rate he is swatting the pill now.

Last week Bruggy batted .460 and raised his total average to .308, only four points below the leader. In a double header against Lewistown, last week, Bruggy hit safely five times out of six trips to the plate. Three of these smashes went for doubles He also scored five runs. He had thirteen putouts and two assists to his credit for the day. Luyster's contribution for the day were five runs, three hits, two putouts and four assists. He pitched the last four innings of the first game. During the season, Luyster has rapped out 116 hits and has scored 81 runs. He leads the team in the scoring department. Bruggy is credited with 106 clouts.

After a double victory over the Lewistown aggregation, last week, the Lawrence club is now conceded to be the champion of the league. The former local players are considered the best on the team and Luyster is not far from the top in the league's batting list.

HIGHLANDERS WILL PLAY A PICKED COMBINATION

What promises to be a good exhibition game will be staged on Parker Fjeld next Tuesday morning, when the Highlanders, pennant chasers in the Senior League, will meet a picked team from the Parker Field Middle League. The All Stars, as the latter call themselves, will present the strongest lineup that can be made from the two leading teams of that circuit and Butler, of the Laurels, has been chosen to do the pitching. The league leaders will have four men on the team while the Red Stars will be represented by the other five.

The Highlanders will probably have Cruttenden, the Westfield star, on the mound, and Marsh will do the catching. The teams will lineup as follows:

ROD AND REEL

The old fishing pier at South Beach is in ruins, and it looks as though it would never be rebuilt. There was a time that the weakfishing from this pier was great, and many of the old timers from New York gathered there and talked politics while they fished. The storms of last winter broke the pier in two, and there is no way to reach the extreme end, where the deep water is.

Chumming with rice received a boom along the Staten Island shore early in the summer, but it dropped out of sight mighty quickly when the fishermen saw that it was a waste of good food. Shrimp and mossbunkers will attract any specie of fish, but beyond that rice and any other kind of food that will sink where it is thrown can only be a failure, as it is local and cannot attract fish from any distance away.

Several big bluefish were picked up by the surf fishermen at the Manasquan Inlet yesterday. One man had two blues that scaled more than six pounds apiece. One angler had a blue that went to an ounce over eight pounds.

The fishing boat which leaves the Asbury Park pier every morning is a favorite gathering spot for anglers who are spending the heated term along the shore. Even the surf casting clan, just now tired of futile attempts for striped bass in the surf, makes a trip outside in the Carib by way of seeing how it feels to pull in a fish or two. Sea bass and blackfish make up the principal catches at either the Rock or on the old wreck farther out.

There was a big fleet of boats out again yesterday in Raritan Bay, but the fishing was not quite up to its former good mark. A strong northwest wind kicked up a choppy surface and made it difficult to cast. The Lafayettes are now biting on the Jersey side of the bay, and several good-sized ones were picked up yesterday along with the weakfish and croakers. The "spots" have been over on the Princess Bay side for more than a month, but are just making their appearance on the west side of the bay.

In the absence of the striped bass along the Asbury Park section, several fishermen went off shore yesterday after tuna, which had been reported playing several miles out. They were not fortunate enough to hit into any of these fish, but did get a few bonita.

Some good catches of fluke were made at the fishing grounds off Sandy Hook.

Great Kills fishermen are catching hundreds of weakfish on the flats in front of that resort. Practically all of the fishing done there is from rowboats, and the grounds are but a quarter mile from the boathouses.

VIC SAIER SECOND IN GETTING PASSES

Cubs' First Baseman Close to Miller Huggins, of the Cardinals.

Vic Saier, Cub first baseman, is specializing in drawing passes this season as well as in smashing out homers. Saier is not leading the National League in gaining free tickets to the bag he plays, but he is very close to Miller Huggins, manager of the Cardinals, who is the pace-setter in this respect. Hug has walked to first 72 times this season, while Saier has promenaded on 68 occasions. The Chicagoan now has extracted six more passes from the hurlers than he did last year and he has played in 47 less games.

Besides Huggins and Saier twelve more Tenerites have obtained free transportation from the pitchers on forty or more occasions this season. George Burns, of the Giants, has drawn 58 passes; Johnny Evers, of the Braves, 56; Tommy Leach, of the Cubs, 53; Gavvy Cravath, of the Phillies, 52; Bill Sweeney, of the Cubs, 49; Heinie Groh of the Reds, 48; Jimmy Viox, of the Pirates, 47; Dode Paskert, of the Phillies, 46; Wilbur Good, of the Cubs, 44; Max Carey, of the Pirates, 42; Casey Stengel, of the Superbas, 41, and Larry Doyle of the Giants, 40. The last named is the only Chalmers car winner who shows up well in the Pass League, Frank Schulte having secured only 30 gifts from the hurlers and Jake Daubert only 27.

There is slight danger of Huggins, Saier, Burns or any of the other good waiters smashing the National League record for walks. Secretary John Heydler has been furnishing the information on the number of passes each player receives now since 1910, the leaders in the four preceding seasons having been Huggins, of St. Louis, with 116 in 1910; Sheckard, of Chicago, with 147 in 1911; Sheckard of Chicago, with 122 in 1912, and Bescher of Cincinnati, with 94 in 1913.

John McGraw is generally credited with having made the best record for watchful waiting of any National League player. When the Little Napoleon was leading the Baltimore discards of 1899, he walked to first over the Four Ball Route 108 times in 95 games, getting his base in this manner at least once in the first 64 contests. No other National Leaguer so far as known, ever has succeeded in getting as high an average of promenades.

McGraw was a great waiter in the days when he played under Ned Hanlon, but his team of Giants do not seem to care particularly about working the pitchers for transportation. Last year the Gothamites did not draw as many bases on balls as the Cubs, Braves, Cardinals or Reds and this year they rank next to last among the pitcher workers. The Champions have secured 279 gifts, the Superbas one less. The Cubs have received 274 free trips to first from the pitchers; the Cardinals, 320; the Phillies, 315; the Reds, 307; the Braves, 295, and the Pirates, 286.

The National League's best watchful waiting team would at the present time consist of four Cubs, one Giant, one Superba, one Phillie, one Brave and one Cardinal and would be made up as follows:

Catcher—Bresnahan, of Chicago, 36 passes.

Pitcher—Reulbach, of Brooklyn, 11 passes.

First baseman—Saier, of Chicago, 68 passes.

Second baseman—Huggins, of St. Louis, 72 passes.

Third baseman—Sweeney, of Chicago, 49 passes.

Shortstop—Evers, of Boston, 56 passes.

Right fielder—Cravath, of Philadelphia, 52 passes.

The record number of bases on balls obtained by a National League player this season in one game is four. Wilbur Good, of the Cubs, got a quartette of passes in the game with Brooklyn, on May 13; Huggins of the Cardinals turned the trick on June 10 against Brooklyn; Cravath of the Phillies had a record of this kind on June 13 against Cincinnati, and Saier, of the Cubs, equalled the performance on August 7, against New York.

CLUB OWNER WILL NOT SIT IN A BOX

"Sit in a box?" queried Joseph J. Lannin, sole owner of the Boston Red Sox, at Cleveland the other day. "I should say not. I like to get out among the real fans and hear what the supporters of the game think about my team. Some days I go out in the bleachers and sit among those who know all the players by their first names.

"How did I happen to break into baseball as a magnate? Because I have wanted to own a baseball club ever since I was a bellboy in Boston. I used to sneak into the games then every chance I got, and if one of the players let me carry his bat I was the happiest little Irish kid in all Boston, and there were a lot of happy Irish lads there at that. After I got in a position to buy a club I announced that I was in the market. First I tried to buy the Phillies, but Fogel placed such an exhorbitant price on his outfit that I passed it up. Then came the trouble at Boston and I bought in. Now I own every share of stock, and that is the only way a ball club should be owned.

"Do I enthuse? Well, you bet I do, but not as much as when I used to pay my 50 or 75 cents or $1. Then I would yell my head off. Now I am more subdued. My hat smashing days are over, but I enjoy a game just as much."

CARROLL TAYLOR WILL RETURN TO COLORADO

Carroll Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Taylor, of Fairview avenue, who is pursuing a course in the Colorado School of Mines, at Golden, Colorado, will leave here Sunday for that place where he will enter upon his second year's work about the fourteenth of next month. He is taking mining engineering.

Taylor expects to repeat his performance of last year along athletic lines and will undoubtedly make a place on the basketball and baseball teams. Last year he won two "M's," which is considered quite an honor for a first year man. He played forward on the basketball five and held down right field on the nine.

HAD GOOD LUCK.

Last week a party of local anglers went to Great Kills for a day's enjoyment with the rod and reel. They went out in a boat and fished off Seguines' Point, where they caught fifty-three weakfish before a heavy storm broke, causing them to stop and seek shelter. Those in the party consisted of Clarence Thorn, Percy McVoy, Harry Dreier and W. J. Whelan.

WITH THE BOXERS

Battling Levinsky has started his Fall campaign, which probably means that Bat intends to fight six or eight times a week.

The war has cost Tony Ross a bout with Bomb. Wells. A promoter of Hull, England, was willing to put up a $20,000 purse for the pair.

Young Saylor received the decision in a 20-round bout with Joe Shugrue at Sydney, Australia, a short time ago.

Joe Fox, the Brooklyn boxer, has sprung a new one on the boxing world. He gets his fighting inspiration from encouraging words spoken by his father and mother who sit at the ringside at every bout in which he takes part.

BASEBALL NOTES

Bill Phillips' Indianapolis team has recovered from a bad slump and is again climbing in the Federal League.

With six men batting for .300 or better the Providence Grays are well equipped to make a real fight for the International League title.

The New York Yankees have purchased Pitcher Watkins, the leading twirler of Hugh Duffy's Portland team of the New England League.

Playing regularly with the Phillies has improved the stick work of Beals Becker. He now leads the Phils in batting with a mark of .325.

Manager George Stallings figures that his Boston Braves will return home with victories enough to land them up there.

After the Brooklyn Superbas asked waivers on Ed Reulbach the big pitcher settled down and has now become a consistent winner.

Pete Falsey, the Yale outfielder, has been released by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Pete failed to show sufficient big league stuff.

Pitcher "Babe" Ruth, the former Baltimore star, is again in the Inter

LOCAL SCHOOL MAY ORGANIZE TEAMS

Addition of Swimming Pool and Gym May Lead to Teams In These Branches.

When the city High School opens next month the students will have one of the best equipped gymnasiums and swimming pools in the State to enjoy. The new basketball court is a large one and cannot be surpassed as a court anywhere in this section. It will be fully equipped with all the gymnastic apparatus necessary and there will be nothing wanting for the pleasure and work of the students. These new additions will undoubtedly bring other branches of athletics into prominence into the schools athletic schedule which is already a large one, consisting of most of the sports that other institutions enjoy.

The large tank will offer means for another athletic team in the form of a swimming team. This would no doubt be an excellent thing for the local school and a number of good swimmers could be picked from the large number of boys who could easily uphold the record of the school. Not very many schools in this vicinity are lucky enough to have these specialties and those who attend the local school can regard themselves as some of the lucky ones. In some of the larger schools of the State they support swimming teams and they are popular as well as instructive. There is nothing more valuable than to know how to swim well and the organization of such a team would undoubtedly help a few if not more.

Another good function that might be advocated is the organization of a gymnastic team. With so fine equipped a gymnasium and expert training the city school should be able to turn out a good team along this line and they would find enough competition in this branch from State schools. Some institutions make a specialty of this work and it has proved exceedingly beneficial as well as popular. The local school now has all that it needs in this line and the students will probably use those facilities to good advantage.

VETERAN QUITS GAME.

St. Louis, Aug. 26.—Mordecai Brown, deposed manager of the St. Louis Federals, has quit baseball, according to information given out today by an official of the St. Louis Federals. According to the story, Brown returned to his home in Terre Haute, Ind., yesterday. Next winter he will go to California to look after his mining interests.

IF COPS WIN THEY CAN CLAIM TITLE

But Just What Title That Is For Licking the Doctors Cannot Be Ascertained.

Another squabble will take place tomorrow afternoon on Parker Field, when the Cops and Doctors meet on the ball field for the second time this year. At that a good game is looked for as the first meeting resulted in a 7 to 6 victory for the guardians of the peace and that decision was reached only after they had done their best in the ninth frame. Since that game was played the cops have been winning and losing, mostly losing, every week and sometimes twice a week while the medical men have been so busy that they could not play but have kept quiet and are waiting for the chance to strike.

No official batting orders have been announced for either side, but one can easily guess who the cops will use. That same old twenty-two will be present ready to answer the call if necessary but it's a sure bet that Fritts and not McLaughlin will be on the firing line. The other team's lineup has not leaked out yet and they evidently expect to spring something on their opponents for they will do anything honest to win the game. If they should be lucky enough to have Foster or his equal on the mound again the betting, which now favors the cops, would drop to even. The High School boy certainly had the "Indian" sign on the opposing batters and it was through no fault of his that the doctors lost the first encounter. If the coppers should win they might claim some sort of a title of the city but should they lose another game will be arranged. Hostilities will commence at 3:30 tomorrow.

BAYONNE POLICE THINK IT BEST NOT TO PLAY

After hearing that the local team took the measure of the Newark champions last week, the management of the Bayonne police force has notified Manager Bader, of the local team, that the game that was to be played at that place in the near future must be canceled and consequently the locals will not be able to enjoy the fine trip to that beautiful place.

The ballists from across the Bay have evidently heard of Private McLaughlin and Driver Mullin and have decided that they might save their reputation by not playing the game.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—Charges that umpires of the Pacific Coast League have been betting on games will be investigated rigidly by President Allan T. Baum. A number of players have been summoned to testify at an inquiry resulting from accusations following the fight in Sacramento between Umpire Held and Outfielder Maggert. "I am going to stop indiscriminate assaults upon umpires and attacks upon their honesty by players," said President Baum.

"Big Bill" James, the Braves' pitcher, has realized a life's ambition. After many futile attempts he succeeded in hanging one on the New York Giants.

Mike Mitchell, of the Washington team and "Hobby" Hoblitzell, of the Red Sox, both former National Leaguers, have displayed fine wares since joining the American League.

The secret of Benny Kauff's great hitting has been disclosed. The Indianapolis slugger, who is giving Steve Evans a great battle for the batting honors in the Federal League, has 18 bats.

Bert Daniels is hitting at a lively clip with the Cincinnati Reds, but his throwing is weak. The former Yankee-Oriole performer has a bum whip that hinders the long tosses from the outfield.

Catcher Rondeau, the Minneapolis backstop recently purchased by the Washington club, has a batting average of .295 in the American Association. He was turned over to the Millers by the Detroit Tigers last season.

RECREATION NOTES

PORTRAITS OF RULERS OF GREAT EUROPEAN POWERS

Among the interesting features of The Daily Press War Map are splendid portraits of the great European rulers. These are beautifully reproduced from late copywrighted photographs and make a rare collection.

The map proper was originally produced in Europe by the wax process, and every line is clear and distinct. It is printed in five colors, and all mountain ranges and rivers are clearly outlined. Another important feature consists of the outlining of the submarine telegraph lines, those connecting the various countries of Europe as well as the lines which run to other continents. No expense has been spared to make this map accurate and complete in every respect.

For a short time The Daily Press will present these maps to readers for an expense amount which barely covers the items of distribution. Look for the coupon printed elsewhere in these columns and present it without delay.

ASBURY PARK'S ANNUAL BABY PARADE

Asbury Park, Aug. 26—Babies from every nook and corner of the land held festal holiday and high revel in Asbury Park today. It was the day of the annual baby parade. Dressed in their best rainment the little ones paraded the ocean front this afternoon and were reviewed by Queen Titantia (Miss Virginia Hope Kelsey) and her maids in the court of honor. Almost every variety of infantile precocity was represented in the procession, from the infant terrible subdued and tractable, under the influence of appalling environment, and rising in graduated stage to maturer juvenility, which, under pressure, was permitted to assume "trouserloons" and long skirts.

There were nearly one thousand good humored tots in the pageant and they toddled contendly in the grand march while many thousands of spectators, fascinated by the moving panorama, looked on with sympathetic eye. Many watched the parade from the hotel piazzas and the roofs of the cottages and buildings adjacent to Ocean avenue. It was estimated that the throng of spectators was one of the largest ever gathered in Asbury Park on any similar occasion.

FEW BIG SCORES MADE YESTERDAY

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 26.—Riflemen competing in the six matches scheduled in the combined shooting tournament yesterday, felt the effect of the recently adopted plan of employing smaller targets on the long ranges.

The difference was notable in the Leach Cup match, which was won by Captain W. H. Richards, of Ohio, who defeated Private James S. Stewart, of Massachusetts with a lead on the 800, 900 and 1,000 yard ranges of only one point. Richard's score was 101. Stewart took second money with 100. He beat Captain John E. Parker, also of the Bay State aggregation, on a longer string of consecutive bull's eyes.

Company C, Fourth New Jersey, won the company team match this afternoon with 325 on the 400 and 500 yard ranges. Other scores follow:

Troop B, First New Jersey cavalry 316; Company K, Second District of Columbia, 315; Company K, First District of Columbia, 309; Company C, Second District of Columbia, 304.

The Fifth Massachusetts won the Cruickshank match with 548. The Marine Corps took the Seventy-first regiment match with 1,140. The Second New Jersey was second, with 1,138.

STUCHELL MAKING AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Leaving No Stone Unturned In Effort to Land Congressional Nomination.

William Torrence Stuchell, one of the candidates for the Republican Congressional nomination has been carrying on his campaign in Morris county this week. Monday afternoon he spent in Morristown, Monday evening he addressed a mass meeting in Rockaway, yesterday morning he spent in Dover and at noon was back in Rockaway and addressed a meeting of employes at the Liondale Dye Plant and later he visited Denville Boonton, Lincoln Park and Pompton Plains, holding consultation with his lieutenants in the various places and meeting and conversing with many enroute.

Last night the political issues of the day were discussed at a mass meeting in Dover.

Sheriff Wm. H. Wright has left his own campaign in Union county for the time being to assist his friend Stuchell in Morris county. Each night he has been in charge of the "Flying Squadron" which is brought up from Rahway to reinforce Stuchell in the evening meetings, accompanied by a drum corps. The relationship of Stuchell and Wright in the conduct of their respective campaign is attracting wide attention. Stuchell's friends say he is developing a strong following all through Morris county.

Sidney Collins, of Rockaway, has now become the Morris county manager for the Stuchell campaign. He is editor of the Rockaway Record and was formerly connected with "The Jerseyman," of Morristown.

Tomorrow Mr. Stuchell will be the guest at luncheon and also the speaker of the day at the 52nd reunion of the 14th Regiment U. S. Volunteers, which will be held at the Court House, Elizabeth, and at night he speaks at a mass meeting in Springfield.

Other evening meetings are arranged for this week as follows: Thursday, Hillside; Friday, Roselle Park and Saturday, Morristown.

EPWORTH LEAGUE IN CHARGE OF SERVICES AT THE CAMP

The Epworth League, of the Monroe Avenue Methodist church, had charge of the regular Tuesday evening meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last night. Several members of that organization spoke and sang and the children also rendered selections.

Friday evening the meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Robert O. Love, of the Temple Baptist church.

BACK ON THE JOB.

After a summer spent in camp work, C. William Bingeman, boy's secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., is back at the association ready for the opening of the fall term of work.

CHAPTER XIV.

As to the Boy Scouts.

BOYS in our modern life, especially in big cities, do not have the opportunities of getting back to nature as boys did years ago.

However, through this great movement of theirs they come together and talk of outdoor life, and at every opportunity they go into the woods and learn the great lesson of nature. Big men who know have written books on the woods and the animals that live within these woods. The boy scout is obliged to learn about these various animals and things about nature in order to qualify as a first class scout.

I am particularly interested in the different stages of the movement. There are three degrees which the boy must take before he becomes a first class scout. This part of it is a splendid feature, inasmuch as the boy just starting in to be a scout constantly has the incentive of becoming a bigger and better one. I even advocate more degrees, so that a scout can always look forward to something bigger.

The Boy Scouts of America first become what they call tenderfeet. Here they make a start, and a start is a big thing.

A boy must serve at least a month to be eligible to enter the ranks of the second class scouts, and all the while he must learn necessary, practical things of life in order to qualify. He must know how to aid those who are injured, how to cook, how to build fires in the open, how to use a knife and a hatchet and other practical things that thousands of boys do not know today.

Such knowledge makes the boy independent. It gives him an education that will stand back of him in after life. It brings him closer to Mother Nature, whom, in the onward march along the roads of civilization, he has run away from. It gives him health, and health means stronger generations to come.

In order to become a first class scout the boy must know how to swim, to earn a certain sum of money and deposit it in a bank, to make maps, to understand the growing things in the woods and how to live in the open.

What movement can be greater along educational lines? Where does book learning compare with this practical experience in the great outdoors?

Of course have the book learning too, but divide this learning with the learning from the open book of nature.

I understand that there are over 2,000,000 boy scouts in the world today.

I believe it to be the duty of every parent to encourage his boys in this work, and I certainly approve of any such movement for the girls along this line.

I realize only too well that the average boy scout will not go into the depths of the woods as I did. However, I feel that the average American boy of reasonably good health and with a reasonable amount of resourcefulness could accomplish things in the forest that he and his parents would never dream of.

The boy scout will go into the forest where man has been and where there is ample opportunity to get close to nature. He will learn the different growing things and the habits of the animals that frequent his domain. He will learn how to utilize the different materials all about him.

He will come to love the woods, and all fear will leave him. He will get to feel as safe and comfortable in the forest at night as in his own home.

In the summer time the boy in the woods knows he cannot freeze. If he is lost all he has to do is to keep his head. The best place to choose a camp if night overtakes him is in a thicket. If he feels cold he knows enough to get up and run around.

The boy in going into the woods should know in what direction he is going. With this constantly in his mind, he can get his bearings by the moss on the north side of the trees.

IMPLEMENTS MADE AND USED BY KNOWLES IN THE FOREST.

It is useless for me to tell the boy scouts how to build a fire without any matches. They know already. To the boy just beginning the chapter on woodcraft, by Ernest Thompson Seton, in the boy scouts' handbook will explain all that very quickly.

In the winter when the snows are deep and he is walking on snowshoes and night overtakes him it is a simple thing for him to construct a cozy camp for the night. I have done it hundreds of times and have been perfectly comfortable.

He takes off his snowshoes, shovels a hole in the snow with them and fills this hole with boughs. He sticks up a couple of sticks in front, places a cross stick across those and slants boughs covered with bark from the cross stick to the snow in the rear.

After gathering wood enough to last all night he starts his fire in front of the lean-to to the lee side. He can regulate his comfort to suit himself under these conditions, no matter if the temperature is below zero.

There are no animals in the woods in winter that will molest him in any way. The bear is in his den. The moose are in their yards on the tops of the mountains, and they never leave these yards until the snow is gone. The deer are also in yards on the mountains and in the swamps.

The only animals that travel on the light snow are the rabbit, fox, wildcat, mink, fisher and the soft footed animals.

Even if there were vicious animals in the woods none would approach close to a camp so long as a fire was burning.

If a boy hasn't any food he knows he won't starve overnight. In the preceding chapters he can find much material on foods and how to get them.

The more experience a boy has in the woods the more his instinct will be developed.

No guide can describe to you how he finds water. He simply goes and finds it, that is all. He knows instinctively where to go by the trails and the lay of the land.

A boy who lives a great deal in the open will see the folly of smoking. I am not a prude about such things, but I do say that nine out of every ten who smoke acquired the habit because when they were young they thought smoking looked well and made them men. Smoking does not make a man. Rather it shows a weakness for luxury. There is nothing in smoking, and in many cases it is harmful. A man does not need tobacco, and he can be just as contented and even more so without it than he can with it.

There isn't a man I know who smokes who way down in his heart does not wish that he had never started the habit.

I don't even have to mention liquor to a boy scout, for he well knows its evils. God's fresh air is the greatest stimulant in the world, and the use of artificial stimulants is an abuse of the body.

While I am writing to boys I want to pay a tribute to the newsboys of the country. Those little men are an inspiration to me. At their very young age they are laboring upon their own resources, and in the future we are to see some great men come from among their ranks. These boys, with the responsibilities of life upon their shoulders, learn to grasp every opportunity, and the fraternity among them is a wonderful thing to see. Some of them aid materially in the support of the family. They work long and late. With all this work they are always on the alert to improve themselves.

The various newsboy clubs throughout the country have accomplished remarkable things, and valuable men are being made from their memberships.

Boys, there is one question you should always ask yourself, "Am I making the most of what I have?"

It is impossible to describe the feeling of satisfaction that takes possession of one when he knows that he has done his very best. The boy who tries to do as little in life as he can believes he is doing a smart thing and is having an easy time. He is having a hard time instead. He does not know the exhilaration of true happiness—the feeling that makes one glad to be alive.

If every boy and girl could but understand this, how much more each would get out of life!

A boy should never try to reason with his conscience, because his conscience in the long run is right. Instinctively he knows what his duty is, and every time he meets that duty he is making himself a bigger man—a man whom the world will look up to and respect.

Boys and girls, the responsibility of the future lies upon your shoulders. Study nature at every opportunity, for the more you know of nature the more you will know of true living.

The very boys and girls who live today can make history. They can be the ones who, when artificial things have taken possession of the world, can turn civilization back to the true life. This means a future life of health and happiness—a glorious heritage, which will be handed down from them.

When the realization first came upon me in the forest that my battle was not to be physical, but one with my mind, I began to try to create something to combat it. I knew that in order to win this battle I must constantly apply my mind to labor and that in steady labor I would not have time to dwell mentally on my loneliness.

Having been an artist in the civilized life, it was most natural that my mind should turn in that direction. I wished that I might have had my tubes, brushes and canvas, for in that way I could have occupied my mind for hours. But I said to myself, "What is the use of wishing for these things when I have not got them?"

Suddenly it occurred to me that color came from nature and the brushes and canvas came from the same source. Then the thought came to my mind: "Why not try to get my artist materials in the forest? Why was it not possible for art to be foraged just the same as existence?"

To begin with, I had everything necessary right there in the woods. I knew that paper was made of wood pulp. I also knew that brushes were made of animal fur. There was a chance for color everywhere.

FIRM FOUNDATION.

Nothing Can Undermine It in Plainfield.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of hundreds of Plainfield residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

A. K. Mattis, 127 West Fourth street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was troubled for years by a dull backache and pains in my head. I believe that it was due in a great measure to a bad fall I had. Nothing seemed to help me and when I read of the good work Doan's Kidney Pills were doing in similar cases, I got a supply at Randolph's drug store. They drove away the aches and pains and gave proof of their merit. I confirm the endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills when they cured me a few years ago. The cure has been permanent."

By JUDIC CHOLLET

The skirt that gives the ripple effect is the newest for little girls, as it is for their elders, and this one can be made with one, two or three flounces.

It is a very charming little dress, including all the newest features, smart in the extreme, at the same time retaining the simplicity that makes such an important feature of prevailing fashions.

The blouse is just long waisted enough to be becoming. The sleeves are joined to it at the drooping shoulder line and give the Japanese effect, and the one piece skirt is slightly circular.

For the twelve year size the dress will require six and three-quarter

Some Cookery Suggestions

GOOD CHICKEN DINNER.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.
Baked Chicken Pie.
Potatoes au Gratin.
Scalloped Onions.
Lettuce Salad.
Plum Rock.
Coffee.

A SUBSTANTIAL meal may be prepared with the chicken left from the day before by making a chicken pie. It may form a feature of the dinner menu suggested here.

With Various Vegetables.

Cream of Vegetable Soup.—Wash, peel and cut up two carrots, two potatoes and two white turnips into one-half inch dice, with one-fourth head of cabbage and some celery leaves. Boil in a pint and a half of water until soft; then mash through a strainer with the liquor. Make a white sauce by creaming together a tablespoonful each of butter and flour and adding a cupful of milk and seasoning to taste. Add the strained vegetable liquor gradually to this; let it boil and serve.

A Savory Pastry.

Baked Chicken Pie.—Take two cupfuls of cut potatoes, a small onion cut up, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, a dash of pepper and salt to taste. Put the potatoes and onion on in a quart of chicken stock and boil twenty minutes; then add the cold boiled chicken and boil ten minutes; add the salt, pepper, parsley and one tablespoonful flour mixed with a little cold water; boil three minutes. Line bake pan with crust, put in the chicken and potatoes, cover with crust, brush with a little cold milk and bake thirty-five minutes or until light brown.

Scalloped Onions.—Peel and cut up onions and simmer in just enough water to cover them, adding a bit of soda. Drain them, saving the water for soup, and place the onions in a deep baking dish which has been well buttered. Fill the dish with a thick white sauce and cover with breadcrumbs. Bake until a golden brown.

Whipped Cream Dressing.

Plum Rock.—Simmer a quart of ripe plums and one cupful each of sugar and water. When the fruit is tender remove the stones, drain off the sirup and put the pulp into a bowl. Return the sirup to the saucepan and when boiling dissolve in it one-half ounce of gelatin which has been softened in one-half cupful of cold water. Stir until the gelatin is thoroughly dissolved; then add the plum pulp, one-half cupful of blanched almonds, coarsely chopped, and, if not sweet enough, a little more sugar. Mix all well together and pour the mixture into a square mold. When quite cold and firm and ready to serve cut it carefully into neat blocks, pile them irregularly around the sides of a glass dish and fill up the center with whipped sweetened cream. Serve with any light cake that you may prefer.

Anna Thompson.

Licked the Little Boy's Face.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Tale of The Little Lost Day

"I'LL tell you the tale of a little lost day, kiddies," said daddy.

"Wasn't it ever found?" asked Evelyn.

"No," said daddy, "and the little boy who lost it felt very bad every time he thought about it. But thinking about it and being sorry didn't bring it back.

"Every morning when this little boy got back from the Land of Nod there was a new day all ready for him to play and work with—a new day, all full of light to whisper to him that if he would do this and do that he would be both happy and useful. And for some time the little boy made the most of his days and enjoyed their company very much. He worked hard and played hard and enjoyed every day so much that he would regret it being gone and looked forward with all the more enjoyment to the next.

"But this little boy, like many another little boy, got so he didn't like to work very well. He wanted to play all the time.

"One day—it was just the start of vacation, and he just squeezed through into the next higher grade—his parents said to him: 'We will take you and the other children on a picnic to the lake tomorrow. We will start early, and you must get up when you're called.' He was so pleased, and he promised that he would do just as he was told.

"Well, he didn't get up when he was called. He turned over, and he didn't hear his father say, 'It's time that young man learned his lesson.'

"Well, children, he got up after a long while and dressed—oh, so fast!—and he hurried into his clothes and downstairs.

"But there wasn't any one there. They had all gone to the picnic. He didn't want to cry because it wasn't manly. He didn't want to play because he didn't, and the couldn't eat because there was a big lump in his throat that he couldn't swallow, and there was his part of the picnic lunch on the dining room table, too—pinky frosted cake and all.

"He was sitting upon the doorstep leading into the woodshed, trying just as hard as he could to swallow that lump, when little Babs, his doggie, crept into his arms, snuggled down and licked the little boy's face with her pink furry tongue.

"At this bit of sympathy the lump did get itself swallowed, and the tears ran down the poor little boy's face.

"'Oh, Babs, Babs,' he sobbed, rocking back and forth, 'I've lost my day; I've lost my day! I wish I were dead, Babs; I do, I do!'

"Then he fell asleep, and because he was so lonely and hungry and forlorn he slept till the others came home and wakened to hear about the wonders of the day that the others had not lost."

SCOOP, THE CUB REPORTER — SCOOP'S GENERAL SMOKES GOOD CIGARS — BY "HOP"

MRS. HARRIET FERRIS, PIONEER WESTFIELD RESIDENT, DEAD

Westfield, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Harriet E. Ferris, ninety years old, widow of James Ferris, of 129 Prospect street, died yesterday. Mrs. Ferris was a native of New York, but had been a resident of this place for fifty-six years. She had resided in Westfield since it was a farming district, the Ferris family owning much of the land in the community. For many years the deceased was one of the most prominent and active workers in the First Methodist church and for over forty years was president of the Ladies' Aid Society.

She was one of the pioneers in the beginning of the old-time circulating library and later became a trustee of the Westfield Public Library. Mrs. Ferris was active in movements for the welfare of the town and only relinquished her work when infirmities of old age affected her activity.

CARNIVAL AT OAK TREE.

The carnival at the Marcennier Reformed church at Oak Tree is to open tonight, with a large committee in charge of the consistory, headed by R. H. Leveridge. Buses will make three trips from this city, leaving Martin's garage and the post-office at seven, eight and nine o'clock, going by way of South Plainfield. The return trips will be made at the convenience of the patrons.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER
Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful fn a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

GERMANS HAVE CLEAR ROAD TO PARIS

ALL EFFORTS TO BLOCK THEM FAIL; PRUSSIANS ADVANCE IN PRUSSIA; KAISER WILHELM DER GROSSE SUNK

700,000 Germans Push Opponents Back Along French Frontier, as French Take Offensive in Lorraine--Austrian Fleet Driven Away When Bombarding Badua--Norwegian Merchantman Blown Up by Floating Mine in North Sea--Official Statements Lacking at Both London and Paris.

London, Aug. 27 (Central News Cable).—The German army has captured Lille, Roubaix and Valenciennes, the gates of northern France and the road to Paris lies open and virtually undefended. In the direct line to Paris the lone fort of Perron is all that opposes the German march. This news reached London today from Ostend, Belgium. All efforts to block the flanking attack of the Germans appear to have failed.

A force of 700,000 Germans today are reported to have attacked the allies along the southern Belgium frontier. Cavalry raids between Lille and Maubeuge opened the battle. Infantry charges and terrific bombardment from heavy field guns followed. The French evacuated Lille without a fight, according to an Ostend despatch. The force from Lille now forms the allies' left wing from Maubeuge.

The allied army is giving way in northern France. The English War Office refuses to furnish any details, but insists that the movement has already been provided for. Reports that the forts of Longwy and Montmedy have been captured by the Germans are again current. Their capture, however, is declared by the military experts to be comparatively unimportant, inasmuch as they already had been isoluated by the German enveloping movement.

It is officially announced that the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, belonging to the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, has been sunk by the British cruiser Highflyer. No further details are yet to hand. The ship had been fitted out as an auxiliary cruiser for the German navy and was sunk off the west coat of Africa.

New York, Aug. 27.—At the local offices of the North German Lloyd Company it was stated that no information had been received regarding the reported sinking of the Wilhelm Der Grosse, nor was it likely that they would hear. The fact that it was now an auxiliary cruiser in the German navy took its control automatically out of the line's hands.

St. Petersburg, via Rome, Aug. 27.—That the plans of the Russian army contemplate an attack on Berlin within three weeks was officially admitted here today. At the same time it was stated that not only has the Russian mobilization been completed but that 8,000,000 men are now under arms.

Rome, Aug. 27 (Central News Cable).—The Tribuna, this morning, publishes a despatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent which states that the Russian army is now operating in western Prussia and is rapidly marching on Dantzic. The despatch adds that immense numbers of the population have already fled and the remainder of the German inhabitants are preparing to leave the city. The Tribuna's correspondent also states that Berlin is in a state of panic, owing to the swift movement of the Russians towards the German capital.

The Messagero today publishes a despatch from its Cettinge correspondent, which says that the Gulf of Cattaro is being held by an Austrian fleet composed of four cruisers and eight torpedo boat destroyers. The despatch states that yesterday two of the torpedo boats began a bombardment of Badua on the Dalmatian coast, a seaport captured by the Montenegrins, but on the approach of the allied fleets the firing stopped and a quick getaway was manoeuvred by the Austrian boats. The despatch adds that the officers of the Austrian criuser Zenda admit that besides the Zenta an Austrian torpedo boat was sunk in the recent engagement with a combination of French and English warships.

Italy is calling four more classes of reservists to the colors, which is taken as a strong indication that the Government will soon intervene in the war.

Nish, Aug. 27 (Central News Cable).—The recent fighting between the Servian army and the Austrian forces in the neighborhood of Losnitza and Sabatz in the northeast corner of Servia, has resulted in so complete a victory for Servian arms that the entire Austrian front extending from the Poser Mountains to the Jadar Valley is in full flight across the Bosian border. It is expected that the Servians will initiate a general offensive movement by Sunday. The Austrians appear to be thoroughly demoralized.

London, Aug. 27 (Central News Cable).—The French have resumed the offensive in Lorraine. A battle is now reported raging between Montmecy and Luneville today. The German army at Metz has advanced to meet this charge.

St. Petersburg reports, as officially announced, that the Russian advance is proceeding in Prussia with irresistible force. The Germans have retreated to Osterod, a town in East Prussia, 100 miles west of Gumbinnen.

A despatch to the Havas Agency from Kraguyovatz, Servia, declares that the Austrian army has evacuated the Sanjak of Novipazar.

The Norwegian steamship Gottfried has been blown up in the North Sea by coming in contact with a floating mine.

Eight members of the crew lost their lives when the Norwegian Steamship Gottfried, was blown up. Thirteen survivorz of the vessel were landed at Shields.

Despite a report sent by the Ostend correspondent of the Daily Express, that the French manufacturing city of Lille, has been surrendered to the Germans, the war office here asserts it has no information on the matter.

POLICE TROUBLED BY THOUGHTLESS DRIVERS

Depot Driveway Traffic Regulations Will Have to Be Adhered to.

Many of those who are in the habit of driving carriages and automobiles up the inclined driveway to the east bound Central Railroad station are unfamiliar with the traffic regulations which have been established by the police department and considerable trouble has been encountered by the patrolmen in enforcing the regulations. For some time past it has been customary to enter the depot park by way of Park avenue and leave by way of Fourth street.

This regulation is respected by a majority of those who drive vehicles but there are some who have become negligent. Several have been stopped by the minions of the law and made to go back over the route as a means of impressing the restriction on their minds. This has its effect until now only a few attempt to exit by way of Park avenue.

This ordinance was adopted for the purpose of insuring public safety. A number of narrow escapes from serious injury and possibly loss of life have been recorded in the past at the juncture of Park avenue and the railroad driveway and this means of abolishing the hazardous driving was adopted. The incline is a steep one on the Park avenue side and it is almost impossible for vehicle drivers to see other machines approaching the spot from a southerly or northerly direction when they are coming out of the driveway.

SEYMOUR PERKINS TO RUN FOR COUNCILMAN

Seymour Perkins, of Watchung avenue, has announced his intention of seeking the Democratic nomination for member of the Common Council in the primaries next month, simultaneously with the filing of his petition today by his supporters in the Second ward.

Mr. Perkins is well known locally, being a director of the State Trust Company, Plainfield, a vestryman of Grace church and assistant superintendent of its Sunday-school. In business he is associated with Rhoades & Company, bankers, New York City.

Mr. Perkins is particularly well fitted to serve as a member of the Council. He not only has a broad business experience but he is a graduate of Columbia University, class of 1897, with a degree of Civil Engineer, and having qualified as a member of the New York Bar, his technical training should prove of exceptional value. His supporters are gratified that they have been able to persuade a man of his calibre to represent the Second ward in the Council.

FIREMAN MAY BE ASKED TO RESIGN

Inside Detective Work Results In Solution of a Department Mystery.

Some inside detective work on the part of firemen stationed at the headquarters on East Second street has resulted in the solution of a mystery that has been bothering the men for sometime past and may result in the discharge of one of the city's employes at that place. Recently a number of petty thefts have been reported to Chief Doane but no trace of the crook could be obtained. At various times pockets of the men sleeping there have been rifled and money that was left around was appropriated by someone else. It was noticed that in a majority of the cases the petty thefts were of money. Tuesday night a trap was laid for the individual who has been doing the jobs and a marked quarter was left in a conspicuous place as "bait."

Yesterday one of the firemen expressed himself as being in need of a quarter and one of his comrades obligingly let him have the amount. To his surprise he found that the loan was the marked quarter and suspicion centered around one of the firemen. It is now said that department proceedings will be brought against him and he will be asked to resign.

Although it is customary to report robberies of this kind to the police department, information given out at that place this morning by Acting Chief John Flynn indicated that he had not been informed of the affair. The books at headquarters bear no record of the deed and for this reason the police department has taken no hand in bringing the accused to justice.

TO HOLD SUFFRAGE MEETING AT DUNELLEN TOMORROW

Following a meeting of the executive board of State Suffrage Association, which will be held tomorrow noon at Colonial Farm, Dunellen, the home of its president, Mrs. E. F. Feickert, there will be an open conference for all interested Suffragists. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to attend. In order to reach the farm take the Main Line trolley to Madison avenue, Dunellen, turn to the right upon alighting and walk to the end of Madison to the farm.

DOG BIT CHILD.

A dog owned by Patrick Donnelley, of 317 Stebbins place, yesterday afternoon bit the little daughter of Charles Drake, of West Fourth street. Drake reported the incident to the police and Donnelley was hailed to court this morning. He was instructed to keep the animal tied for a period of twelve days. The canine is also said to have bitten several other dogs in that vicinity.

LOCAL POLICE DELEGATE.

Cornelius McCarthy, of the local police force, has been elected as delegate of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, the annual session of which is to be held at Atlantic City, September 3 and 4.

OAK TREE CARNIVAL IS GREAT SUCCESS

Annual Affair Drew 500 or More People At Opening—Repeated Tonight.

The carnival at Oak Tree last night was a pronounced success. The people from the various parts of the countryside turned out enmasse. It is estimated that at least 500 people were on the grounds, the great majority remaining up nearly to midnight, while many others were coming and going. Strings of electric lights covered the grounds in all directions, radiating out like the spokes of a wheel from the Marcannier church in the centre, making a fairy-like canopy of brilliancy, making the scene visible for a long distance away.

As one entered the grounds a large booth arranged as a hollow square decorated with patriotic bunting kept the committee busy dishing out ice cream which the many waitresses were carrying constantly to the score of tables where guests were seated regaling themselves with this and other refreshments. These tables were found everywhere in cozy and convenient places.

In front of the church, a high covered framework is erected on which Walter F. Palmer, of Brooklyn, has placed his motion picture machine, reflecting the pictures through a window upon a sheet stretched over the back part of the auditorium. Mr. Palmer's pictures are of a very high class and he has with him his three daughters who are excellently trained as musical entertainers. Especially was Miss Florence Palmer's playing on the saxaphone well received, and Master Bryant Stout's rendition of some of the airs from "Faust" on violin. Master Stout is only twelve years old. Two of the picture exhibitors, and musical treats were given during the evening, each lasting an hour, to audiences that packed the church.

Outside, at some time, there was always a throng of people on the grounds, attracted by the many booths and amusements. A booth with pink colored decoration displayed a large assortment of candy put up in many kinds of unique and beautiful boxes and fancy packages, specially designed to attract and please patrons at such affairs as last night's carnival.

Another booth, decorated in green, was well supplied by the women of the congregation, who have been busy for weeks with their needles making various useful articles and also much in the way of finery. This table found many customers and is under the care of Mrs. W. A. Neidlinger. A beautiful arbor of green vines amid which the electric lights twinkling and from which were suspended many mysterious packages which proved when purchased to contain toys for the little ones who were continually begging their elders for pennies to try their luck.

Another stand, where toys are openly displayed, contains the usual regulation carnival toys of the noisy type, i. e., horns and rattles.

Towards the centre of the grounds is a booth, large in dimensions with counters running along three sides on which the women serve a very good supper, hot chowder, frankfurters, sandwiches, hot corn on the ear, coffee, etc. from a convenient outdoor kitchen. The whole of this restaurant and kitchen is covered with a high framework of vines and electric lights, while nearly a circle of green branches inside of which is a large well, soda water and home-made root beer are for sale.

Last but not least is the midway, a rifle range where rifles are heard constantly cracking. A stand of pen knives over which rings are attempted to be thrown, a fence through the window of which a negro's face is seen and one has the privilege on paying the small charge of 5 cents of having the fun of throwing three tomatoes at this face. Base balls are throw at or a hole in a barrel. Other booths are cake and pie stands tastefully decorated, vegetables fresh from the Oak Tree gardens and even some live stock as chickens and a squealing pig.

A negro orchestra keeps the air filled with sweet sounds and in fact the pleasure seekers were gratified in every way and all went away feeling the evening was one long to be remembered.

To night is the last night of the carnival. The auto bus will run from the Plainfield postoffice and Martin's garage at 7, 8 and 9 p. m., via. South Plainfield, making a most pleasant auto ride which it is hoped Plainfield people will avail themselves of.

Miss Henrietta Winn, of Duer street, returned home last night after an extended trip through the New England States.

SOME CUCUMBER.

Here is a story turned into the Daily Press office, this morning, by the Dunellen correspondent, who has never turned in anything wrong yet:

"Warren Ayers, of Whittier avenue, has raised the father of all cucumbers. Its length is four feet, nine and a quarter inches, and its circumference nine and a half inches."

HOW 4TH WARD PERSONAL ASSESSMENT WAS REDUCED

In talking about the decrease in personal assessments in the Fourth ward, as shown by the figures made public in the Daily Press on Wednesday night, Assessor Henry Liefke said today that in reality he had made an increase of over $20,000 in the personal assessments in his ward, although on the face of the figures a decrease of over $2,000 was shown. The Public Service Corporation dismantled its West Second street plant since last year, which made a decrease of $25,000 in the personal figure in the ward. In other places, Mr. Liefke made raises of about $23,000, so that the net loss was only a little over $2,000.

THINK MAN WAS INJURED IN A FALL FROM FREIGHT

An official of the Central Railroad of New Jersey called at the local police headquarters, this morning, in an effort to locate one John Murphy, who is supposed to have been injured near the carnival grounds on West Front street, last night, by a train.

Only meagre information could be obtained in the matter as the police have no report of the accident and no one by that name has been taken to the hospital. It is not known how badly the man was injured, but he is supposed to have fallen from a freight train.

SEWING MACHINE AGENTS ATTACKED HIM, HE SAYS

The case of Morris Estrin, of Somerset street, against Charles E. Baurmley, of Orange, and John W. Harding, of East Second street, alleging assault and battery, was called this morning in the North Plainfield police court before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape. Estrin alleges that one of the men held him while the other struck him following an argument concerning a sewing machine, for which the two men were agents. Francis J. Blatz represented Mr. Estrin, while George W. Bird acted as counsel for the defendants. The case was laid over until tomorrow evening at which time the case will be heard in borough headquarters at 8 o'clock. The defendants were placed in the custody of their counsel until the hearing.

Gibson, of Locust Point, the ceremony having taken place last Wednesday, August 19, at Brooklyn. Rev. W. E. Fleming, of the latter place, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Gibson, who was a summer resident at Locust Point, is a graduate of Riverside Seminary, at Red Bank. Mr. Gibson is the manager of the New Amsterdam Hotel at Locust Point. The young couple will reside at Brooklyn during the winter.

HAS BEEN IN COMA FOR SIXTEEN HOURS

Unconscious for sixteen hours, Michael DeCourcey, of 339 East Third street, is in a serious condition in Muhlenberg Hospital where he was brought late last night following a stroke of apoplexy with which he was afflicted on West Front street.

When placed in the police patrol on West Front street, the man was unconscious and when he remained in this state after reaching headquarters Sergeant Higgins became alarmed and called City Physician Norman W. Currie. Upon examination it was found that he had suffered a stroke and the physician ordered his immediate removal to the hospital.

Since his admission to that institution all efforts to arouse him from the coma have proven futile and his condition is extremely critical. He is married and was at one time a well known printer here.

BROOKLYN MAN DIES IN MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL

Richard VanDorn, a newspaper man of one of the New York dailies, whose residence is supposed to be on Hanover street, Brooklyn, died this morning at Muhlenberg Hospital. Mr. VanDorn, who is a stranger in this city, and had no friends here as far as could be learned, was taken ill on Park avenue, Sunday afternoon, and taken to the local institution. From the first it was supposed that he would be able to return to his home in the course of a few days, but complications developed, and he passed away this morning. The hospital authorities are today trying to locate relatives of the man in Brooklyn.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY, HE INSISTS ON GOING HOME

While driving a horse belonging to Neuman Brothers, yesterday afternoon, James Forristel, eighteen years old, was thrown from the vehicle when the horse took fright, and sustained a slight concussion of the brain. The boy was hurled to the macadam roadbed striking on his head.

After being injured the youth refused to go to the hospital and made his way to the office of several doctors, all of whom were out. He finally consented to go to the institution for treatment and the exact extent of his injuries were found upon examination. After being treated he refused to remain at the hospital despite the advice of the doctors in charge of the case, and went to his home on Arlington avenue.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

The other day I needed to do some shopping. My husband suggested I go to New York. The weather was hot and I was busy so I looked over the Daily Press advertisements and saw what I wanted advertised at Tepper's and drove down town.

Miss Alice Keely, that delightfully agreeable young lady in Tepper's dress department, showed me some dresses and within a few minutes I had selected two, amounting to $7.96 for both; then I went into the millinery department and bought a hat for $2.79. This brought my purchases up to $10.73 and I feel certain these articles could not be duplicated for the same price in New York or Newark.

Had I gone to New York it would have taken a whole day, over a dollar for carfare and money for lunch, to say nothing of probably buying things I really did not need. Besides, I would have reached home tired and ready for the bathtub and would have needed another day at least to rest up. As it was, I was away from home about two hours, went to one store, was waited on by an obliging, courteous young lady, who didn't throw a chair in my direction with a "Take a seat madam" and then strut off to wait on someone else, but who paid so much attention to me as if I were the only person she had to serve that whole day (and I might say right here I have always found the clerks of Plainfield to be exceptionally pleasant and eager to please), and I came home delighted with my purchases and as clean and rested as when I started out. Since this I bought a pair of men's kahki trousers at Sam Rothberg's for $1.25, and upon pricing the same kind in New York found they were marked $1.75.

The advantages gained by trading in Plainfield are many and my opinion is our people make a great mistake in thinking it necessary to go out of town to shop.

Very truly yours,

(MRS.) SARAH H. HENRY.

According to a letter received by Mrs. Breyer from Miss Anna Rich she and her brother do not see any reason for alarm and scurrying home. London is at present packed with tourists, who are arriving every day from all parts of the continent. The main desire of these tourists is to get passage to America. So anxious are they to be embarked that it doesn't seem to make any difference to them whether their quarters are in the first cabin or steerage. Dr. Stanley and Miss Anna intend to remain in London until the rush to sail is over. Considering the times London is comparatively peaceful Its inhabitants do not seem to be afraid of any Zeppelin sailing over the city and dropping bombs on their heads. Outside of bands of men parading the streets and singing national hymns with displayed flags by day and torchlights by night, London is no different than it has ever been.

DISCIPLINE AND ORDER FEATURES OF SHOWS

Johnny Jones Says That Nothing Else Goes With His Carnival Company.

Another big crowd, last night, visited the lot where the Johnny J. Jones Exposition Shows are giving an exhibit this week under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, and the various attractions were liberally patronized. The shows are fully living up to the excellent reputation made when they were here in May, 1913.

More than a little commendatory comment has been heard about the manner in which the shows are run, discipline and decency being things which the management insists on. Manager Jones, in speaking to a Press reporter about this feature, last night, said:

"We work on the presumption that decency and good order is expected of us at all times and that we are doing no more than the right thing by promoting our shows in the manner we do. However, I will admit that there are some show people who are not as much concerned with that end of the business as they might be. They are not our kind."

Another feature that the Johnny J. Jones people deserve to be complimented upon is their lighting system. The carnival midway is certainly a "great white way" and the brilliancy of the canvas fronts of the shows, the dress of the performers, the music of the two bands, the bark of the barkers and the bally hoo all make as lively and jolly a scene as any holiday crowd could wish.

ASBURY PARK PARADE SEEN BY THOUSANDS

Asbury Park, Aug. 27—Between sixty and seventy thousand delighted onlookers lined the great ocean boulevard from ten to twenty deep on each side of the mile stretch of the wide avenue yesterday, to view the muster of the nation's hopefuls at the twenty-fourth annual baby parade.

Over five hundred entrants marched before the reviewing stand occupied by Governor James F. Fielder and his staff on the west side of the great amphitheatre, while directly opposite His Excellency was Queen Titania XIV. in the person of Miss Virgina Hope Kelsey, and her court entourage in all the pomp and splendor of royalty fresh from fairyland, whither they had come to receive the homage of her loyal subjects.

The baby parade has come to be the big feature of the series of social events connected with the children's carnival, which closes this year with a masque fete on the boardwalk on the evening of September 4. This year it excelled all previous shows for spectacular magnificence and gorgeous variety, and put the judges of the several divisions to their wit's end in making the awards. As it was, all passed off smoothly and both doting papas and fond mammas were sent away to their homes happy and contented in possession of some tangible souvenir of the historic event. Over three hundred valuable prizes were awarded, while each child in the parade was the recipient of a beautiful loving cup, regardless of the merit of its display.

The leading prize winners were Ralph Barrington Moore, of New York, age four years, who won the blue ribbon as a wounded soldier, hobbling along on crutches and bearing the legend, "After the War." Miss Hazel McVey and Rita Shay, tots of three years, took first prize, nestled in a great flower bed as "Our Wisteria Blossoms." In the float division, the grand prize went to a handsomely mounted float, on which stood at "Attention" at the four corners of the float, boys clad to represent, respectively, the armies of England, Russia, France and Belgium, while in the center of the stage-like float stood a lad in the uniform of a United States soldier, bearing the word "Neutrality," and on the sides of the float the words, "Let us follow the President's advice and be neutral," entered by Russel Doyle, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., who received a magnificent gold loving cup standing more than a foot high. The queen's prize, a pony and cart, was won by Miss Florence Booth, of Asbury Park, aged three years, one month.

White columns, from which streamed flags and bunting, lined the way of the marchers. A fanfare of trumpets heralded the vanguard of the procession, which emerged from the casino, headed by the band of the Wartburg Orphan School, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Colonel Arthur L. Steele, of the United States Army, acted as grand marshal, leading a squad of United States regulars and National Guardsmen. Behind them came the marshal of the queen's escort, Lieutenant-Colonel George T. Vickers, of the Fourth New Jersey Infantry, and Assistant Grand Marshal Michael E. Sexton, of Asbury Park. Thirty maids gowned in white satin and carrying spears, the bodyguard of Queen Titania XIV., followed.

Then came Titania Rex, in a golden seashell chariot. Surrounding the royal coach were men of arms and heralds in gorgeous satin and silk trappings. Following in victorias came the ladies of the royal family.

Arriving at the big amphitheatre at Fifth avenue, the queen and her party grouped themselves in the royal pavilion and reviewed the little army as it trooped by. As usual, the baby coach and go-cart division led the parade. The division was in charge of Mrs. Francis A. Pawley. Doll coaches, in charge of Mrs. Samuel Metzgar, were next in line. Other division were: Express wagons, captain, Wilbur V. Coleman; costumes in fancy dress and college colors, captain, James M. Gentle; costumes in burlesque, captain, Mrs. John W. Martin; floats, captain, William K. Devereaux; pony turnouts, captain, E. H. Dolbey.

Colonel John W. Aymar is president of the Carnival Association, under whose auspices the parade was held. The other members of the commission are Arthur F. Cottrell, George W. Pittenger and A. W. Cornelius. Former Governor Leon B. Taylor acted as escort to Governor Fielder, and the escorts of the queen were Arthur F. Crottrezem, Joseph M. Turner, Roy Duffield, Mr. Kays, Paul Morgan, Ralph Pearce, Kroehl Taylor and Ward Kraemer.

SMALL FIRE IN BOROUGH.

A still fire alarm was caused yesterday afternoon in the borough by a flaming lounge in the third floor of the flats at 90 Somerset street. The department responded and extinguished the blaze with chemicals. The damage was slight.

HOW THEY GET MEN FOR DEFENSE OF GT. BRITAIN

Morris Abrams, the West Front street merchant, has an uncle in St. John's N. F., from whom he has received a copy of an advertisement appearing in a St. John's paper calling for volunteers to fight for England. In the letter which accompanied the clipping it was stated that conditions were very bad in that part of Canada. The proclamation was as follows:

PROCLAMATION!

By His Excellency Sir Walter Edward Davidson, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Island of Newfoundland and its Dependencies.

YOUR KING AND COUNTRY NEED YOU!

Will You Answer Your Country's Call?

At this very moment the Empire is engaged in the greatest War in the history of the World.

In this crisis your country calls on her young men to rally round Her Flag and enlist in the ranks of Her Army.

If every Patriotic young man answers Her Call, Great Britain and the Empire will emerge stronger and more united than ever.

Newfoundland responds to the Homeland's Call and promises to enlist, equip and despatch to England the First Newfoundland Regiment of 500 strong. We want to send our best, and we believe that Britain's Oldest Colony will gain greater honour and glory for Her Name.

If you are between 19 and 35 years old, will you answer your Country's Call? If you will, then go to the nearest Magistrate and enroll your name for service in the fighting line. If you live in St. John's go to the C. L. B. Armoury and enter your name at the Central Recruiting Office, or any evening between 8 p. m. and 10 p. m.

Tickets to St. John's will be provided by the Magistrate free of cost.

The terms of enlistment are: To serve abroad for the duration of the war, but not exceeding one year. It is intended the men shall leave within one month of their enrollment, and that in the meantime they shall receive a course of instruction and training in St. John's.

A complete outfit will be provided.

Each private will receive at the rate of $1.00 per day and free rations, from the date of enrollment to the date of return, a portion of which will be paid to dependents left behind, or it will be allowed to accumulate for their personal benefit until termination of service.

Volunteers from outports will be given free passage to St. John's.

Any applicant for service, forwarded by the proper authorities and not accepted after arrival at Headquarters, will be provided with a free passage and maintenance back to his home.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

Given under by Hand and Seal at the Government House, St. John's, this 21st day of August, A. D., 1914.

By His Excellency's Command,
JOHN R. BENNETT,
Colonial Secretary.

WAR AND SUMMER RESORTS.

The old adage about "an ill wind, etc.," is well illustrated in the case of the European war and the summer resorts. The early part of the present season even the most optimistic hotel men admitted that business was poor, as poor in fact, as it has been in many years. But as soon as the war was declared all was changed, and more than one manager is reported as saying that the trouble can keep on for years, so far as he is concerned. The resorts are enjoying an unprecedented boom.

Europe is entirely too unhealthy for any American vacationists now, and some of them wish they had never started abroad. They have regretted ever since the declaration of hostilities that they did not pick out the New Jersey coast, the White Mountains, the Adirondacks, the Poconos, or popular Maine watering places, to say nothing of the countless other localities in the east and the many in the west that afford opportunity for pleasure, recreation or rest.

London hotels, which depend upon Yankee visitors, are empty. Ostend, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, the mud and other bath resorts of continental Europe, and the places that are most frequented by Americans in Russia are bemoaning their losses because of the war. Their season is brought to a close months ahead of schedule time. The result is that there will not be that harvest which every season is counted in the millions. That money will be spent at our own summer resorts.

While many will miss the pleasures and the chance for the knowledge to be gained through pilgrimages to ancient and historic cities, museums and shrines, there is plenty in this grand land to see and enjoy, and now, in view of the risks of travel abroad, is a very good time to "See America First."

A CHANGE NEEDED.

Like all good laws, there are some things about the new election law under which the State is now working that should be changed. A situation has arisen in connection with the failure of a Congressional candidate in South Jersey to properly file his petition, that makes it possible for him to greatly harass a man who will be properly nominated at the primaries next month.

George D. Chenowith, of Gloucester county, whose Congressional nominating petition was refused by the Secretary of State on Monday because it did not have the proper party designation, has announced that he will run on an independent Progressive ticket. This he will be able to do by filing an independent petition after the primary election. This petition will entitle him to have his name upon the regular election ballots November 3.

Chenowith will then be able to contest at the November election with George H. Higgins, of Camden county, the regular Progressive candidate. Mr. Higgins has duly filed a nominating petition for the primary election, and being unopposed, is sure to be nominated by his party. It is one of the complications of the New Jersey election laws that Chenowith, although he failed to comply with the primary regulations, is able after the primary election, to contest for the seat in Congress with a man who observed the law in every particular.

AN ALL PLAINFIELD TICKET.

Speaking of boosting the home town, how would it do to vote for the following Plainfielders at the November election:

For Congress: George W. V. Moy, Prog.

For State Senator: Percy H. Stewart, Dem.

For Assemblymen: William N. Runyon, Rep.; F. Otto Linke, Dem.

For Sheriff: Either John H. Cose or Samuel P. T. Wilbur, Republicans.

For County Clerk: John P. Owens, Dem.

For County Registrar: Frank H. Smith, Rep.

If all should be nominated on their respective tickets, and most of them will, Plainfielders could give the Elizabeth people a little dose of the medicine which has been handed to the other parts of the county by the county seat politicians for many years.

The American public is coming to look upon deeds of heroism by telephone operators pretty much as they expect acts of bravery from soldiers and policemen. Telephone operators have figured actively and creditably in so many acts that call for special courage that the public has finally reached the conclusion that telephone girls must be that kind of girls, and let it go at that. Nobody has asked whether these deeds of courage are so regular because the girls are naturally brave, or whether their heroism comes from their training. Maybe this is because it wouldn't look well to make any inquiries, for what difference does it make? So long as telephone operators continue to keep their switchboards open and stick to their duty while fire, or flood, or lightning rages all around them, making duty a dangerous condition, and life somewhat of a temporary burden, why should we bother to fix as a fact that these girls just all happen to be courageous? Anybody who has ever tried to train someone in bravery knows what it is.

When notice was given that members of the House of Representatives would be "docked" $25 for each day absent, the rush to the capital from summer resorts and home towns where political fences were being repaired was so noticeable that the railroads had to put extra cars on the trains. It's a shame that the nation cannot get as much for its money as any private business house would demand.

In case of his nomination, which may well be expected in view of his strength as a seasoned campaigner, former Judge William N. Runyon will add much to the Republican ticket when that party makes its appeal for votes at the November election. Although he has led a hopeless cause in the last two Congressional campaigns, he is one of those people who can come back, and he will be a power in the House of Assembly if chosen.

Let's see, isn't it the same Walter Linbarger who "retired" from politics last year after his failure to receive the county clerk nomination, who is now circulating petitions for A. M. Beekman, who would be Senator from Somerset?

"WAR PRIMER" GUIDE FOR PRESS READERS

National Geographical Society Issues Bulletin Descriptive of the War Zone.

A bulletin has been issued from the Bureau of Geographic Information of the National Geographic Societ, in Washington, D. C., containing intelligence very pertinent to the war zone in Europe. The society has information regarding the topographical and human conditions of all parts of the world. In such a situation as is now brought about by the war the society is able to refer to compilations that mirror all the facts about the present battle grounds.

The society has issued this information with specific attention to the war territory. While this same information is used by military authorities in times of war, it will be inestimable value to close followers of war news. The bulletin follows under the caption "War Primer:"

LOUVAIN.—The capital of Belgium in the day before the rise of Brussels. Its population is about 50,000, and it is situated about 15 miles northeast of the present capital. With Tirlemont, St. Trond and Tongress it furnishes the line for holding back the movement of the enemy across the territory between Brussels and Liege. Local tradition has it that Louvain was established as a permanent military camp by Julius Caesar. The common people rose up against the nobles during the fourteenth century, but were put down after a struggle of 20 years. Thereafter the importance and prosperity of Louvain declined, and Brussels took its place. It has one of the finest universities in Belgium, which prides itself most on its theological school.

LIBAU.—A port of Russia, on the Baltic Sea, a little less than 50 miles from the extreme northern part of Northeast Prussia. It has a population of about 75,000. Troops marching from Menel, Prussia, could arrive by land without leaving their own territory more than 50 miles behind. It has railway connections with Moscow, Orel and Kharkov. There are numerous factories making gunpowder, soap, machinery and tin plate. There are also large sawmills and flour mills. The exports are valued at about $25,000,000 a year. North of the commercial harbor is the naval stronghold, consisting of extensive fortifications, breakwaters and moles. These defenses were finished eight years ago.

DIEST.—A town equidistant from Liege, Antwerp and Brussels, about 23 miles from each, and a little north of the air line between Liege and Antwerp. It is one of the five fortified places in Belgium, and has many breweries. It protects both Brussels and Antwerp from military movements by way of Maastricht.

HASSELT.—The capital of Belgian Limburg, at the junction of several important railroads. It has many breweries and distilleries. It is famous for its great septennial celebration of the day of the Assumption, in honor of the Virgin—under the name of Virga Jesse. On these occasions, the date of which is August 15, the town is converted into a forest of fire, by the collection and planting of trees and branches from the neighboring forest. Hasselt is on the main road from Maastricht to Antwerp.

MULHAUSEN.—A town in upper Alsace, on the River Ill, an affluent of the Rhine, and also on the Rhine-Rhone Canal. It is a great textile center. The manufacture of railway equipment and other machinery is also an important industry. It passed to Germany with the close of the Franco-Prussian war, and thousands of the French inhabitants returned to French territory. The population is approximately 100,000.

MUHLAUSEN.—A city of about 40,000, in Prussia, which figured in the Reformation and in the Thirty Year's War. It is largely engaged in textile industries, and has many other manufacturing enterprises—such as the making of needles, machinery, cigars, soap, furniture and shoes.

ANTWERP.—A city of Belgium regarded as its principal fortified stronghold. Although 60 miles from the sea, it is still one of the greatest seaports of Europe, because the broad and deep Schelde river gives it an excellent outlet. Its population is almost entirely Flemish. Under Emperor Charles V. it is said to have been the most populous city of continental Europe. At the middle of the sixteenth century it had a population estimated at 125,000. The great fairs held then attracted the merchants of the civilized world. Under the Spanish regime it declined, and in 20 years fell to a population of 55,000. The treaty of Westphalia closed the Schelde to seagoing vessels, and it was not reopened until the French did so in 1794. It began to grow again, but was almost ruined in the military operations of 1830 and thereafter. Netherlands retained the right to levy navigation dues on the Schelde, which laid a heavy hand on Antwerp until 1863, when it was commuted by the payment of $7,000,000. The city and river are defended by a number of advanced fortresses and by ramparts eight miles long. Part of the environs can be placed under water. The fortifications were built to serve as the rallying ground for the Belgian army in case it was overpowered in the field by a superior force.

NANCY (Nong-see).—The capital of Muerthe-et-Moselle, France, on the main line of railroad between Paris and Strassburg. Its population is given as 100,000. It is about 10 miles from the German frontier, 13 miles east of the stronghold of Toul, and 35 miles west of north of Epinal. Charles the Bold perished at its gates. The city became French in 1766, was occupied by the allies in 1814 and 1815, and put to ransom by the Prussians in 1870, which was paid by France.

STRASSBURG.—Capital of Alsace-Lorraine, Germany, two miles west of the Rhine on the river Ill, which divides here into five branches. It is 28 miles from the French frontier, and is one of the strongest fortresses of the German Empire, having a circle of 14 forts. The university of Strassburg was refounded as the Emperor William's university in 1872, and its library has 800,000 volumes. The population is upward of 150,000. Strassburg held out against the Germans for six weeks during the Franco-Prussian war, finally surrendering Sept. 27, 1870.

DINANT (Deenoig).—Taken by Burgundy in 1466 and all male prisoners shot or caused to be drowned by being forced to jump into the river from the cliffs, this Belgian city has had an eventful career. Louis XIV captured it in 1675 and the French held it for 30 years. In 1818 the Dutch built the citadel which is still the sight of the place, but which was dismantled long ago. Dinant is a favorite summer resort of the Belgians. It is about 150 miles due south of Namur.

CHARLEROI (Shar-Leh-Rwa)—A town of southern Belgium, on the Sambre river, some [illegible] above Namur as the crow flies, and about twice as far by the river. It is the center of the iron district of Belgium, and enjoys water communication into France as well as across Belgium. It was ceded to France soon after it was founded, and was fortified by Vauban so strongly that it twice held out against the attacks of William of Orange. The fortifications later were razed, but it was refortified in 1816 by the order of Wellington. These fortifications were finally dismantled in 1859.

CALVERT FEELS SURE HE'LL BE RE-ELECTED

The present contest being made by County Clerk James C. Calvert to succeed himself is the first time he has been opposed for office in the ranks of the Republican party. He has had Democratic opponents—the strongest the party could send against him—but on each occasion has been decisively victorious, carrying the county by the largest majorities ever given a candidate in either a Presidential election or in a so-called off year.

Now that the test of his strength in the party is being made, his scores of friends are daily assuring him of their support and in other ways lending assistance to him in his campaign. When seen yesterday after a partial circuit of the county he expressed himself as confident of the result for he found in every place he stopped a strong sentiment in his favor.

The manifold duties of the office and the efficient manner in which they have been discharged under the present administration has demonstrated to the people the wisdom of having a clerk who will keep the county affairs free from embarrassing entanglements, either technical or otherwise, and one who is sufficiently well informed to be of great assistance in any matter of public moment on which information may be desired.

The systematic manner in which the records are kept and the facility with which the particular one wanted may be found, is an indication of the businesslike conduct of the office under the present incumbent and worth consideration by every voter at this time.

The primaries are to be held on September 22. The polls will be open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night, but in order to be eligible to vote at that time, all residents should see to it that they are properly registered. The first registry day is September 8th. There will not be another until after the primary election.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO TAKE REST AT CORNISH, N. H.

Washington, Aug. 27—President Wilson finally has yielded to the importunities of his friends and advisers, conspicuous among them being Dr. Cary T. Grayson, his physician, and Secretary Tumulty, and will take a complete rest for a few days. He will leave late today for Cornish, N. H., where he will remain until next Tuesday or Wednesday. His daughters, Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre already are there.

Ever since the ordeal of sorrow through which the President passed, his advisors have been striving to make him retire for recuperation. He has steadfastly refused. Efforts to induce him to make a week-end trip on the Presidential yacht Mayflower were equally futile. The announcement that he finally had yielded and would seek the summer White House at Cornish, therefore, came as a surprise.

The President's private car was made ready for the trip this morning on advices from the White House. It probably will be attached to the express leaving here at 8 o'clock and in the party will be, in all likelihood, one or two of the White House secretaries and a force of clerks.

BOROUGH TAX SALE.

The sale of borough properties on which 1913 taxes have not been paid will be held at the office of Collector George Brown next Tuesday, September 1. Several back tax bills have been paid since the properties were first advertised, and Mr. Brown expects that very few of the parcels of real estate will actually go to sale.

A despatch received here today from Ostend, credits a Belgian officer from Namur with the statement that the forts there are still holding out with the exception of Marchevelette and Cogneles, which were destroyed by terrific bombardment of the German siege guns.

The officer stated that the Belgians fought desperately for two days before retiring, and there is still a large force of Germans who are keeping up a continuous bombardment of the remaining forts at Namur.

It is stated that the war expenditures by the British government are averaging 1,000,000 pounds daily.

Ostend, Aug. 27—Bruges has been occupied by German cavalry who are expected today at Zebrugo, Bankenburg and here. If the Germans come to this city it is expected that British warships will aid in the defense.

Paris, Aug. 27—An official statement issued this afternoon says the events of yesterday in the region of the north have neither imperiled nor modified the arrangements in view of the future development of operations in the region between the Vosges and Nancy. The French troops are reported to continue to progress.

Tsing Tau, Aug. 27 (Central News Cable.)—Vice-Admiral Sadakichi Kato, from his flagship the battleship Suwo, sent a wireless message to Governor Meyer Waldeck this morning, declaring a blockade of the leased territory of Kiau Chow. Later the Japanese warships were sighted outside the horbor and shelled a small island off the coast, but which was not occupied by Germans. The German governor notified Willis R. Peck American Consul at Kiau Chau, that he had 24 hours to leave if he so desired. Mr. Peck, however, elected to remain.

New York, Aug. 27.—A wireless despatch from Berlin via Sayville, L. I., says that all the forts at Namur have fallen and upper Alsace is free of the enemy, except at points to the westward of Colmar. Longwy has been captured by Germans.

A canvass of the steamship interests in New York brings out the fact that shipments of grain as well as other products to foreign ports are going forward in exceptionally restricted volume. The manager of one of the large companies in discussing the situation stated that his organization now has two ships in port ready to sail, but he has found it impossible to obtain enough cargo to warrant their leaving. He stated that three of the company's boats which have left for the other side during the past few days were not loaded to anything like capacity. Cotton is not moving to the other side at all so far as he can learn and the company this official represents would be glad to receive at least 10,000 bales for shipment on the boats now available.

As a result of cable advices received from Russia this morning officials of the Russian American Line have decided to postpone the sailing of the Steamship Dwinsk, which was scheduled to leave here on Saturday with 1,600 passengers mostly Americans and Russians.

Collector of the Port Malone, today received the following message from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, with the request that it be made public: "The Treasury department has been informed through diplomatic channels that the admiral commanding the British squadron in the Atlantic, has experienced difficulty in getting American merchant vessels to show their colors and the representation is made that such vessels would be spared much inconvenience and delay if they displayed their colors at once when called upon to do so."

Chicago, Aug. 27.—The European war brought two immense business proposals to Chicago. The first came from England and was a request to the Association of Commerce to find a manufacturer of hose who can supply $54,000,000 worth of hosiery a year. Heretofore Germany has held that trade the communication stated.

The other request asked the Association of Commerce to send the names of firms that could supply to them an immense output which has been supplied by a plant in Germany which employed 54,000 men.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27—Movements of Marooned Americans from Switzerland have begun and are progressing rapidly, the Relief Board learned today. One party of 10,000 Americans is on the way from Geneva to Havre, France, and another party of similar size will leave today. Tomorrow and Saturday parties of 500 each will be transported from the Swiss city to the French seacoast. The French Government, according to advices, is furnishing special trains.

A number of vessels under charter by the American Government are docked at Havre ready to take the refugees aboard when they arrive. As rapidly as these vessels are loaded with their complement they will sail down the harbor and point their bows towards the shores of the United States. Refugee Americans from other parts of Europe also are being concentrated at Havre, but it is reported that there are sufficient ships to care for them all.

Secretary of War Garrison, after conferring with Assistant Secretary of State, Phillips, went to work today to put the finishing touches to a statement that is intended to outline the work of the Government to date in rescuing and relieving Americans caught in the European war. This statement was inspired by criticism levelled at the Relief Board by returning Americans, who escaped from Europe just at the time the governments machinery began to accomplish effective results. It will be made public late today.

Official confirmation was received today of the report that the Wilson Line Freighter Francisco, held up by the battleship Florida outside New York harbor yesterday had been allowed to sail for Europe. The commandant of the New York Navy Yard has been asked for a report, however, by the Secretary of the Navy.

All communication in Belgium is cut, the American Consul in Antwerp notified the State department today, except at Ghent, Bruges, and along the seacoast. He added that although Antwerp is now practically isolated from the outside world, the city is calm.

The United States Vice-Counsel-General at Lugano, Switzerland, has notified the American Minister, Mr. Stovall, that all Americans are now out of his district, most of them having gone to Italy to take ship.

Ottawa, Aug. 27.—Twenty transports will be required to take the first detachment of the Canadian volunteers to England for service in the European war. News of the reverses of the allies has caused orders to be issued to the Canadian Militia department to have the men sent with all possible speed. Twenty thousand men are encamped near here and thousands more are on the way from Western Canada.

The Princess Patricia Light Infantry, a regiment of more than a thousand veterans, will be the first to leave, probably on Saturday. Others will follow as rapidly as the transports can be loaded with supplies and the men taken aboard.

Late yesterday the Duke of Connaught, Governor of Canada, issued an appeal to the people of the Dominion for contributions to the Canadian Patriotic fund, which will be used to provide for the needs of those dependent upon the soldiers at the front.

ANTWERP IS SEIZED

London, Aug. 27—Antwerp is believed to be besieged by the Germans. This is indicated by the following despatch from Rosendaal, Holland: "There is no railroad communication between Antwerp and the Dutch frontier; all entrances to the town have been closed."

MARSHAL VON DER GOLTZ.

Appointed by the Kaiser as Military Governor of Belgium.

Kaiser Wilhelm has established a military government in Belgium. Official advices received from Berlin state that Field Marshal Von der Goltz has been appointed military governor of the nation now dominated by German troops.

Two Are Killed When Missiles Are Dropped In Antwerp.

Antwerp, Aug. 27.—One bomb made a hole in Rue des Navas seventy-eight inches in diameter and twenty-two inches deep. All the houses in the neighborhood had their doors and windows broken and their ceilings fell. Of three men walking in the street where another bomb fell one was killed and two were mortally injured. A woman sitting at a window was killed by a bomb that shattered the hospital.

WARLIKE SIGNS ARE NOW SHOWN IN ITALY

Americans Are Warned to Leave the Country.

Rome, Aug. 27.—Reports in the Swiss newspapers that Italy has mobilized 800,000 men in the northwest and is about to join the war is semiofficially denied. Nothing has been done, it was said, except to establish small camps for reservists in the neighborhood of garrison towns throughout the country. Italy still maintains her neutrality.

Austrian troops are massing on the Italian frontier. The American embassy, through the consuls, has advised all Americans to leave Italy.

Americans doing otherwise remain at their own risks, the warning says.

New York, Aug. 27.—Italy seemed nearer joining the international conflict than at any time since the war began. Just as the holding of German liners here accompanied the kaiser's first moves to war, so the steamship Oceana, scheduled to sail for Genoa on Aug. 29, was held up here today on order of the Italian government.

Americans have been warned to leave Italy, and the Italian liner Stampalia, which sailed, refused to accept for passage German or Austrian reservists.

The Delaware and Hudson Steamship company today cancelled the sailing of the Oceana. The action was taken upon orders from the Italian office of the line, which cabled that the vessel should not be sent out.

RUSSIANS HARASS GERMANS.

London, Aug. 27.—According to an Antwerp dispatch to a news agency, the operations of the Belgians beyond Malines continue. They managed to destroy some defensive works set up by the Germans.

All advices seem to show that the Germans will occupy Ostend in order to be able to use that port later as a base for naval operations against Great Britain.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The Belgian legation received news of a Belgian victory over the Germans at Vilvorde, between Brussels and Antwerp. The dispatch says that three German divisions were repulsed with heavy losses.

ENGLAND COMBED OF HORSES

One on London Street Is Rare Sight. Army Gets Them.

London, Aug. 27.—England has practically been combed from end to end of horses. But few are now to be seen in London, and not more than 50 per cent of the usual number remains on the farms. The war office has had its agents out in all parts of the country requisitioning animals everywhere for use in the army.

All commercial firms have been hard hit, having had their horses taken from the streets, but no complaints are heard. Some instances are reported of citizens having surrendered their horses while driving in their carriages.

GERMAN STEAMSHIP TAKEN.

The Serak Captured In Midocean by a British Cruiser.

New York, Aug. 27.—A wireless message received here said that the German steamship Serak, which left Hamburg on July 26, via Swansea for Callao, had been captured by a British cruiser and taken back to Swansea today.

CENTRAL RAILROAD TO HAVE BIG MEET

Local Employes Will Take Part In Monster Demonstration to Be Held Labor Day.

Local employes of the Central Railroad of New Jersey are anxiously awaiting Labor Day, when they will be given the opportunity to demonstrate their athletic ability. On that day a meet wil be staged in Jersey City under the auspices of the Athletic Asociation of the railroad. Everything from a 100-yard dash to a baseball game has been listed.

The officials of the local Central offices will probably be present and if there are enough employes from this city, they will go in a special car.

Of special importance is the baseball game, for the winners will be declared the champion team of the railroads in the Eastern division and theirs will be the right to challenge any other railroad team for the world's title. An aggregation representing the Philadelphia and Reading will be the opponents. The team to battle for the Central will include several men who have had a chance to play league ball, but declined for business reasons. There is a probability that at least one local boy will be a member of the Central aggregation.

A tennis match will be played in the afternoon and the winners of this event like all others, will be presented with silver and bronze medals. The following program of races has been prepared: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, running broad jump, standing high jump, fat man's race, sack race, shoe race scramble and other events that make up an ideal athletic carnival.

Festivities will commence sharply at 1:30 o'clock. All Central men wishing to participate in the events should send in their application blank to Mr. Gordan, Jersey City, before Monday, August 31, when entries will close. Refreshments will be served.

ARMY-NAVY GAME REPORTED CANCELLED FOR THIS FALL

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 27.—All indications point to the football game between the Army and the Navy this year being canceled.

It was said that the Navy officials had received word yesterday afternoon from the Army that West Point would not play anywhere else but at the Polo Grounds in New York, which is regarded as an automatic cancellation of the contest, as the Navy ultimatum, issued last week, was "Philadelphia or no game."

PLAINFIELD ENDS LEAGUE IN TRIPLE TIE FOR CELLAR

The Plainfield Y. M. H. A. baseball team, finished the Y. M. H. A. League in a triple tie for last place with the New Brunswick and Perth Amboy teams each having an average of .286. Four victories and ten defeats were credited to these teams. The Bayonne aggregation topped the list with North Hudson second and Elizabeth third. The leaders had a perfect percentage having won all of their fourteen games. The standings are as follows:

NEW JERSEY SCHOOL CHAMP PLAYS FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Harold A. Throckmorton, the Woodbridge tennis star, who is well known in these parts for his ability on the court, is again out after tennis laurels and has qualified for the semi-final round in the national interscholastic tennis tournament. There were eight in the tourney, these being the winners of the interscholastic games run by Yale, Harvard, Princeton, New York University, University of Southern California, University of Chicago, Pennsylvania and Columbia. The Jersey aspirant won the all comers tournament at Princeton last spring and yesterday defeated the winner of the N. Y. U. match in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Throckmorton has an easy time with his opponent and has a fine chance of annexing the national interscholastic title to his long list. E. R. McCormick, Pacific Coast interscholastic title holder, also won his preliminary match and is considered the favorite for the national honors.

LOCAL MOOSERS WILL FINISH LEAGUE IN FOURTH POSITION

League Standing.

	W.	L.	Pc.
Bayonne	10	2	.833
Elizabeth	8	6	.615
Orange	7	6	.538
Plainfield	5	6	.455
Rahway	3	4	.429
Jersey City	2	11	.154

Bayonne, with a record of ten wins and two defeats, and the league scheduled to come to a close Sunday, looks like the winner of the Moose Baseball League and the trophy. The Elizabeth team, which is second with eight victories and fourteen starts, like the Bayonne team, will play off postponed games, but there is little chance of Elizabeth finishing in front. Elizabeth tackles Bayonne on the latter field Sunday and has a postponed game to be played with Rahway. The Elizabeth Paps have handed out the only defeats to the Bayonne nine and should Elizabeth win her two remaining games and Bayonne lose four, the locals will be tied. Bayonne is picked to win at least one game.

The Orange and local teams have also only lost six games this season and will have to be watched unless Bayonne comes away with Sunday's game. Orange is third; Plainfield, fourth; Rahway, fifth, and Jersey City in last place.

SECOND AUTO RACE VICTIM.

Elgin, Ill., Aug. 27.—John W. Jenter, mechanician for Spencer Wishart, millionaire driver killed in last Saturday's Elgin road race, died in St. Joseph's Hospital early yesterday without having regained consciousness.

Jenter's arm was nearly severed from his body, and he sustained internal injuries when Wishart's car plunged off the course.

VERSATILE JACK MILLER.

Jack Miller, of the Cardinals, started in his baseball career as a pitcher, but soon gave up that vocation to become a second baseman. Since then he has been a first baseman and is now a shortstop. Although a jack of all trades, he seems to be a master of all as well.

BIG LEAGUE CALLS A LOCAL SLABMAN

With a Plainfield ball player in the ational League, it now looks as if this city will have a representative in the American circuit and that player will be with a leading team. Cliff Randolph, one time the greatest pitcher in this section of the State, who has been on the Perth Amboy team, of the Atlantic League, all season, has been ordered by Connie Mack to report on Wednesday, September 9, at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, for a try-out. Cliff has been the best pitcher on the Amboy team and has done a good share of the heavy work. He is also rated as good as any in that league and when seen in action by Mack's scout he looked like big league material.

Negotiations have been pending for some time for the local player's sale to the American League leaders, but suddenly communications ceased and it looked as if it was all off. Mack's letter of yesterday explained the matter in a satisfactory manner, stating that the letter had been mislaid, which caused the delay in the answer.

The good news was sent immediately to Randolph at his home in this city, where he has been for some time nursing a sore arm. The salary wing has been in bad shape lately, but Cliff says it is much better now, although it might not stand nine hard innings. However, his work with the Perth Amboy team is practically over as it only plays a couple of weeks more and he will not pitch more than two games in that time. This afternoon he will go over to Milford and work-out in a game there. He will probably pitch one of the games next Monday, when Perth Amboy celebrates its Booster's Day.

The local boy will undoubtedly make a good showing with the Athletics as he has a large assortment of curves and plenty of speed. He also is a heady pitcher, which counts for a lot in big leagues. The Perth Amboy Pacers will greatly miss the services of Randolph.

He has won the majority of his games and had been in about twenty-four engagements. The bulk of the work will now fall on Clifford, who was second to Randolph in the pitchers' standing.

CARNIVAL WRESTLER HAS ALREADY MET HIS MATCH

The wrestling show at the Knights of Columbus carnival is very popular with some of the "husky" athletes in this city and other places in this vicinity, who have visited that place frequently since its opening and picked up some easy money for five minutes' work.

Last night some rare sport was furnished the audience when Young Paddy Hoover, a localite who resides on Third street, stayed with Jack Morrow, the carnival's champion, who is meeting all comers, and received a cash prize of five dollars for his work. "Whitey" Young also stayed the limit and was rewarded, and Young Ross, the Ghetto champion, expressed his intention of trying conclusions with Morrow at tonight's performance.

Morrow is heralded as being the lightweight champion, but at a performance on the opening night he failed to throw a young wrestler from Newark. He is large and husky and knows something of the art, but he has met his match several time already.

RED CROSS DAY.

New York, Aug. 27.—Secretary John A. Heydler, of the National Baseball League, yesterday, announced that President John H. Tener has designated September 4 to be Red Cross Day in his league. Twenty-five percent of the receipts for each of the eight clubs will on that day be set aside and later given to the American red cross war fund, to be used for the European struggle.

SEVEN QUALIFY FOR DERBY.

Newark, Aug 27.—Walter Rutt, Frank L. Kramer, Jackie Clarke, Alfred Goullett, Robert Spears, Caesar Moretti and Iver Lawson qualified last night in the trial heats of the world's cycling derby at the velodrome. The heat in which Bill Bailey, of England, will ride is to be run Sunday.

NAP IS PATRIOTIC.

Nap Lajoie has grown so pugnacious since the war began that he almost fought with a waiter who brought him German fried potatoes instead of French fried.

LUDERUS A POOR BASE RUNNER

Fred Luderus, first baseman of the Phillies, is easily the worst base running regular in the National league. He has stolen just one base since the season began.

A YOUNG HOPEFUL DESCRIBES GAME

"Us Boys" Were Out In Full Force to Root For Our "Pals" Yesterday.

By Eaglebeak Sprudder.

The trusty scouts of the Laurel aggregation made their rounds yesterday morning and collected their ball-tossers, and set out for the Parker Field. With a clattering of hoofs and the yell of twelve hundred and eight roars they broke loose for the battle field. Amid the heavy artillery, yelling, and the sound of eleven hundred and five rooters, and a brass band playing "Hit Them Again They Got No Friends," the Laurels went down after the Red Stars. Before the game started Mr. Wriston went over to Jack Horner's and hired three Indian motorcycles to give to the three fielders of the enemy, and all through the game the fielders had a regular hill-climbing contest chasing the ball.

The Laurels won the battle, which lasted sixteen innings, by the score of 4 to 3. It looked pretty bad for the Laurels in the fifteenth with a man on second and one out. The next batter drove the ball on a line out to left field. Young Butler, who stays out there for some purpose, broke all records for a sixty-five-yard dash, leaped up in the air and came down with the old pill in his bare paw.

This catch besides "Babe" Gleason's work with the stick, made the enemy sick at heart. In the thirteenth inning the Laurels pulled the only triple play that was ever made on Parker Field.

The score:

Y. M. C. A. QUINTET WILL REORGANIZE

Local Association Will Again Be Represented On the Basketball Court.

Several members of last years Y. M. C. A. basketball team met at the Association yesterday and talked over the plans for the coming season and the present outlook points to a very successful year. Although the season is still in the distance it is not too early to plan and the local team will probably have some new material to pick from while old members will naturally drop off.

The two local High Schools graduated some good basketball material last June and as these players can no longer play for their Alma Mater they will turn to outside teams. As soon as the proper time comes some of the old memberr of the team will take the initiative and issue a call for candidates for the team. The local association as always been represented by a strong quintet and will undoubtedly have a team this year that will uphold its good reputation. Myrton Glover, Al. Brynaiski, Harry Moulton and Jay Farmer will again be on hand.

One of the fastest teams that this vicinity boasted of last year may not organize this season because of financial troubles. It is a question whether or not the Parish House will be opened this year or not because of the poor patronage and not enough money is made to pay expenses. Some of the members of the team are talking of having the team just the same and playing all games on opponents' courts but nothing definite has been decided. If the club is again organized the same men will play and will make things hot for all other teams in this vicinity. Those who will play are Ricketts and Dallas, forwards, Marston, center, Naylor, Smith and Walker, guards.

BOEHLING INJURED.

Washington, Aug. 27.—According to the Washington club's physician, Southpaw Joe Boehling has pitched his last game of ball this year, and whether or not Boehling ever will be able to twirl again depends upon the success of an operation on his left knee.

The southpaw hurt himself more than a month ago while sliding to home plate and has been handicapped ever since. A floating cartilage has developed and treatment similar to the operation on Catcher Henry two years ago has been ordered.

NEW JERSEY GUARDS COP SOME TROPHIES

Third and Fourth Regiments Win Regimental Match On Sea Girt Range.

Sea Girt, Aug. 27.—New Jersey marksmen again distinguished themselves yesterday on the ranges here when the members of the Third and Fourth regiments took first and second places respectively in the National Rifle Association regimental team match. The third won by a lead of fifteen points, being ahead in all stages.

The Hayes match, the most important one thus far shot, was won by Sergeant Ollie Schriver, of the United States Marine Corps.

Third New Jersey, 819; Fourth New Jersey, 804; Fifth Massachusetts, 800; Second New Jersey, 789; Second District of Columbia, 788; Seventy-fourth New York, 788; First District of Columbia, 767; Seventy-first New York, second team 765; Seventy-first New York, first team, 739; Second Rhode Island, 717.

Sergeant Ollie Schriver's score in the Hayes match was 49. Lieutenant J. H. Kneubel, Seventy-fourth New York, tied with Sergeant A. L. Woodworth, of Massachusetts, with 49, and Colonel W. E. Tewes, of Jersey City, and W. H. Richard, of New Haven, split on fourth place with 49's. Company K, Seventy-first New York, with 143, won the New Jersey Rifle Association's company team tyro match.

In the enlisted men's match at 600 and 1,000 yards the results were as follows: Massachusetts, 566; second Marine Corps, 542; Marine Corps second team, 540; New Jersey, 506; Massachusetts, second team, 506; District of Columbia, 499; District of Columbia, second team, 428.

The District of Columbia men sprang to the front this morning by winning first and second place in the N. R. A. company team match. Company K of the First District of Columbia had a total of 349, and second place went to Company C of the Second District of Columbia with 348. The Fourth New Jersey took third with 347. Company K, Second District of Columbia, was the tail-ender with 343.

The National Rifle Association announces that plans for the Palma match at Ottawa has been abandoned on account of the war.

ROD AND REEL

Large numbers of crabs are still caught in Newark Bay. Those who go out for them return with bags so full they can hardly be carried. Shark River is also stocked with them.

Parties that fish at the Seabright grounds are getting good sized sea bass and blackfish which run from one to four pounds each.

Eighteen nice weakfish were landed by one man in a short time in Raritan Bay yesterday.

The trip to the fishing banks in the boat that leaves Asbury Park is still popular and it is a sight to see the fishermen land with their catches

The fishing in the New England States is fine and tourists and visitors who go there find plenty of enjoyment in this line.

Two anglers who have been regulars at Morgan Station this summer, have been making good catches of weakfish ever since the season started. Last Saturday they made a catch totaling sixty-one weakfish.

The fishing in Barnegat Bay is getting better and the big catches are being made from the party boats. The boats with five fishing that bring in more than seventy fish are in the minority, but that is plenty, as the fishermen sometimes don't know what to do with any more than that number. Fishing from a rowboat at Barnegat Pier is popular again and some of the individual catches made there run into the sixties. Pier fishermen get down there in the evening and fish all night when it is cool, and they have a lot of fun calling to one another during the quiet of the night. Another crowd goes down on the paper train and fishes until noon.

Fishing off the Keyport Cove yesterday, two men had twenty-three big weakfish and one croaker. A strong northwest wind stirred up the whitecaps and sent the local fishermen in early.

TO TRY FREE MUNICIPAL MARKETS IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 27.—To meet the sharp advance in the cost of food products for which the European war is held responsible, a committee of citizens, working under the direction of Borough President Marks, of Manhattan, who is chairman of the Committee on Markets of the Board of Estimate, will establish on Tuesday, in the various parts of the borough, temporary open markets for the people.

It is believed that these markets inviting farmers and dealers will put into the hands of the public food products at prices considerably lower than those now prevailing. There will be absolutely no restrictions in the conduct of the markets, wholesale and retail business will be permitted in them. No fees will be exacted for space to be occupied and no licenses will be required of those availing themselves of the markets.

The necessary arrangements for the opening of these markets on Tuesday next, September 1st, have been completed. Co-operating with President Marks' committee are the Finance, Bridge, Police, Health, Street Cleaning, License and Dock departments. Commissioner Woods personally attended the Market Committee meeting, and assured the committee of proper police protection for each of the designated market spaces. The Street Cleaning department is to keep the markets in condition, while the Finance department will actively supervise their management.

Each market will be open twenty-four hours in a day. Space will be allotted in the order of arrival.

It is felt that the general public will eagerly avail itself of the opportunity which these temporary open markets will offer to obtain food stuffs at the lowest possible prices. It is also believed that they will attract the farmers because of the opportunity they offer of dealing directly with the people without any expense, and because they will obviate the long haul with its accompanying hardship and expense, now necessary, in order to reach one of the existing markets. Certain farmers have abandoned their former trips to New York with food products because of this handicap.

Borough President Marks cordially invites the co-operation of such individuals, firms or corporations who from a business interest or a philanthropic standpoint desire to help promote the success of these open markets for the people with a view to reducing the high cost of living.

Scene from "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" at Plainfield Theatre, Tomorrow, Matinee and Night.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

One of the best crook plays presented since the vogue for stage rogues came in fashion is "Stop Thief," the new farce written by Carlyle Moore, which will be shown at the Plainfiel Theatre tonight.

"Stop Thief" doesn't shatter stage ethics in its presentation,neither does it set up any new dramatic canons, but it makes an audience laugh for two hours and a half as no audience ever laughed before, therefore, it is a great big popular success.

Two kleptomaniacs and a real crook are responsible for all the fun in "Stop Thief." One of the kleptomaniacs is a millionaire, the other is his prospective son-in-law. The bride-to-be is aware of her father's predilection for stealing, but she is ignorant of the fact that her future husband is so afflicted.

Into this household a real thief is smuggled by a new maid, and the plot thus tangled calls for the appearance of a batallion of policemen and the thrills begin. One valuable article after another disappears in the most mysterious manner, and in the search for the culprits many funny situations are evolved.

The cast includes Bert Leigh, who plays the role of the Thief and Miss Hazele Burgess as the Maid, the crook's pal,a very good combination. The balance of the cast are Boyd Trousdale, Edward Lawrence, Miss Edna Oliver, Miss Marie Latimore, Dale Devereaux, Paul Linton, Harold Hubert, Clyde Smith, Edwin Pye, Miss Forrest.

Once again the merrymaking "Mutt and Jeff" will be with us. The season of laughter is about to begin. "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" in a brand new dress come to the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow matinee and night, with a bigger and a better show than has ever appeared before under the well-known title. Bud Fisher's eccentric characters can live for a century or they can die as dead as a "door nail" in sixty days, if allowed to do so, but it is decidedly to the interest of both Bud Fisher and Gus Hill to see them live for years innumerable, which they will do as long as Fisher is able to furnish "new dope" and up-to-the-minute comedy situations and as long as Gus Hill furnishes a new and acceptable vehicle for their stage work. "Mutt and Jeff in Mexico" will represent the "last word" in musical comedy production, everything being new but the name. The American public never wanted to laugh more than they do at this time.

This season's show consists of a sixty-foot carload of scenery, properties and costumes. A cast of fifty capable artists and the inevitable chorus of pretty girls without which the "Phun Phest" would be incomplete.

"Within the Law" is the real underworld play of today, wrote Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty to Bayard Veiller, author of the tremendously successful melodrama, which comes to the Plainfield Theatre next Thursday, and which has had the almost unprecedented record of twelve months' run in New York city. Before writing this play, Mr. Veiller was practically unknown. The day after its production, he received so many offers of contracts to write plays that he was forced to flee out of town to keep from signing away enough of his time to cover the remainder of his natural life. This is what inevitably happens to the dramatist who writes a big success. But only a few of the playwrights achieve such a hit as "Within the Law" during a century of dramatic writing.

A notable thing about the coming production of "Hanky Panky" at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday is that not only the original cast will be seen but the original chorus is still with "Hanky Panky." This is unusual as it is difficult to get the most attractive girls to go on the road, but this contingent of beauties have been with "Hanky Panky" ever since the opening in Chicago three years ago. They spent the first summer in the famous run of 200 nights at the Broadway Theatre in New York and the second summer in a wonderful trip to San Francisco and the Pacific Coast that was a veritable triumph. But this continual work, without the necessity for long rehearsals with loss of time, and the large salaries and luxuries provided in their own special train, combine to keep these girls loyal to the management and give "Hanky Panky" the benefit of the handsomest and most distinguished chorus of any show on the road today.

September 8—First registry day. Also last day for filing petitions to fill vacancies in all offices except Governor and Congress.

September 29—State convention of each party at Trenton and date on which county committees meet and organize.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

C. P. Morrell of this city is likely to be the choice of the Progressive party for the State Senatorial nomination. It is understood that he is willing to enter the lists. Mr. Morrell was an Assembly candidate last year. He is a good campaigner, and knows the knack of gathering votes. Former Mayor G. W. V. May, of Plainfield, who had been mentioned for the State Senatorship, is a candidate for the Congressional nomination.

W. Burtis Havens of Toms River, Ocean county, has filed his petition for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Third district, which includes Middlesex county. William W. Ramsey, of Monmouth county, Republican, is also a candidate, and Thomas J. Sculley of South Amboy, Middlesex county, Democrat, seeks renomination.

Petition of James J. Potts, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for registrar has been filed with County Clerk Calvert. Mr. Potts' petition contained between 700 and 1,000 signatures, including some of the most prominent Democrats in Elizabeth.

Mr. Potts was a delegate to the Baltimore convention in 1912 from the Fifth Congressional district, and his supporters are staking much upon the strength he showed them to put him through successfully now. He has been frequently mentioned since then for other offices, but this is the only time, other than in the Presidential primaries, that he was an aspirant at a general election.

He will be opposed in the primaries by James P. Kelly. Mr. Kelly's petitions will be filed in a day or two.

The season for political booms is about over, as all petitions endorsing county candidates must be filed by midnight tomorrow, while local candidates must have their petitions filed on or before next Wednesday, September 2. This will mark the close of the preliminaries of what promises to be a most lively anti-primary campaign. Contests galore are to be found within the ranks of both the old parties, but the Progressives have kept clear of this condition.

A few of the borough Democrats threatened to put a local ticket in the field this fall in opposition to Councilmen Julius Stahl and Edmund Rushmore, but thus far no petitions have been put into circulation. If no petitions are filed, it is possible that the Democrats will ecide on candidates later, and fill the names in on the ballots on primary day.

With the Anti-Saloon League in this State becoming a factor in politics, some have dared to make a prediction to the effect that the Prohibition party would loom up ahead of the Socialist and Socialist Labor parties within the course of the next two or three years, with a possibility of it becoming a close third in the race, "should the older parties fail to endorse local option within the course of that time."

Local option will be injected into local politics should the Federation of Men's Bible Classes keep true to their threat of six months ago, and candidates for local offices be approached concerning their attitude on the license question.

Consolidation talk in the borough has taken on a new lease of life since the announcement was made that the first meeting to discuss this question will be held next Tuesday evening. North Plainfield voters have even stopped talking about councilmanic candidates.

The trend of the coming election will have its special significance for the voters of South Plainfield, who are hoping for the borough form of government in the near future.

Local Republicans are evidently determined to help restore their party to power, with an organization in each ward of the city.

Elizabeth politicians, both of the Republican and Democratic faith stand agast at the sight of the large number of race entries from Plainfield, and one after another has joined in the chorus, "It never has happened before."

John L. Crowell, of Rahway, former county clerk, shied his hat into the ring yesterday in the Democratic county clerkship nomination race by filing of a petition at Elizabeth. This makes the fifth candidate. The others are Edward M. Neafsey and William A. Leonard, of Elizabeth; John P. Owens, of Plainfield, and Kenyon Messing, of Cranford. Others to file petitions were W. Edmon Clum for Republican assembly nomination and Hugh McLoughlin, Democrat, for shrievalty nomination.

Assemblyman Arthur A. Quinn, of Middlesex county, who has just been re-elected president of the State Federation of Labor, is seeking the election to the Assembly in his county on the Democratic ticket. If he shall be re-elected to the House, the labor unions of the State will still have an ardent advocate in the ranks of the New Jersey lawmakers.

Assemblymen George L. Burton and John P. Kirkpatrick, of Middlesex county, both Democrats, have announced that they will not run for re-election this fall. Mr. Burton has served two terms in the Assembly, while Mr. Kirkpatrick has been an Assemblyman three years.

"If Stuchell were not in the race for the Republican nomination for Congress I'd be for 'Charley' Fowler, even though every other Republican in the county were against him," said Sheriff William H. Wright today in making some especially laudatory remarks about the former Congressman. If Mr. Fowler should be nominated, the sheriff said that he and Mr. Stuchell's other friends would work enthusiastically for his election.

Petitions to have State Senator Austen Colgate, of Essex county, made the Progressive candidate as well as the Republican nominee, have been placed in circulation. Algernon T. Sweeney, Progressive city chairman, of Newark, is one of those active in Senator Colgate's behalf.

SHERIFF IS MAKING VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Mr. Wright's Quest For County Clerkship Continues Without Interruption.

Sheriff William H. Wright is conducting his contest for the Republican county clerk nomination in a clean, effective manner. His administration of the sheriff's office, his friends say, with its many opportunities for showing political or personal preferment, has indicated that he took seriously the public trust reposed in him. The same conscientious scruples, he says, will be carried into the county clerk's office if he is elected.

At the close of his term in the sheriff's office, Mr. Wright had contemplated entering some private pursuit. His friends prevailed upon him to remain in public life and it was only after strong and persistent urging with the promise of loyal support that he consented to enter the race. Now that he is in he is making one of the most energetic campaigns ever carried on in the Republican party in this county. There is not a place in the county he has not visited.

"Anything that is the public's interest, will be my concern," is a promise Mr. Wright frequently makes while seeking support on the merit of his intention to be a public servant in every sense of the word.

But for the fact that the proposed amendment to the State constitution did not materialize last year, Sheriff William H. Wright would not now be able to be a candidate on the Republican ticket for the county clerkship nomination. The term of the sheriff is three years and under the law none of them are permitted to succeed themselves in office without skipping one term. Had the change been made in the constitution Sheriff Wright would have had two years yet to serve, for it was proposed to make the sheriff's term five years, the same as the county clerk, register and surrogate.

It has been seldom too, that the sheriff and county clerk are both elected at the same election. The registrar has always been selected with the county clerk and that office will also be filled at the fall election. For this reason it is the most important election to the county in years.

CHAPTER XV.

Nature and Art.

I GREW enthusiastic over my new idea and began making preparations to make a picture in color, using the crude materials there at hand in the wilderness. I set to work testing the stains and colors of roots, bark and berries and proved conclusively that I should not lack for varied color.

Then I started experimenting with papermaking. By grinding pieces of soft wood against a stone under water in a birch bark dish a pulp was produced, of which I made small sheets. Draining the water from the pulp, I spread it evenly on a piece of smooth birch bark and rolled all the water out of it with a round stick. I then placed it in the sun to dry and as the moisture was absorbed the crude sheet of paper released itself from the bark.

While I lacked the pressure of heavy rolls to harden this paper, I was able to make tests on its surface with colors. The pure juice of berries is deep and sticky. By filling this with water it becomes transparent and pleasing in color, blending perfectly with the more subdued tones of the bark and roots.

Next I made some good brushes out of the short, stiff hair that grows around the nose of the bear. After selecting the best hair I could find I tied it together with longer hair and pulled it through the quill of a blue heron feather. To secure the hair I plugged the quill with hot spruce gum and attached a small stick for a handle. I felt confident that these brushes would do the trick.

So thoroughly carried away was I with the experiment I was making in art that I neglected everything else. I even forgot to eat. Eventually I was forced through necessity to fight for mere existence, and the project had to be abandoned. However, I know that I could have painted a fair picture in color under those circumstances.

Even after that the longing came to me to paint something. The natural colorings that surrounded me were mighty tempting. As the golden sunset softly blended with the twilight there was always an inspiration and tranquillity.

With all those things around him in the forest, all a man actually needed was the instinct of an artist.

In many instances today art as it is accepted is the merest veneer of the true thing. Art begins with nature, because it is with the products of nature that art production is made possible. There are some artists who can paint pictures of passing interest who do not even know of what their canvas is made. With perhaps the slight exception of what they have read in books, they have little idea of the history and process of color making. These artists never made their own colors or canvas or brushes. All these have had to be made for them by somebody else. They accept what color is offered them in stores, where they also buy their brushes. They go to teachers of art, who have learned what they know through other teachers of art. In a word, they paint by rule—they paint the way they were taught to paint.

The artist goes back to nature and sees a moose running in the woods. He knows it is a moose because the guide tells him it is. He knows the difference between animals also because the guide tells him. Perhaps he shoots one with a modern high power rifle. He doesn't skin the animal because he doesn't know how, so he stands back and watches the guide remove the skin from the carcass. He tastes some of the meat. He watches the guide flesh and tan the hide. Then he proceeds to paint a picture of the scene. The guide carries his pack for him and makes up his bed in a comfortable camp, as well as cooking all his meals.

Perhaps he stays in the woods for a month or more, living under the most comfortable circumstances. He has observed many things with his eyes, but in all that time he has not felt the things that the guide has felt, nor does the guide tell the artist his feelings, not being in the habit of talking much.

Then the artist goes back to the city to his luxurious studio and starts to work putting a picture of outdoor work on canvas. He pleases people who do not know much about outdoor life, much the same as a gay colored chromo attracts the eye of a child. And he paints all these pictures under the most comfortable circumstances.

Along comes a wealthy man who says: "You are a great painter of wild life. Paint me a picture of a moose in summertime." The artist has already painted a picture of a moose in the fall and winter in the snow. The color of a winter moose is decidedly different from that of the summer moose. The antlers the artist has seen are hard and perfect, but the antlers of the summer moose are soft and velvety, because the blood is circulating from the body of the animal up through every part of his horns. Summer moose look no more like winter moose than a caribou looks like a deer.

What is the artist going to do? He doesn't even know what kind of a country the summer moose inhabits or where he is found. The summer moose does not live in the same kind of a place as the winter moose. He does not eat the same food nor eat in the same way. He is of different color, different shape, and he acts differently. So the reader will see how easy it is for the painter of outdoor life to slip up on this sort of thing.

The true portrayal can never come from the brush of an artist who has not lived close to nature, and who has not felt what he paints. To my mind this fundamental training is a big factor in art. It is something big—something apart from the constant swapping of ideas from one teacher to another.

While such an artist may not have the technical training of the schooled artist he has the truth of his work, and no painting is ever great if it lacks truth. Being a part of nature will fit a man to portray nature truthfully when he comes to paint it.

It doesn't matter what the picture is on the surface, nor does it make any difference what you paint it on or what you use for a brush or color. It is the touch. A man who views a picture rightly looks below the surface of it. He goes down deep into it.

The painter of truth pictures is unconscious of what brush he uses or what color he employs. The only thing in his mind is the touch of life that he has seen on the head of some wood creature or the reflection of a sunset. They are the things that appeal to him as striking, and he works on and on until he has obtained the effect that is in his mind. He knows instinctively when he has found it, and he knows that he is right. He has given a soul to the painting. It takes a man who knows life from practical experience to read the soul in another man's picture. A picture without a soul means nothing.

This was one of the reasons why I went into the woods in the first place. I hoped in a small way to get the people to recognize nature in art.

I began my art in the woods of northern Maine. At various times while I was guiding men from the city through the woods I would draw sketches for them on pieces of fungus. They kept telling me I should develop such a talent, and this pleased me.

I drew considerably after that, but always hid my stuff. Sometimes people would find it and say it was good and that with a little training I would one day be an artist. I knew that I lacked technical training, so I thrust myself upon every artist I came in contact with. I observed them closely, and nothing escaped me. I wondered then if I would ever be able to do anything like the work they were doing.

However, the repeated suggestions of people about my developing my talent encouraged me some, and I stuck to it. One day a magazine wanted to buy a cover design I had drawn. That was the biggest thing I had reached. I said to myself, "Here is a chance for me to draw a picture for the public with my name signed to it!" It meant a great deal to me.

But inside I felt that I was not on equal footing with other artists because I hadn't had the training of the schools. I didn't dream at that time that a man could start out with what talent he had and make a success on his own resources. I didn't have the money to study, so the only thing for me to do was to keep on painting and observing other men's work until I might one day be recognized as a painter of outdoor life.

After I received this recognition I immediately jumped back to nature in order to convince that class of doubters who are forever tearing down when they might be building up about the truth of outdoor painting. I went back to nature again and lived. When I came out I felt that I knew nature.

How many times have you heard the criticism "that painting is overcolored?" It is impossible to use colors too bright to portray the truth of nature. The colors are a part of nature itself and belong there. They can be toned down with gray just the same as a bright day can be toned down with clouds.

At certain times of the year the reflections of the forest and the sunset on the lakes are brighter and cleaner in color than any I have ever seen on canvas. The peace and tranquillity of some of the twilights and afterglows I have never seen perfectly reproduced in oil or water color.

Art critics have a tendency to judge pictures from their own personal experience of other pictures. I believe they think too much of the technical and artificial, and ofttimes in their desire to criticise they overlook the hidden soul of the picture which by a man who knows will be noticed first of all.

NATIONS IN CONFLICT SPENT MILLIONS FOR AIR FLEETS

The horrors of war, which heretofore have been confined only to land and sea, will now have an added attraction in sky battles. Many of the warring nations are now equipped with aerial fleets and they are all using their greatest endeavors to learn the best ways and means of punching holes in dirigibles or "winging" offensive aeroplanes.

It is said that within the last few years European Powers have spent considerably more than a hundred million dollars in perfecting aerial fleets for war purposes. These death-dealing war hawks are fitted with destructive armaments that will work sad havoc when in action.

If you want to know the air fleet strength of the warring nations of Europe get the Daily Press War Map which is being presented to readers for one coupon and the mere expense of promotion. In addition to this useful map a series of educational charts is given absolutely free. These charts are printed in colors and show the strategic points of the world's greatest war.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK
When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its apppearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

GRAPES FOR WINTER.

IF you have a grape arbor that provides you with an abundance of grapes put up as many as you can spare from present use for winter service. Some acceptable ways of putting up grapes are the following:

Grape Conserve.—Wash the grapes, cook them until the skins come off and then press them through a sieve. Add the sugar, and when it is melted turn in the raisins and chopped walnut meats and cook about twenty minutes. From the nuts some persons put in an extra pound of the meats, while others, liking the conserve better with fewer nuts, use a pound of the nuts that have been weighed before the shells are taken off.

For the Children's Bread.

Grape Butter.—Separate pulp and skins from grapes. Cook the pulp until soft enough to rub through a colander. Add the skins and cook until tender. Add sugar, allowing to each pound of fruit a half pound or more if the grapes are quite green. Cook until thick, stirring often, then can.

Grape Marmalade.—Pick over, wash, drain and remove stems from grapes. Separate pulp from skins. Put pulp in a preserving kettle, heat gradually to the boiling point and let simmer until seeds separate from pulp, then rub through a hair sieve. Return to kettle with skins, add an equal measure of sugar, bring to the boiling point and let simmer thirty minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Store in a stone jar or jelly tumblers.

Standard Methods.

Canned Grapes.—Pick the grapes from clusters. Heat jar very hot; fill it with whole grapes, shaking them down well. Put on cover, let stand ten minutes, then pour off water and fill with boiling sirup made sweet to taste and seal hot. The skins will not break, and they have a very different flavor from grape sauce.

Preserved Grapes.—Pick off from stems, wash and separate, putting pulp in one dish and skins in another. Boil the pulp until seeds separate and strain. Then put as much sugar as you have skins and boil fifteen minutes. Can hot.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

Daddy Tells The Best Way To Catch Fish.

"DADDY, can we go fishing with you before long?" asked Jack. "I like to do that, though somehow I never seem to catch many fish."

"I'll tell you why you don't catch them, Jack," said daddy. "Listen.

"Once upon a time," continued daddy, "a boy and his sister went with their daddy fishing in the woods. They were good children and minded their steps when on the bank, so daddy was not afraid to let them go with him. Besides, he had taught them to swim, anyway.

"This was the prettiest little stream you ever saw, singing through the woodland as if it enjoyed every minute of its life, which, I am sure, it did. And there were the loveliest trees and grasses along its brink; slim alders that drooped over the water as if they were bowing to it—'How do you do?' like that—and stately white birches that carried themselves as if they had been queens—which they were, for they were queens of the wood. And there were ever so many other trees and thick bushes and long grasses, and, all told, it made a lovely summer picture.

"Now, the little girl had watched her daddy fish often before then, and she always did just as he did, and the little boy, he had seen his father fish, too, but he was quite impatient and restless, as little boys are apt to be, and so—but I'm getting ahead of my story.

"Daddy found a good spot, which looked promising, and settled down with his rod and line to fish, and the little girl found another good spot not far away, and she settled down with her rod and line to fish, and the little boy found another spot near by, and he settled down to fish like the others.

"But he waited and waited—I think for three minutes—before he pulled in a fish, and then he waited two minutes more, and he didn't get a nibble, and then he moved to another spot, and by and by he got another fish. Then he stopped to watch some squirrels at play, and a naughty fish ate all the bait off his hook when he wasn't looking, and then he moved to another spot.

"And so it went all the afternoon. I guess that boy tried twenty spots on that bank, and he had only three fish to show for it. He had been watching squirrels, and once he saw a porcupine, but you can't do those things and catch fish.

"And when the little boy got back to where his daddy and sister were fishing he found that they had each caught a nice pailful of fish, and they hadn't moved much. Daddy had moved just twice and the little girl just once. They had attended right to their fishing."

"Daddy," said Jack after thinking real hard, "I guess the next time we go fishing I'll do like that boy did, and maybe I'll get a pailful of fish too."

"MILLIONAIRE KID" IN POLICE TOILS

William Stanbery, John Creager and Grace Philmore Arrested.

An evening of carousing culminated in the apprehension of two men and a girl at Fourth street and Watchung avenue last night, the trio being taken to police headquarters by Sergeant Maurice Higgins. Lined up in court this morning the prisoners gave their names as Grace Philmore, 337 Watchung avenue; John Creager, 416 East Fourth street, and William Stanbery, of Scotch Plains, and were remanded for trial and sentence tomorrow morning. Stanbery was the only one of the three to admit his guilt, the other two entering pleas of not guilty.

Stanbery, who is known as the "Millionaire Kid" due to the fact that he recently fell heir to the sum of $225,000, invited the girl and Creagar to go for an automobile ride early last evening. Their first stop was the carnival grounds and after "seeing the sights" at that place they left via automobile for a mountain resort. According to several who saw them leave the carnival grounds, among them were two policemen, the party was perfectly sober at that time. The driver in charge of the machine also corroborates this statement and says that the trio remained at the resort for about one-half hour.

When they came out it was nearly midnight, says the driver, and Stanbery ordered him to drive direct to the girl's home on Watchung avenue, in the Rink building. It was while the party were passing Fourth street and Watchung avenue that Higgins noticed the men toiling with some sort of a bundle in the vehicle. He was on his way to lunch, having been on duty at headquarters, and concluded it best to keep an eye on the party when they oulled up in front of the Watchung avenue flat.

According to Higgins the men, who were partially intoxicated, got out of the machine and were in the act of dragging their bundle out when he came on the scene and saw that a girl was their burden. He placed the group under arrest and they drove in the automobile to the police station where they were locked up.

The girl was so intoxicated that she became deathly sick after being placed in a cell and Sergeant Higgins notified City Physician Norman W. Currie to examine her. The doctor worked on the girl for over an hour before he brought her to her senses again and then she assumed a talkative mood, giving out considerable information that may aid the police in incriminating others. The Philmore girl is twenty-five years of age and is of an extremely frail build. She is well known about town where she has lived all her life and is commonly known as "Brook-Trout" Philmore.

Stanbery has been under police surveilance for sometime past, as has also Creager, who is one of his pals. They have been living in a local hotel and on several prior occasions have been under suspicion for various escapades but sufficient evidence could not be gained to arrest them. The leader of the gang is recognized as a spendthrift and generally takes a party of men and girls around with him, according to the police.

Arraigned before Judge DeMeza, in the city court this morning the prisoners were not entirely sober, according to the court, and for that reason they were remanded for trial and sentence tomorrow morning.

GENTLEMAN BANDIT DYING IN HOSPITAL

"Big Ed" Farley, Formerly of This City, May Makes a Confession, Say the Police.

"Big Ed" Farley, alias W. Arlington Danton, who last summer lived at 413 Central avenue, is dying in a Troy, N. Y. hospital from injuries he received in falling from a window several weeks ago Farley, it will be remembered, was arrested early in the spring in connection with the kidnapping of Patrolman William George and Russel Bland, a colored chauffeur, after putting to rout Patrolman John J. Gannon, of Summit, on February 21. Both patrolmen were later dismissed from the Summit force "for letting him get away with it." Farley was later arrested by detectives while living in an apartment in New York city and held for several weeks in the Union county jail at Elizabeth awaiting indictment. The Grand Jury failed to return an indictment against him, however, and he was let go.

He is now suffering from a fracture of the skull and injuries to the spine. On the night he was injured in Troy an aged dentist who surprised Farley while the latter is alleged to have been in the act of robbing his dental offices, grappled with Farley and both fell from the window of the office building to the sidewalk, a distance of fifty feet. The dentist died a few hours later in consequence of the fall.

Chief of Police Brown, of Summit, has been notified of the man's condition and is making preparation to go to Troy. The Summit official has hopes now that Farley is dying that he will make a confession of his guilt in connection with the holdup and kidnapping of the policemen.

The local police are also interested in the case inasmuch as he is suspected of having "done" several jobs in this city. During his residence here he posed as a mechanical dentist with office at the Central avenue address. The man acted suspiciously on a number of occasions and Captain John Flynn, of the local force, furnished information to the Summit authorities that resulted in his arrest for that deed. The evidence against him was made futile, however, by his neatly planned alibi, and he was let go.

"STRONG" OFFENSIVE TACTICS IN WESTFIELD

Intruder Makes Trouble For Police and Entire Neighborhood.

There are few instances in the annals of the Westfield police department in which they have found it necessary to require outside aid in the many and diversified duties thrust unceremoniously upon them by the citizens, but one afternoon this week they met their Waterloo and found it necessary to seek assistance. The capture of a trespasser on the premises of Alexander Goldberg, of Mayo street, was the stunt that required outside skill and help.

Armed with a stick, a colored employe about the place sought to drive away the intruder after he was discovered by Mr. Goldberg, but the offensive tactics adopted by the prowler made the man beat a hasty retreat. The police were then called upon by 'phone. Learning the circumstances, they secured the assistance of J. H. Wells, and with his aid captured the intruder.

The awe-inspiring trespasser was a large black and white skunk, which at first was mistaken for a rabbit until its defensive powers were so strongly and successfully manifested. Knowing that Mr. Wells is an expert in handling trespassers of this variety from his experience on his extensive skunk farm in Fanwood, his services were eagerly sought by the police, who usually find a way out of their difficulties, and he effected the capture of the intruder with little trouble, the trespasser now being securely incarcerated with twenty-five others of his kind on the premises of Mr. Wells.

FUNERAL OF MRS. STELLE.

The funeral services of Mrs. Eliza Maria Stelle, of Sprague avenue, which were private in nature, were held this afternoon at her late home. Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, officiated. The interment was made at Hillside cemetery.

MAYOR CLARK TALKS ABOUT CONSOLIDATION

In Interview He Explains What It Is Hoped to Accomplish Tuesday.

In discussing the plans which he has made for a meeting of the Consolidation Committee, which he appointed in the borough, which meeting will be held next Tuesday night at Debele's Hall on Chatham street, Mayor Clark this morning said:

"When the Council, at the request of the Board ofg Trade of Plainfield, set September 24th as the time to hold an election as provided under the 'Consolidation Law,' the Council requested me to arrange for a number of meetings to be held, at which the question of consolidation could be discussed. After having given the matter some thought as to the holding of meetings, I came to the conclusion that there should be some preliminary work done. In other words some method should be adopted in order to bring out all the facts, pro and con, concerning consolidation, and then call a meeting of the citizens and present these facts to them.

"I selected a committee, picking them indiscriminately, not knowing what their views were on consolidation, and in so doing tried to get representative citizens. While I personally would be pleased to bring about consolidation, yet on so important a matter the administration should try to be neutral."

The Mayor sent out a large number of invitations inviting citizens to become members of a "Consolidation Committee." Below are the names of those who expressed a willingness to serve:

Hon. Newton B. Smalley, John I. Brower, George T. Rogers, Richard C. Campbell, C. W. Hanlen, Henry Haurand, R. H. McCullough, P. Edward Wisch, R. A. Boyce, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, Charles L. Holstein, C. Frank French, A. E. Faber, Jr., Edgar F. Sheppard, Frank E. Woodruff, Walter C. Limbarger, Dr. H. K. Carroll, Judd Stewart, Lemuel B. Woolston, Alfred Seidel, M. Abrams, William J. Trembath, Charles W. Buckelew, W. C. Smith, William H. Olmsted, Samuel Townsend, Charles J. McNabb, Rev. C. C. Cain, J. J. Stahl, W. J. Conroy, C. W. Krausse, M. F. Gano, M. C. VanArsdale, M. E. McGrath, A. H. Cannon, Henry A. McGee, Henry Crofut White, B. A. Paroubek, Elston M. French, Allen Coddington, Alexander Milne, Patrick J. Regan, John W. Lewin, Maxwell E. Perkins, David C. Allen, J. Hervey Buchanan, W. G. Debele Walter M. McGee, Allan Cowperthwaite, C. H. Rugg, Dr. W. L. Saunders, Joseph O. Osgood, D. A. Holmes, David T. Kinney, Corra Ryno, L. B. Bodine, William H. Pangborn's Son, Charles F. Debele, John A. Powlison.

It is the desire of the Mayor that when the Consolidation Committee meet the question of consolidation may be discussed from every viewpoint and when all the facts in connection therewith are brought out the large committee will then appoint a smaller committee who will collect all the facts that may be brought out and then arrange for a meeting of the citizens to be held at which these facts can be presented.

CHILDREN'S HOME WANTS CONTRIBUTIONS OF FRUIT

Those who have charge of the Children's Home have requested that the following urgent appeal be made through the columns of the Daily Press for provisions with which to feed the many little ones at the Home.

"With thirty-eight to be cared for in the Children's Home, the management makes an urgent appeal to friends of the institution for fruit and vegetables. Apples and peaches are particularly plentiful at this season of the year and we can give assurance that nothing will be wasted, for all fruit as well as vegetables are canned for winter use. With the increased cost of our supplies the larder at the home is severely taxed with such a large family to provide for."

ITALIAN CONCERT.

The Italians of Plainfield and vicinity are planning for a concert to be held in the Y. M. C. A. hall Labor Day night at 8 o'clock. Professor Antonio Lambrase's thirty-piece Eagle band will render the selections. This is the same band that played at Parker Field during the Fourth of July celebration.

HEAVY LOSS IN DESPERATE BATTLE ON FRENCH FRONTIER; RUSSIANS ADVANCING IN EAST PRUSSIA

Czar's Troops Forced Germans Into a Bog Where Many Perished--Another Prince's Name in List of Fatalities--Germans Now Have 3,000,000 Men in Field, and Have Called Last Reserves--British Marines in Control at Ostend--Bitter Struggle at Pont A Marco, With Allies Fighting Desperately.

London, Aug. 28 (Central News Cable).—Premier Asquith made the following statement in the House of Commons today: "In Wednesday's fighting the British forces sustained the assault of five complete army corps. Our forces held their ground until the brunt of the attack had been met; they then retired slightly to a new position. The British inflicted enormous losses on the enemy, but I regret to state that our losses were correspondingly great."

He also told the House of Commons that the British forces today are holding the line about Cambrai, in the Department of the Nord, and between twenty and twenty-five miles inside of the front of the French frontier. The British position was attacked first by two divisions of cavalry who were supported by five corps of German infantry. The British second army bore the brunt of the cavalry attack. The Germans charged again and again, but were driven back with heavy losses, the British rifles supported by artillery proving very effective. The British first corps attacked the Germans on the right and inflicted very heavy losses.

Premier Asquith also announced that General Joffre, commander in chief of the French forces, had sent a message today expressing his sincere thanks for the protection which the British army gave to his left flank.

Field Marshal Kitchener, British Secretary of War, has received a telegram from Sir John French, commanding the British troops in France, in which the latter says he thinks it necessary to give the full details of the British casualties as soon as possible and hopes to telegraph some of the names at once.

Facing the great German army the northern wing of the allies is fighting today with desperation to prevent the flooding of all northeastern France with the German troops, from which they would have an almost open road to Paris. The situation is such that a second British expedition is today reported embarking at Southampton.

The Germans have advanced from Cysoing, where they were on Monday, to Pont A Marco, seven miles south of Lille and Marchinne. The German advance at both these points was pushed back into the main body after terrible fighting, but the whole army moved forward and broke through the French line.

Washington, Aug. 28.—A wireless despatch from Berlin received at the German Embassy today says the French and English north armies on the Sambre and Meuse Rivers have been surrounded by German troops on all sides as a result of the late fighting. The French east army has been partly driven to the south. This has prevented communication between the French East and North armies while all the German armies are in contact from Cambrai through Upper Alsace.

Civilians of the Belgian town of Louvain made a perfidious attack on German troops while fighting, and were punished by the destruction of the city. The German cavalry advanced to Ostend.

By reason of the German advance communication between the French and British on the Belgian frontier has been cut. This information was received by wireless today at the German embassy.

Rome, Aug. 28 (Central News Cable)—It is reported that King Charles of Roumania is about to abdicate because of illness.

Advices from Vienna say that the Kaiser having taken the Russian invasion on the east seriously has sent a message to his Council of Ministers ordering the Council to undertake the immediate organization of all possible relief for the population of the Province of Russia. The advices speak of the Kaiser's beloved Province of Prussia.

Confirmation of the rumors of insurrectionary movements in all the provinces of Austria-Hungary has been sent to the Messagero by its correspondent at Trieste, Austria. The correspondent declares that executions en masse are being held almost daily, and that all the fortresses are filled with Austrian prisoners and repeats the story that one Bohemian regiment, which refused to fight against Servia, was surrounded by six regiments composed of Hungarians and Germans and completely annihilated.

London, Aug. 28 (Central News Cable)—The Russian embassy has received telegrams confirming the Russian occupation of Tilsit, a town in East Prussia, 60 miles northeast of Koenigsberg. It is added that the Russians made great captures and that the garison and population fled. The Russians have established postal service in East Prussia and Russian stamps are used.

The French lines near Arras, in the province of Pas de Calais, were penetrated by German troops, says a Boulogne despatch to the Times. It is believed that the German force comprised cavalry.

French troops, however, quickly moved to the spot, and when the despatch was sent controlled the situation.

The allied troops are being sent quickly to various places in order to repel any further attempt on the part of the Germans to break through the line from Dunkirk to Lille. The advance guard of the Germans advancing on Lille, France, is now at Pont-a-Mare and Marchiennes, villages near Lille, according to a despatch to the Express from Lille.

The Austrian authorities fear for the safety of Vienna, the capital. News reaches here from St. Petersburg that the Austrians have begun important fortifications along the Danube near Vienna. It is explained in the Austrian capital that the construction of the fortifications are necessary in order to relieve the needs of the unemployed by providing work.

WANT TO INCREASE AUCTIONEERS' FEE

Out-of-town Sellers Now Competing On An Equal Basis With Local Men.

Councilmen interested in public affairs are seriously considered the introduction of an ordinance to place a heavy license on out-of-town auctioneers and another to regulate the transient commercial enterprises that have been operating in this city with success recently. When seen by a Daily Press reporter this morning, Councilman F.J.Blatz expressed himself as being in favor of the auctioneer regulation but said that he did not think that the second one was practical.

Within the last few months a number of traveling jewelery firms and other enterprises have opened temporary quarters in this city and after doing a bargain business for a week or more have closed up. In many instances the purchasers of articles sold by these concerns have not been wholly satisfied but did not find out that they had been flim-flammed until after the business was taken away from the city. It has been suggested that an ordinance be passed to regulate this transient traffic but the proposition is a big one to handle and it is said that efforts to make it binding would be futile. At the present time a firm of any standing can rent a store in Plainfield and operate as long as it sees fit, packing up and leaving when it so chooses. The auctioneer's tax is considered a more practical issue, however, and it is not unlikely that such an ordinance will be brought to the attention of the Common Council before long. Recently several New York auctioneers have been engaged for work in this vicinity, notably in the sale of real estate and larger dispositions of household effects. At the present time the license fee is the same for out-of-town men as it is for those who do business in Plainfield and the latter do not consider the regulation fair to them.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

There seems to be only one reason why one should buy in Plainfield from the local merchants and that reason is to me that they buy from me. When one works in a town or city daily and receives a salary for that work it would seem altogether fitting and proper that that one in turn should employ Plainfield stores and Plainfield men in all cases wherever possible. The whole reason can be expressed thusly—"Work for those who work for you."

The writer is and has been a reader of the Daily Press for some time and has been interested in reading the advertisements as well as the news.

I have watched the Rothberg "ad" in particular. I noticed one a short time ago that said, "If we haven't got what you want see how quickly we can get it for you." I remembered this and when I wanted a pair of gray silk gloves I went to the sign of the "SR" to get them.

The proprietor, Mr. Sam Rotnberg, said to me, "I haven't those gloves in stock, but I am going to New York today and will get them for you.

That evening the gloves were sold to me at the New York retail price.

I know that in this particular case Mr. Rothberg went out of his way to accommodate a customer and made no profit in so doing.

The "SR" store made good in a small way as it will make good in the larger.

WORK PROGRESSING ON MIDDLESEX B. & L. ASS'N

The committee of the Middlesex Borough Building Loan Association met Wednesday evening to report their success in soliciting subscriptions. Those present were Messrs. King, chairman; Voorhees, secretary; LaPointe, Polhemus, Bernstein and Douglass. They reported 347 shares already subscribed. Messrs. Wirz and Davidson were not present, but it is thought that their lists will bring the subscriptions up to 500 shares. The committee was increased by appointment of six new members, Nelson M. Giles, J. C. Gobel, N. S. Nicolayson, A. E. Bouchman, L. Curcio and Charles Wuelling, who will work hard for the next two weeks and expect to secure not less than 500 shares.

R. H. Brokaw, who has been treasurer of the Bound Brook Building Loan since its organization, was present and furnished much valuable information in regard to the organization of such associations. He will also assist at the next meeting, September 9, when the incorporators will sign the charter.

A committee of three, Messrs. LaPointe, Voorhees and Polhemus was appointed by the chair, to prepare a constitution and by-laws, and have the same in readiness with all necessary information for the next meeting. The committee will meet at the residence of Mr King, on Monday, and complete this work. The next public meeting will be held at the Lincoln postoffice on September 9th, at 7:30 p. m., and all subscribers will be notified to attend this meeting as the election of incorporators, directors and officers will take place at this meeting.

The association expects to begin business with at least 800 shares, and the first series will be limited to 1,000 shares. The subscription list will be closed for a year as soon as the 1,000 shares are subscribed. Those who desire to enter as charter members, can send in their names to any one of the committee, or the secretary, Wm. D. Voorhees, at Lincoln.

TO RECEIVE SENTENCE.

Jesson, Pa., Aug. 28.—Dr. Martin Griffith, who was convicted several months ago of voluntary manslaughter, in connection with the mutilation and slaying of Prof. William L. Robinson, a Pittsburgh music master, is to appear in court here tomorrow to receive sentence. After his conviction Dr. Griffith received the permission of the court and of his bondsmen to go to London to receive an honorary degree from the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons. The slaying of Robinson was one of the most sensational cases in the history of this section. The slain man had been giving music lessons in the Griffith home. The physician returned home unexpectedly one day in the latter part of last January and admitted slashing Robinson. He then ordered the mutilated man taken to the hospital. It was expected at first that the patient would survive, but several days after he had been received at the hospital he had a fatal relapse. Dr. Griffith is one of the best known medical men in this section of the State. He is physician and surgeon for the Pittsburg Steel Company and has an extensive practice. Prof. Robinson lived in Clarksburg, W. Va., where he left a wife and several children when he came to Monessen.

MAKE YOURS A PUBLIC SERVICE STORE

This is the age of service. The rewards of today go to the men who give the most in return.

Translated for you, Mr. Merchant, this means that the customers are certain to patronize the store that will give them what they want when they want it.

Cut prices may bring some trade, but better service will bring more.

This is the age when people are reading the advertising in their daily newspapers because they are finding it a distinct part of the service they expect their newspapers to give.

When a nationally distributed article of merit is advertised in the newspapers a demand for it sets in right away.

People want to see it and, if satisfied, want to buy it.

They are going to turn to the store that lets them know it has the article. That store will be giving them the service they want at that particular moment.

If it is a good article they are going to remember the store where they got it and will come back to that store again.

Co-operate with the manufacturers who come into the newspapers of your town to exploit their goods and you will be building business for yourself.

EXPECT CONCLAVE WILL BE BRIEF

Election of Successor to Pope Pius X, It Is Thought, Will Take Little Time.

THE PROCEDURE TOLD

Rome, Aug. 27—The approaching conclave for the election of a successor to Pope Piux X. is expected to occupy considerable less time than the similar assemblage in the past. In the first place, the entire absence of strong rival factions in the Sacred College, such as existed at the time of the election of the late Pope, is expected to make the selection of his successor a matter of less difficulty. Still more important is the change in the method of election that was prescribed by Pope Pius some six years ago, for the express purpose of simplifying the election machinery and cutting down the time usually occupied by the conclave in arriving at a choice.

The rule for many centuries was as follows: When; after balloting, the votes were counted and it was found that no candidate had obtained the necessary two-thirds majority, any Cardinals who wished to do so were allowed to change their votes. Many Popes who failed to obtain the requisite number of votes in the ordinary scrutiny have been elected in this manner.

Pope Pius decided to abolish this ancient method of election. At the same time, however, he took measures to expedite the election by introducing an important change. Hitherto, Cardinals have been allowed to hold only two ballots a day, one in the morning after mass and the other in the evening. Now the ruling provides for four ballots, two in the morning and two in the evening. Thus the coming Papal candidate election is expected to take only half the time occupied during the last seven centuries.

It is said that one of the reasons for this change arose out of an incident at the last conclave, at which Pope Pius was elected. After the first scrutiny, when Cardinal Rampolla obtained more votes than any two other candidates together, it was expected in the conclave that an opportunity would be given to the Cardinals who so desired to change their votes. Instead of this, however, the assembly immediately disbanded and voting was put off until evening, with the result that the election was protracted three days longer.

On the day of the conclave all the Cardinals are summoned from their cells by a bell thrice rung, and repair to the assembly chamber. From this moment until the result of the voting is announced they have no communication save with the Vatican officials. Their clothing and even their foo is cearched, lest they should contain correspondence from friends outside. If, by the greatest exercise of leniency, a visitor is admitted, he must speak to the immured Cardinal through a grating of iron and in a tone loud enough to be heard by the watchers. After a night of this seclusion the conclave is formally assembled next afternoon, and all repair to the Sistine Chapel, where a desk has been provided for each Cardinal. In the middle of the hall are six tables and behind these an altar.

Immediately in front of the altar is a table on which are two chalices for holding the ballots. Before proceeding further, a search is made in the chapel to assure the conclave of the fact that none but those entitled to vote are present. Three inspectors of the election are then chosen by ballot. Should any Cardinal be so ill that he is unable to leave his dormitory, a committee is appointed to visit him and take his vote, which is brought to the conclave sealed and deposited in one of the chalices.

Each Cardinal writes on a little table in the corner of the chapel the name of the candidate he would elect, in the centre of the voting ticket. This is of an oblong form, prepared according to the directions of the bull of Gregory XV.

In the centre are the words, "Eligo in Summum Pentificem Rm. Dmmeum. D. Card." (I elect Sovereign Pontiff my Lord Cardinal ———), after which the voter inscribes the name of the candidate he would elect.

At the foot of the altar the voter lifts up his hand and exhibits the ticket between his thumb and finger. He then kneels and prays for a moment, after which he takes oath that he is about to elect him whom, according to God, he thinks ought to be elected. He then puts the ticket on the paten and slips it from thence into the chalice, which he covers up again. Then he makes a reverence before the altar and returns to his place.

When all have voted in like manner the six tellers examine the papers and proclaim the result. If no Cardinal has obtained the required number of votes—two-thirds of the number of Cardinals present—the result is declared void, and the voting papers, collected together, are burned in a brazier with damp straw, the dense smoke from which issues through a particular chimney, visible from outside and proclaims to the outer world that no election has taken place.

First to cast his ballot is the dean of the college, who writes the name of his candidate on a slip of paper eight inches in length and four in width, which he folds, and, sealing it at both ends, folds it once more in the middle, and then drops it in the bowl nearest his desk. All follow in the order of their rank as members of the college.

The burning of the second ballots in the coming conclave will close the session of the day, and adjournment will be taken until evening. Here, again, the coming conclave is to differ materially from its predecessors. At the first evening session in former conclaves it was the rule to afford an opportunity to those Cardinals representing foreign powers to state whatever serious objections might exist to any of the candidates, in the event of that candidate's election as Pope, might operate to the disadvantage of the Vatican abroad. These objections were always duly considered. Several times in the last century did the foreign Cardinals successfully oppose the election of leading candidates. The right of veto was claimed at one time or another by France, Germany, Austria and Italy. But Pope Pius X. soon after he came to the Papal throne, abolished this right to veto, so that it will play no part in the proceedings at the conclave next week.

Compromise candidate have several times been taken by general agreement, whenever the race between two strong Cardinals became so close as to deadlock the college.

Proceeding with the election by ballot, voting is continued on the lines indicated until a choice is reached, and this is made known to the people by the absence of the smoke, for although the ballots, as in the unsuccessful instances, are also burned, the smoke is not permitted to escape. When the result is reached, it is announced by the ringing of a bell; all the senior Cardinals advance to the place occupied by the newly chosen Pontiff and inquire if he accepts the election. On receiving his affirmative answer, he is at once saluted by the entire college. He then announces the name by which he desires to be known throughout the world as the head of the church.

An interval then occurs during which the canopies are removed from the stalls of the Cardinals, except that of the newly elected Pope, and His Holiness retires to robe himself in the pontifical vestments.

On his return the fisherman's ring is placed on his finger by the Cardinal Camerlingo, and the new Vicar of Christ gives his first solemn benediction to the members of the Sacred College from the steps of the altar. Then taking his seat in the sedia gestatoria, the Pope receives the homage of Their Eminences and then communicates the name which it is his pleasure to assume as Pontiff.

The people then flock into St. Peter's to see the Pope and receive his blessing, and the stirring scence which presents itself.

Until Nicholas II., in 1657, restricted the quality of the electors to the Sacred College, Popes were elected by both the clergy and the people. More than a century later Pope Alexander III. issued a decree making a two-thirds vote of the Cardinals necessary for the election of a Pope.

One of the curious and not generally known fundamental rules of a papal election is that the choice of the Sacred College is not necessarily limited to a cleric and that and faithful Catholic, even though he be a layman, is eligible. It is true that this rule is more honored in the breach than in the observance, as the last layman was elected in 1024, when Crescentius, being raised to the pontificate, was immediately ordained and became John XIX. Several attemps have been made to restrict the choice of the Cardinals to clerics, but they have invariably failed.

Neither does there exist any law or regulation to render compulsory the choice of an Italian. But the predominance of Italians in the Sacred College makes the choice of one of their nationality a practical certainty. The Italian majority is strong in number, but it is stronger still in influence. All the affairs of the papacy are directed by the Italian Cardinals residing in Rome. As heads of congregations they have the power exercised elsewhere by cabinet ministers. Their views are carried out by Italian subordinates. Virtually all of the Vatican officials as well as the papal nuncios are Italian. All these people, with their influence, which is strong, have nothing to gain and everything to lose from a foreign successor to Pius X.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. EMILY EGAN

Aged Woman, Well Known Here, Passes Away After Illness of Two Days.

Mrs. Emily Berry Egan, of 40 Grammercy place, New York city, who is well known here, died yesterday at Asbury Park, after an illness of two days, in her ninety-third year. She was a descendant of John Berry, Governor of New York, in the time of Charles II., and was born in the Berry mansion in West Broadway. Her father was Dr. Abram J. Berry, who was one of the few physicians who remained in New York city during the great cholera plague shortly before the Civil War. For his services during the period the city of New York presented him with a loving cup and a silver service. During the Civil War, Dr. Berry served as a brigade surgeon under General McClellan. His most notable achievement was the rescue of more than 800 wounded who had been deserted and forgotten on the battlefield of Bull Run.

When Mrs. Egan was a young woman her family removed to Williamsburg, and her father become the first Mayor of that city. Until six years ago she lived in South Ninth street, Brooklyn, which was part of the old Berry estate and through which Berry street, Brooklyn, now runs.

Mrs. Egan's funeral services will be held at Christ church, Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. She was the first volunteer organist of this church, and her father was one of its founders and its first junior warden. She was married in this church to Daniel Egan, a lawyer of New York.

Mrs. Egan is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Baldwin; six grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Among the surviving grandchildren living in this vicinity are the Misses Louise and Marion Egan and C. Berry Egan, of this city, and Alfred and Harris Egan, of Westfield.

LETTER ARRIVED HERE TODAY THAT WAS MAILED AUGUST 2

Mrs. M. Meires, of the borough, received a letter this morning from her daughter, Mrs. Catherine Cubberly, of Pearl street, who has been in Europe for some time. The letter was mailed from Builbaden, Germany, on August 2, and just arrived here. It stated that Mrs. Cubberly was safe and that there were about five hundred other Americans with her.

Mrs. Meires has been somewhat concerned as to her daughter's safety during this trouble and this letter has relieved her fears.

HARVEST HOME PLANS AT PISCATAWAY

A meeting of the Raritan Civic Club was held in the St. James Parish House, Piscataway, and arrangements completed for the holding of the Harvest Home on September 2nd. The various committees made their reports.

Tomorrow afternoon the association will meet on the grounds back of the Parish House and erect the framework for various booths and country store, also build the bandstand and make the tables. It is planned to seat 100 and perhaps 200 at a time. Goodwin's Band, of Cranbury, will play during the evening and the band has promised to render its choicest selections.

On Monday evening there will be a final meeting of the committees to turn in their reports and announce just what remains to be done.

Nearly twenty new members applied for admission to the association at last night's meeting and the officers are enthusiastic over the progress made.

FILING MANY PETITIONS TODAY AT ELIZABETH

Elizabeth, Aug. 28—The County Courthouse here today, appears to be gathering place for all the political lights of the county, it being the last day for filing petitions endorsing candidates for county offices. While a few of the petitions had been filed prior to today, there appears to be a hustle on the part of a number to get into line with the documents. A number of supplementary petitions to those already filed were brought into the office of the county clerk today. The petitions endorsing Mayor Percy Hamilton Stewart, of Plainfield, for the Democratic nomination for State Senator, and John P. Owens, also of Plainfield, as candidate for county clerk, on the same ticket, were among those filed.

RUSSIANS ARE STILL ADVANCING

'Berlin Ours In Three Weeks,' They Say.

GERMANS RETREATING

Four Armies to Be Hurled Into the Fray.

CZAR'S TROOPS CONFIDENT

London, Aug. 28.—"Berlin in three weeks" is the plan of the Russian general staff, according to dispatches from St. Petersburg.

It is said that the Russian troops have been divided into four armies of 2,000,000 men each. These armies will practically be hurled one after the other through east Prussia and Galicia toward the goal, the succeeding armies filling the gaps of the ones ahead after each general engagement. Thus Russia expects to confront German re-enforcements with fresh troops.

The war office declares that there will be no necessity for "feeding off the country," as the commissariat is in excellent condition.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company telegraphs an announcement of the general staff that the Russian advance is continuing with irresistible force in east Prussia and that the Germans in the southern part of the province have retreated to Osterode, ninety-five miles southwest of Gumbinnen, where the Russians won a decisive victory, and only five miles from the dividing line between east and west Prussia.

The Morning Post has a dispatch from its St. Petersburg correspondent telling of the marked improvements that have been wrought in the Russian army since previous wars and the inexhaustible supply of men which the Russian army can draw upon if necessary.

"Russia," the correspondent says, "will have no difficulty in finding 20,000,000 men to complete the work begun by its trained fighting forces. Moreover, this is the first time in the memory of men that the Russian army has taken the field with adequate equipment and a sufficiency of supplies under officers trained in the hard lesson so thoroughly learned in the Japanese campaign.

"The history of that campaign shows what Russian soldiers accomplish when badly fed and equipped, but under the conditions of today and fighting in a cause he understands there is little wonder that the Russian soldier has proved himself a match for the German.

"The German opposition to the Russian advance is broken and demoralized. Koenigsberg, where three German army corps have taken refuge, is so situated it can easily be contained by an adequate force, while the rest of the Russian army passes on into the interior of Germany, and it is doubtful whether Germany has sufficient organized forces to oppose the Russians."

BRITISH MARINES AT OSTEND

London, Aug. 28.—England has stripped the reserve ships of the North sea fleet of marines to aid in the fighting in Belgium. Because of alarm over the danger of airship raids to which England would be exposed should the Germans establish a permanent base in Ostend the British "sailor soldiers" have been sent to re-enforce the Belgians now there.

In the house of commons First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill announced that marines were now at Ostend. He said that the expeditionary force was a large one, but did not give any figures.

MORE JOBS FOR OUR ENVOYS.

They Will Act For Japan In Vienna and For Austria In Tokyo.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The Austrian ambassador notified Secretary of State Bryan by wire from Manchester, Mass., that diplomatic relations between Austria-Hungary and Japan have been severed. The United States embassy is acting diplomatically for Japan in Vienna, and Ambassador Guthrie at Tokyo has been instructed by the state department to be prepared to act for Austria-Hungary.

Japanese Ambassador Chinda called on Secretary of State Bryan to discuss the far eastern situation today, but neither would divulge what was said.

MURDER.

Zeppelin airships undoubtedly can be made to play a most important part in the warfare in Europe, but when they are put to such use as was the one which dropped bombs into Antwerp, it is time for the other nations to lodge a mighty protest. Certainly it cannot be termed civilized warfare, when unarmed non-combatants are made the objects of a cowardly night attack, including women, children, aged and infirm people, to say nothing of citizens of neutral nations.

No doubt many of the stories of cruelty on the part of the Germans which have come from their opponents are without the slightest foundation in fact, but when a report describes the dropping of bombs from an airship into a city not in the vicinity of the actual fighting, we agree with the Perth Amboy News that it is deliberate murder, and is "a more uncivilized way of fighting than the practices of the savages of ages past." The New York Sun, in its usual able manner, summed up the situation yesterday, when it said:

If General Sherman were alive, he would have to apologize to hell. He was unjust to that amiable region. The war of his time was but an innocent, harmless killing game. It has grown to that aerial triumph of German culture over Antwerp.

To murder wantonly and futilly, to slay or mangle little children and young mothers in their beds, to salute the Red Cross with a bomb, to slaughter and terrorize non-combatants, random destruction with no military results, with no permanent result except to sicken and anger all civilized mankind—this is war as practised on a city from Zeppelin airships.

Every nation which still believes that something of humanity should be maintained in the usages of warfare should raise its voice against this archdeed of pitiless savagery; against the repetition of such senseless and unforgivable blind massacre.

WHAT TO DO IF ON FIRE.

So many people are either burned to death or disfigured for life in fire accidents that some steps should be taken to prevent these distressing results when one's clothing becomes ignited, says the Trenton Times. In this connection a Pennsylvania health expert makes some good suggestions. He says: "When your clothing catches fire don't run. Lie down and roll, if there is nobody near to wrap you in a coat or heavy cloth."

The seriousness of a burn is usually due to the area of the body covered rather than the depth of the burn locally. When a person's clothing becomes aflame the worst possible action is to run, although that is the usual result of the panic-stricken state of mind. Running fans the flames and causes extended burns, which are generally fatal.

Fatalities from burns might be considerably reduced if the victims could have the presence of mind to roll on the grass or dust or envelop themselves in a rug or heavy piece of carpet.

The Long Branch Record thinks Mr. Fowler is absurd because he speaks in favor of a revision of the tariff in the platform upon which he seeks nomination to Congress. Why is it absurd? Have not even the powers-to-be in the Democratic party been hard pushed to devise a means to furnish enough income to run the country since the war started, and would it not be the greatest aid to the purchase of articles "Made in America," were the protective tariff restored. Certainly nothing has been done to aid the high cost of living by the reductions which were put in force by the Democratic tariff makers, and many a man who will go down to defeat in that party this fall will do so because of the tariff and nothing else.

Donato Di Lonardo, a local working man who has frequently written letters to the Press on topics of the day, and who has read much about the situation abroad, has written the contributed editorial for tomorrow. Some exception has been taken in the past by readers of the paper to Mr. Di Lonardo's references to the relation of the church to the struggle abroad, his view being that of the members of the Socialist party. In tomorrow's article there are no references to church, the discussion being given to his idea of "What caused the war and will it be the last one?"

The type of political speeches is gradualy changing. Two Republican candidates for nominations delivered addresses in this city last week, and neither of them mentioned the names of Abraham Lincoln or William McKinley.

What is so rare as local news on a Thursday in August?

THE FORUM

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:—

The Peace parades which are being held in New York city, ought to be extended to the country districts, where such a thing attracts more attention than in the cities.

"Free Acres" at Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, will have a Peace Festival on August 29th; the event will attract the attention and arouse the interest of Berkeley Heights, New Providence, and even Summit and other adjoining cities.

It is to be hoped that the idea will spread.

POLITICAL NOTES.

September 2—Last day for filing petitions for local offices.

September 8—First registry day. Also last day for filing petitions to fill vacancies in all offices except Governor and Congress.

September 29—State convention of each party at Trenton and date on which county committees meet and organize.

October 20—Last registry day for municipalities over 5,000.

November 3—Election Day.

First voters and those who have moved to this city during the past year should bear in mind that they should register on the first registration day September 8, if they intend voting at the primaries of their party. Those who have moved the place of their residence from one district to another should take the same precaution if they desire to avoid a trip to the county seat for a transfer.

It is not too early to draw the voters' attention to the many good points about making their registration on the first day set apart for that work. This action saves considerable time and confusion on primary day which is also the second day for registration. The District Board of Registry and Election would appreciate the action on the part of all voters who register on the first day.

The four local ward clubs of the Republican party have plans well under way for a mass meeting to be held shortly after primary day, the meeting to take the nature of a ratification gathering, at which it is hoped all factions will come together.

With both the Plainfield and Jeffersonian Clubs behind his candidacy, Mayor Percy H. Stewart should make a good run for State Senator.

Walter Limbarger, of North Plainfield, has been circulating a petition for ex-Speaker of the House A. M. Beekman, of Somerville, who is a candidate for State Senator. Mr. Limbarger secured over 200 Democratic signatures in the borough and filed the petition this morning at the office of the county clerk at Somerville.

At that time his injuries were not considered serious but he was ordered to go home and rest. This he refused to do and went out Wednesday night with a number of other companions. His carelessness made his injuries worse and as a result he has been laid up ever since.

Although the Germans have been reported as having captured Lille, France, a correspondent who visited that French border city telegraphs that he found no Germans there and that consequently the French troops are expected to re-occupy Lille at any moment.

The following statement on the position of the British troops was given out this morning at 12:30 a. m.:

"The French operations of war over a distance of some 250 miles have necessitated certain changes in the position of our troops, who are now occupying a strong line to meet the German advance, supported by the French army on both flanks.

"The morals of both armies appear to be excellent, and there is little doubt that they will give good accounts of themselves in the positions they now hold."

Ostend, Belgium, has been occupied by British marines, it is stated here. This action was taken in order to prevent the Germans from obtaining a base on the English Channel from which they could operate against the British Isles.

A correspondent at Ostend telegraphs that during the last two days he motored in every direction inland from Ostend and is in a position to say that there are no Germans within twenty miles of the city.

"Four days ago," he adds, "there was a considerable number of troops in the neighborhood of Charleroi. Certainly none was there yesterday, for I motored back to Ostend that way in the hope of seeing them."

The correspondent then relates that four German officers rode into a town which was wholly without protection. They stopped at a hotel and inquired whether or not there were any German prisoners and wounded in the town. They were told there was not and rode away, telling the hotel proprietor, however, that the Germans would be completely victorious against the allies' forces.

The Express has received a despatch from its correspondent in Paris who says that he is informed in a high quarter in the French capital that the Germans have no fewer than 3,000,000 men in arms. Two million are in Belgium, Lorraine and Alsace.

Despatches received from Vienna state positively that the Austrian forces operating in the south, that is against Servia and Montenegro, the latter country having thrown in her lot with the former, have been ordered to remain on the defensive. The reason for this order is the fact that a large number of troops have been transferred to Galicia to oppose the Russians who it is admitted are making alarming progress.

Five members of the crew of a Scotch fishing craft, which has been sunk by a floating mine 30 miles off Blyth, Northumberland, were landed at Hull, today.

A despatch from Vienna says that Austria has declared war on Belgium.

It is stated here that the Russians have crossed the Vistula River in West Prussia and the Dnieister River in Galicia Austria.

Prince Ernest of Saxe Meiningen has been wounded and placed in a hospital at Gubeitge. Prince Ernest is the second son of Prince Frederick of Saxe Meiningen, who was killed at Namur last Sunday. He is 18 years old and is a lieutenant in the Sixth Thuringian Infantry.

It is announced that during the recent operations in Togoland, one British and two French officers and 12 British and 16 French soldiers were killed. Three British and two French officers and 24 British and 26 French native soldiers were wounded.

The Rome Tribuna's correspondent at St. Petersburg says that the Russians are now operating in Western Prussian and are marching on Danzig in large numbers. The population is in flight.

The Express has received a despatch from its correspondent in Paris who says that he is informed in a high quarter in the French capital that the Germans have no fewer than 3,000,000 men in arms. Two million are in Belgium, Lorraine and Alsace.

The Government has been a heavy purchaser of flour recently.

It became known today that the Treasury Department had contemplated the formation of a State bank to finance industrial activities unless the joint stock banks relaxed from their attitude of holding aloof and declining to help.

British marines in force are now in control of Ostend, says a despatch to the Times. They continued landing all day yesterday and several quick firers were ashore early today.

A Lille despatch to the Express announces the advance guard of Germans at Pont-A-Marco and Marcienne, a slight advance movement from Cysoing. There was heavy fighting at Marchiennes, Thursday morning, when the Germans broke through the French line. The allies acquitted themselves well and succeeded in pushing the German advance forces back on their main body. The German advance forces were also repulsed at Pont-A-Marco.

Powerful German forces are today reported attacking the French line of defense along the northern frontier. Cavalry raids are screening the operations of the invaders. The British force, south of Maubeuge, is reported to have repulsed a terrific attack.

Although the Germans have been reported as having captured Lille, France, a correspondent who visited that French Border city telegraphed that he found no Germans there and that consequently the French troops are expected to re-occupy Lille at any moment.

The Russian Embassy here says that according to despatches received today, the German cruiser Magdeburg, was destroyed in the Gulf of Finland, by the Russian cruisers Bogatyr and Pallada. The commander of the Magdeburg is reported to have escaped.

The Russian government has issued the following official account of the destruction of the cruiser Magdeburg in the Gulf of Finland: "Thursday morning when the fog lifted our two cruisers were sent to look for the Magdeburg and opened fire when they found her. The German cruiser replied but her fire soon ceased. The Russian shell destroyed the funnels and caused an explosion which shattered the bow as far as the captains bridge. Some of the officers and crew were taken prisoners.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28 (Central News).—A report from Riga says that the Russian troops, in addition to taking more towns in East Prussia, namely, Nordenburg, Zensburg and Rothliess also had occupied the town of Tilsit. According to wounded Russian soldiers, the German troops at Soldau, unable to withstand the furious bayonet charges of the Russian troops, fled into a bog and perished, the Russians watching over their bodies.

A great battle is raging near Lemburg. Three Austrian army corps are engaged. Russian aeroplanes are flying over Lemburg.

Berlin, Aug. 28 (By Wireless)—It is officially stated here that General VonKluk defeated the English army at Maubeuge and renewed the attack today, threatening to surround it. Generals VonBuelow and VonHausen completely defeated the Franco-Belgian forces, about eight corps, between the Sambre and the Namur and the Meuse in several days battle and are now pursuing them to the eastward of Maubeuge. The attack on Maubeuge was opened by the Grand Duke Albrecht of Wertemburg, who defeated and pursued the enemy across the Samois and the Meuse.

There is a report here that a portion of the British expeditionary force is penned in at Maubeuge.

Following fighting extending over nine days, according to German headquarters, the enemy in the west has been defeated at every place and at the present time is in full retreat.

The Crown Prince is advancing towards the Meuse and the Crown Prince of Bavaria repulsed an attack from Nancy and the south. General VonHeeringen continues the pursuit southward through the Vosges.

Four Belgian divisions attacking Tuesday and Wednesday from Antwerp have been repulsed, losing guns and many prisoners. The Belgian population generally participating in the fighting necessitated severe repressive measures. The corps of the last reserves have been called out to guard communications.

Paris, Aug. 28 (Central News Cable.) The Havas News Agency declares today that two motor cyclists attached to the Belgian army who arrived in Paris this morning from Namur, declare that the forts at Namur are still holding out and that they are not even ready to surrender.

It is rumored here that the allied troops have been defeated at several points between Lille and Sedan. As yet there is no confirmation.

Considerable uneasiness was caused in various quarters by a rumor that President Poincare and the new Cabinet were preparing to quit Paris and go to Bordeaux. (Such a move would indicate that the French government feared Paris would fall into the hands of the Germans.)

Nothing could be learned here for a large part of the day regarding the immense battle now going on in the north.

Upon crossing the Vistula River in West Prussia, the Russians will march straight to Berlin, according to Col. Osnobichin, Russian military attache here, who is quoted in the Journal. Other armies are about to invade West Prussia.

The second line of the allies defense, much of it within French territory, is reported today to be holding well under enormous pressure from the Germans. There is fighting all along the front. The Government admits that the Germans outnumber the allies and that the latter are compelled to give way where the pressure is greatest. The war office, however, denies that the French positions are being turned. It insists every retrograde movement has been provided for and that at the proper time the allies will assume the offensive. It is admitted at the war office that it has been necessary to rush French reinforcements to hold the line east through the department of the Nordo towards Arras, where the German flanking movement was strongly developed.

German troops, it is reported here, have attacked Libreville, a town in the French Congo with a population of 1,500 persons of whom 130 are white.

Boulogne, Aug. 28.—German troops broke through the French Lines near Arras, in the Pas De Calais, but the French moved rapidly against them and are reported to have the situation well in hand. The allied troops are being swiftly arranged to frustrate any further attempt to break through the line between Dunkirk and Lille.

Tokio, Aug. 28—All neutral vessels in Kiao Chau Bay must be out of there today. No word of the landing of Japanese troops has been received here. The condition of the roads after recent heavy rains will delay military movements.

The commander of the first Japanese squadron has reported to the Navy department that his torpedo flotilla ran into a typhoon. The boats were scattered and five men lost their lives as a result of the storm. The location of the fleet is not given.

New York, Aug. 28.—Cable messages from Paris announce that the French government has placed at the disposal of the American hospital in Paris the new buildings of the Lyce Pasteur, to be used during the war as an annex for the care of all sick and wounded. It will be equipped and supported by Americans and served by American physicians and nurses and will maintain about 1,000 beds. It is the intention to raise $250,000 here and an equal amount in France for the equipment and maintenance of the hospital. Among those who are actively interested in the movement here are Mrs. Robert Bason, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. William Greenough, Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Miss Maude Wetmore, Mrs. S. R. Bertron, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. F. A. Sayles, Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, Mrs. Junius S. Morgan, Mrs. Parmlee Herrick, Mrs. Barrett Mendell, Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler and Mrs. F. L. Chapin. Contributions for the American Hospital Fund should be sent to J. P. Morgan and Company, 23 Wall street.

In an effort to prevent outbreaks of race hostility in the United States, members of the National Board of Censors are today busy sending the following letter to producers of motion pictures depicting scenes of the European war:

"When you are producing pictures of war scenes please proceed the actual pictures with a caption asking the audience to refrain from any expression of partisanship as the pictures are shown. You will strengthen such announcement greatly by adding that the request is directly in line with the policy of President Wilson. We further suggest that scenes that tend to arouse racial hatred be treated in a restrained manner."

The National Board of Censors passes upon 95 per cent. of the motion pictures produced in this country.

Steamship piers here tomorrow will be thronged with Boy Scouts who will render such aid as they can to the hundreds of passengers who are expected to arrive from the European war zone. They will tender their services as guides or messengers and assist in any other service the refugees may want performed. The same service was given the stranded Americans in Europe at the outbreak of the war by the Boy Scouts in Belgium, France and England.

Persistent inquiry is being made at the hotels here for a representative of the Italian Giverntment, said to have come to the United States to purchase coal in large quantities. Inquiry made by soft coal dealers at the Italian consulate failed to yield any information. The representative is said to have arrived here on the Principe di Udine, the Italian ship chartered to bring over stranded Americans.

Reservists more than 41 years old are not wanted by the French Government, according to the announcement of Georges d'Anglade, French consul general in New York. He declares that the war office in Paris cabled him not to accept any reservists who have exceeded this limit.

According to the consul many reservists past the age limit have applied to him to be sent back to fight for France. Up to the present time more than 3,000 have been transported from New York to France. It is said that many more want to go back and that many of them will sail on the French liner Chicago tomorrow.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF.

France.

Indications are that there has been some hard fighting in the vicinity of Lille, but the report that that city has fallen is denied. The new war minister, M. Millerand, and the chiefs of divisions have decided to make Paris a perfectly intrenched camp. The measure is said to be purely precautionary with the object of insuring inlets and exits whatever may happen. The line on the north is twenty-five miles within the French frontier and behind the Valenciennes-Maubeuge line, to which the allies were driven in their first series of battles. The French are reported to have assumed the offensive in the south and to be forcing the Germans back at some of the points. Longwy is said to have been captured by the Germans.

Russia.

The czar's troops are invading east Prussia in great number. One report says that there are 8,000,000 men in the field divided into four great armies and that the Russian plans contemplate an attack on Berlin within three weeks.

The main Russian advance, it is expected, will be toward Posen from the south. It is said that a number of the forts in east Prussia will not be attacked, but that they will be isolated. Reports from St. Petersburg say that the Russians have occupied Tilsit, that they are within striking distance of Koenigsberg and Danzig and that they have advanced their lines to within twenty-five miles of Posen.

The Russian advance, it is claimed, is almost unopposed by the Germans, who are retreating rapidly westward before them. The people are leaving in great numbers from both Danzig and Koenigsberg in fear of a Russian siege.

Great Britain.

First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill in the house of commons yesterday announced that the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, formerly the North German Lloyd liner, but now a converted cruiser, had been sunk off the West African coast by the British ship High Flier. One member of the High Flier crew was killed and five were wounded.

The reserve ships of the North sea fleet have been stripped of marines, who have occupied Ostend. This measure is said to have been taken because of the danger of airship raids to which England would be exposed should the Germans establish permanent base on the Belgian coast. The port of Southampton has been closed, and it is believed that a second expeditionary force is about to be sent to the continent.

Italy.

It is reported from Rome that the Austrians are mobilizing along the Italian frontier and that they have a considerable force at Trent, not far from the Italian border.

Austria.

A three days' battle near Krasnik, in Russian Poland, according to reports from Vienna, ended with an absolute victory for the Austrian forces. Five Russian army corps which spread over about fifty miles were defeated and the whole front of the Russians took flight toward Lublin.

French on Offensive.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The following official announcement was made public:

"In certain regions of the north inhabitants of towns and villages have been frightened by the appearance of scouts of the enemy. These are passing incursions which can happen in any war, sometimes at a great distance from important operations, and need cause no alarm, as they do not at all indicate imminent occupation by the enemy.

"In the Vosges district our troops resumed the offensive and drove back the Germans who had forced them to retire on the Saint Die side. The Germans bombarded Saint Die, which is an unfortified town.

"In the region between the Vosges and Nancy our offensive movement has continued uninterruptedly for five days. The German losses have been considerable—2,500 bodies were found on a front of three kilometers southeast of Nancy and 4,500 bodies on a front of four kilometers in the region of Vitrimont.

"Longwy, a very old fortress, the garrison of which consisted of only one battalion, which had been bombarded Aug. 3, capitulated after holding out for twenty-four days. More than half the garrison was killed or wounded. Lieutenant Colonel Darche, governor of Longwy, has been nominated an officer of the Legion of Honor for heroic conduct in the defense of Longwy.

"On the Meuse our troops have repulsed with great vigor several German attacks. A German flag was taken.

"The Belgian field army attached to Namur and a French regiment which supported it have joined our lines.

"In the north the British have attacked forces greatly superior in numbers and were obliged, after brilliant resistance, to withdraw a little in the rear on their right.

"Our armies maintained their positions in Belgium. The army of Antwerp by its offensive has drawn off and held before it several German divisions."

An official statement issued said:

"The events of yesterday in the region of the north have neither imperiled nor modified the arrangements made in view of the future development of operations in the region between the Vosges and Nancy. Our troops continue to progress."

Fall of Lille Denied.

London, Aug. 28. That Lille has not been taken, but that there has been serious fighting in the vicinity of that French border city, was the statement made at the French embassy. The fighting, which was in the nature of advance guard skirmishing, was said to have resulted in the retirement of the Germans.

The embassy was without any information regarding the reports that the city would not be defended if a serious German movement were directed against it.

Roubaix and Valenciennes in France, near the Belgian border, have been taken by the Germans, according to report. It is now declared that all the forts at Namur have fallen.

Reports that the forts of Longwy and Montmedy have been captured by the Germans are again current.

Their capture, however, is declared by the military experts to be comparatively unimportant, inasmuch as they already had been isolated by the German enveloping movement.

According to the official communication of the Paris war office, the allied lines in the north have been oblized to withdraw to a new defense line. In the south the allies have been forced back slightly in the region of St. Die.

According to the French embassy here, the British-French line in the north is holding a strong position along the line from Cambrai to Le Cateau.

The New Defense Line.

This line is twenty-five miles within the French frontier and behind the Valenciennes-Maubeuge line, to which the allies were driven in the first series of battles.

The Daily Express correspondent at Ostend telegraphed the report that the city of Lille had been occupied by the Germans. According to the report the French evacuated the city without attempting to defend it.

Lille is the largest city in the northwest of France. The correspondent stated that word of the evacuation of the city was brought to Ostend by a Belgian officer, who said that the French decided on Tuesday that no effort would be made to defend the city. Accordingly, the Belgian officer said, the city was transformed into an undefended position and all the available treasure removed. The Belgian officer said that apparently there never was any strong force of allies to bar the German advance on Lille.

Belgians Successful at Malines.

The Belgian war office at Antwerp announced officially that the Belgian operations against the Germans at Malines had been successful. According to the statement, the object of the Belgian attack was to draw the Germans to the Malines-Brussels line and so relieve the pressure on the allies.

This, the war office says, was accomplished. Belgian officers say that the Belgian army is prepared to take an important part in the future fighting and will be a serious menace to the German lines of communication. The more the Germans advance, say the Belgians, the more perilous becomes their situation. The Belgian offensive movement based on Antwerp is reported to have gone beyond Malines to Volvorde.

The British and French war offices are giving out but little information concerning the serious fighting of the past few days, and no estimate is made as to the casualties on either side. It is certain, however, that they were heavy. In the short official statements issued, the position of the allies is said to be still favorable, and confidence is expressed in their ability effectually to check the German advance.

Apparently, however, the news from the center of the allied position along the frontier is the only promising information concerning the fighting. The new series of battles which have been fought along the "secondary defense" lines of the allies from about Lille on the north to Belfort on the south apparently began early on Tuesday.

JAPAN WILL STAY IN EAST.

England's Ally Won't Send Armed Forces to Europe.

Washington, Aug 28. Japan does not intend to send its army or navy to aid England in the present war, Ambassador Chinda of Japan declared in a formal statement. He denied emphatically that Japan's answer to Austria's declaration of war will be to send Japanese battalions to attack Austria.

REV. H. E. DAVIS TO SPEAK AT SEVENTH-DAY CHURCH

Rev. H. Eugene Davis will speak at the regular Sabbath morning services of the Seventh-day Baptist church. Mr. Davis was stationed several years as a missionary at Lieu-oo, China. Failing health made a return to America necessary. He is now pastor of the Walworth Seventh-day Baptist church near Lake Geneva, Wis., and is so far recovered in health that he may return to China in a year or so. George E. Davis of Spicer Manufacturing Company is a brother. Mrs. Davis is a daughter of Richard Ross, of Bound Brook, and a niece of J. Denison Spicer, of West Fifth street. They are being entertained with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Irving A. Hunting, of Spooner avenue. They are to return to Wisconsin the first of next week.

"VAUDEVILLE" AT PROCTOR'S.

Vaudeville will again hold sway at Proctor's Theatre, West Front street, this winter, the season opening Labor Day, September 7. DR. DAVIS HAD THRILLING TRIP

Former Organist of Crescent Avenue Church Gives Vivid Description.

DEPLORABLE CONDITION

Americans In Distress Met By American Preacher—Was In Berlin When All Foreigners Were Ordered to Leave Within 24 Hours.

Word has been received from Dr. E. Mettler Davis, formerly organist in the Crescent Avenue church in this city, who was touring Europe. His letter gives a vivid description of the conditions of Americans in Germany.

Dr. Davis left Berlin on August 1, as soon as he was aware of the preparations for war, and passed through Flushing, Holland, Queensboro, London and Liverpool, England. From Liverpool, Dr. Davis took the Allan liner Tunisian, after much hardship in obtaining passage, and arrived in Montreal yesterday afternoon.

It was in Germany only that Dr. Davis learned the first news of the danger threatening American citizens and he resolved immediately to get out as quickly as possible. The story of his attempts to secure passage to England, of his living on one meal a day and of his passage across the ocean in the steerage of the small, uncomfortable, displeasing Tunisian is interesting to the last.

"I had intended going to Berlin from Holland on my trip through Europe," said Mr. Davis, "and when I crossed the border to Germany I met the first signs of real excitement. Usually the government officials merely glance over the tops of your baggage. This time they went through every little package. They asked me where I got my camera and what I was going to do with it. They searched to the last detail.

"When I got to Bremen the streets were jammed with mobs. Soldiers were everywhere showing signs of mobolizing. There were near riots among the people. At midnight on July 30 the streets were almost impassable. The war spirit was all the more impressed upon me by the fact that I was the guest of William Schecker, a playwright, who, as a lieutenant, was called upon to be ready for service in the army. As the evening advanced the streets were crowded with people singing "Die Wacht am Rheim" and other airs."

The next morning I left for Berlin. There was no excitement in the morning but it was stirred up in the afternoon by the appearance of several notices on the government billboard. One was to the effect that all foreigners leave Berlin within twenty-four hours.

Another was that anyone found carrying a weapon of any kind would be punished with instant death. If, however a satisfactory excuse could be given for carrying the weapon, the sentence would be changed to twenty years' imprisonment. This was, I suppose, to keep the Socialists from making any demonstration against the war.

"Concerning the report of the Socialists, Liebknecht and others, had been killed in Germany, I heard of this yesterday in Canada. In fact, let me say that my friend, who was a Socialist, is now serving in the German army. He is serving through his own inclinations. He explained to me that it was a question of saving his fatherland.

"I had booked passage on the Imperator for August 28. When I heard of the postponement of the sailing of that steamship I went at once to the offices of the Hamburg-American line and had my ticket cancelled. Then I went to my hotel took two sandwiches and the little baggage I had left, for I had lost most of it on my way from Holland to Germany, and went to the railroad station in the Friedrichstrasse to catch a train for Flushing. At the station there were no sleepers to be had. There was a large mob trying to get their money changed but the officers would take no foreign money. Luckily, I had about $20 in German gold. After I had bought a ticket to London I had 14 shillings, about $3.50 left.

"The cars were jammed to overflowing with people, some sitting on their baggage with the rest standing up. We had to stop at every bridge we passed, each being heavily guarded. On passing over one trestle under which dynamite was placed, all the windows were shut and the shades drawn down ,so that no passenger might throw out and cigar butts or lights of any kind.

"When we crossed from Germany to Holland, the train was delayed for some time while the conductors asked for passports. Many had none and had to give satisfactory evidence that they were Americans. On that whole ride of sixteen hours, I had but the two sandwiches I had taken with me from Berlin. It was lucky for me, for no one had anything to eat the whole way."

On the packet from Flushing to Queensboro and London, Dr. Davis said, they passed the English squadron, but were not stopped. They went directly from Queensboro to London where Dr. Davis stayed two days. While there it was difficult for him to cash his Cook's checks and all he had in currency was the fourteen shillings. He therefore had to ask policemen where he could find a cheap hotel. He was directed to a neat little place where he spent 3 shillings 6 pence (about ninety cents) for a room.

"We had to live on one meal a day while in London. One day, two young women bought a pound of nuts together and ate them for the days meal. We were finally able to have our checks cashed at Cook's central office in London, but we got paper money and many houses would not accept paper money because it was necessary for them to give coins in change.

"The crowd was so thick at Cook's the people were waiting for tickets to sail, that they almost broke down the doors. At the Cunard line office the waiting lines were ten and twelve deep. I was able to obtain steerage passage on the Tunisian, which was to sail on the sixth.

When Dr. Davis got to Liverpool, with great effort, he was fortunate in changing his ticket for a second cabin on the same ship. The crowds at the steamboat dock were tremendous. They almost broke in the doors in the early morning while waiting for the offices to open. Checks were cashed at 25 per cent and 50 percent, and the people were glad to get their money even at these losing rats.

After the date of the sailing of the Tunisian had been changed to Wednesday or Thursday, causing a large amount of unrest among the Americans who had booked passage across the manager of the company came with the good news that the postponement had been revoked and the ship would sail that Wednesday night.

"We met no battleships on our way across, but several rumors were circulated about the ship which caused great worriment among the more sensitive of the passengers. At 9 o'clock all lights were extinguished and candles were lighted in the cabins. The portholes and all crevices were covered, so that no light could betray the presence of the ship to an enemy's cruiser in the ocean.

"On the second day out something happened to the engines of the ship and the ship stopped. A rumor was quickly circulated that a German cruiser had stopped us, and one or two women actually fainted when they heard this. We encountered no battleships however, and arrived at Montreal safely, only one day late, because of the fog which we ran into on oupr way. All I can say about this trip is, it was a great disappointment to me.

LOCAL MAN FILES SUIT FOR $50,000

F. L. C. Martin This Morning Presented Petition In U. S. District Court.

Damages of $50,000 are asked in a petition filed in the United States District Court against VanHorn & Sawtell, druggists, of 15 East Fortieth street, New York, by Frank L. C. Martin, of this city. Mr. Martin asserts his health was permanently injured by the application of a carelessly prepared local anaesthetic.

The complaint charges that instead of following the prescription of the plaintiff's physician, Dr. Francis E. DuBois, of this city, the druggists substituted alcohol for a normal salt solution in the anaesthetic, which was used for a minor operation for kidney trouble. As a result he says he was so severely burned that he was forced to expend $12,000 in doctor's and nurse's fees and has been unable to look after his business.

WILL BRING GRAND OPERA TO PLAINFIELD, SEPT. 29

Manager Counihan in his desire to satisfy the discriminating taste of the music lovers of Plainfield has succeeded in booking the San Carlo Grand Opera Company for one performance on Tuesday evening, September 29.

It will mark the first appearance in this city of a distinguished assemblage of grand opera stars heretofore but little known to the opera lovers of Plainfield, however well established they may be in the far off countries of Europe, South America, Mexico and Cuba, where the name of San Carle towers as high as a company of operatic celebrities as that of the Metropolitan of New York.

The foreign musical critics extoll the organization as an admirable one. Mme. Edvige Vaccari is said to be a "second Tetrazzini" and Mme. Emilia Vergeri a "Mary Garden." The company is a large one, including a large orchestra and highly efficient chorus, all under the direction of Chevalier Giovanni Leotti, the Spanish Toscanini. For the performance here "Lucia di Lammermoor" has been selected.

FIRST WARD MEETING.

The First Ward Republican Club will meet next Monday evening at the offices of V. W. Nash, Jr., at which time candidates for city and county executive committees will be picked. Other matters of importance will be discussed.

SUPPOSE THE WAR SHOULD STOP THE SARDINE SUPPLY!

Those who have had the good fortune of partaking of Barcelona sardines are loud in their praise of that delectable dish. "But where is Barcelona?" somebody asked. When told that it is a city of Europe with more than a half million inhabitants it was asked "How will the war affect it?"

The man who always offers an optimistic suggestion says that if the war should prevent us from getting Barcelona sardines on this side we will then consume large quantities of Columbia River salmon.

Those who are not familiar with the countries of Europe should get one of the Daily Press official War Maps, containing a wealth of useful information relating to the great war of the nations. These maps are presented on the popular coupon plan, and daily newspapers throughout the entire country are distributing them for the benefit of their readers.

Turn to the war map coupon printed elsewhere in these columns and clip it at once.

JONES SHOWS WILL CLOSE WITH TOMORROW'S EXHIBITION

But the Tango Palace is not the whole show by any means. For those liking athletic sports there is Rogers' athletic show; then there is the Flea circus; Joyland for those who want to laugh; Kinsel's $20,000 merry-go-round has all the latest improvements that keep this old amusement feature ever new; the biggest portable Ferris wheel in existence; there is the Trip to Mars; Alma & Zaad are there to show you a study in contrasts; Prof. George will demonstrate the meaning of the term "Giant Midget;" Minnie is a pet you might not like, but you will admit she is some pet and makes some show. Then there is the animal show for old and young alike, a great educational feature. The pit show includes the world's greatest wonders and provides an exhibition that you cannot afford to pass by; Babcock's motordrome exploits motorcycle races between daredevil riders. For the lovers of minstrels there is the Johnny J. Jones Minstrel Show, the equal of any on the road today.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Even more auspiciously than either of its former seasons did Bud Fisher's happy thought character conception "Mutt & Jeff" open its fourth season as a musical comedy offering under Gus Hill's direction. With an entire new production from scenery to music, "Mutt and Jeff" have set out to conquer new worlds. "In Mexico" is the title of the new vehicle selected to lead our hero's to fame and fortune in the land of tropical beauty. From its premier presentation, they have played to absolute capacity business, during the three seasons it has been before the public. The success of "Mutt and Jeff" is not alone unprecedented, but almost unbelievable. It is not a whit of an exaggeration to proclaim Gus Hill's cartoon play the most remarkable play in theatrical history. The play has yielded its owner an actual profit of a million dollars in three seasons of thirty weeks each. Dividing this equally among the five separate and distinct companies which have toured the United States and Canada, their profits have averaged more than sixteen hundred dollars per week each. The artistic success of "Mutt and Jeff" as an offering and the extent in which it has pleased its patrons must be gaged according to these figures; as such extraordinary financial return could not have been possible without correspondingly extraordinary merit to the attraction. As no musical comedy since the inception of entertainment of that character has ever before equalled this record, we dare proclaim "Mutt and Jeff" the greatest ever.

"Hanky Panky, the big Lew Fields extravaganza which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre Tuesday, has been described as a musical comedy sequel to the stage conceptions of "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford." This genial grafter is discovered in his London villa, surrounded by wealth and money-stricken English girls. Some Germans try to sell him a mummy, when out of the mysterious casesteps Cleopatra. Instead of being sold she dismisses the traders and proceeds to fall in love with Wallingford, whom she mistakes for her long lost lover, Marc Anthony. Clorinda Scribblem, Wallingford's secretary, is jealous and only succeeds in entangling things. Blackie Daw turns up and threatens Wallingford and the fun is fast and furious. One of the funniest scenes is a poker game in which Cleopatra is initiated into the mysteries of the national sport and in which she turns the tables on the Germans who tried to sell her as a mummy. The fun is fast and furious during the entire three acts and musical numbers are interspersed throughout. All of the old favorites of "Hanky Panky," will be heard while many new numbers have been added. Among these is the famous "Serpentine Tango," from the Winter Garden, New York, and all of the newest dances from the Jardin De Danse in New York, by a troupe of dancers direct from that famous place. The original company will be seen intact as first presented at the Broadway Theatre, New York.

Farther reaching in its direct sociological and economic influence today than was Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," during the Civil war, is the play which comes to the Plainfield Theatre next Thursday. Bayard Veiller's "Within the Law" tackles a modern "slave problem" with superior vigor to that of Mrs. Stowe's famous war-time story and with a "punch" that has made itself felt throughout the entire country and abroad. "Within the Law" is made up of episodes taken from actual life in New York today. The minimum wage problem, the police department, and the new and dangerous Maxim silencer are exploited in Mr. Veiller's play, which was the inspiration for the influx of "crook" dramas which have followed in its successful wake. "Within the Law" will be given here with a splendid company in the leading roles.

POTASH SALTS CUT OFF.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—Outside of Germany there is no known commercial supply of potash salts. If the German supplies are cut off during the European war, the agricultural world must either go without potash salts after the meager supply now on hand is exhausted or bestir itself to find another adequate source of supply. Already many inquiries regarding potash have been addressed to the United States Geological Survey, and the fertilizer journals report that small quantities of spot material are changing hands at sharp premiums. The situation is undoubtedly more acute than it was a few years ago, when national interest was first awakened to the fact that the United States is entirely dependent on Germany for this important class of fertilizer materials.

Tires at Before-War Prices

Goodyear Prices

It is Folly Today to Pay More

30 x 3 Plain Tread	$11.70
30 x 3½ Plain Tread	$15.75

There exists now a new, compelling reason for buying Goodyear tires. It results from War conditions.

These leading tires—built of extra-fine rubber, in the same way as always—are selling today at June prices.

You will find today a very wide difference between most tire prices and Goodyear's.

DUE TO QUICK ACTION

Early in August—when war began—the world's rubber markets seemed closed to us. Rubber prices doubled almost over night.

Men could see no way to pay for rubber abroad, and no way to bring it in. We, like others—in that panic—were forced to higher prices. But we have since gone back to prices we charged before the war, and this is how we did it:

We had men in London and Singapore when the war broke out. The larger part of the world's rubber supply comes through there. We cabled them to buy up the pick of the rubber. They bought—before the advance—1,500,000 pounds of the finest rubber there.

Nearly all this is now on the way to us. And it means practically all of the extra-grade rubber obtainable abroad.

Today we have our own men in Colombo, Singapore and Para. Those are the world's chief sources of rubber. So we are pretty well assured of a constant supply, and our pick of the best that's produced.

We were first on the ground. We were quickest in action. As a result, we shall soon have in storage an almost record supply of this extra grade of rubber.

And we paid about June prices.

NOW INFERIOR GRADES COST DOUBLE

About the only crude rubber available now for many makers is inferior. In ordinary times, the best tire makers refuse it. Much of it had been rejected. But that "off rubber" now sells for much more than we paid for the best.

The results are these:

Tire prices in general are far in advance of Goodyear's. And many tire makers, short of supplies, will be forced to use second-grade rubber.

BE CAREFUL NOW

In Goodyear's we pledge you the same grade tire as always. And that grade won for Goodyears the top place in Tiredom—the largest sale in the world.

And, for the time being, our prices are the same as before the war. We shall try to keep them there.

We accept no excessive orders, but dealers will be kept supplied. And we charge them, until further notice, only ante-bellum prices.

That means that Goodyears—the best tires built—are selling way below other tires.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Camera In the Woods.

THE use of the camera in the woods is one interesting phase of art. I have used the camera in many ways to get negatives of animals in their native haunts. In a preceding chapter I have spoken of the jacklight method, but I have not mentioned how at various times during my career in the woods I have made animals take pictures of themselves.

IMPLEMENTS MADE IN THE WOODS BY THE AUTHOR AND USED BY HIM DURING HIS EXPERIMENT.

In these instances I set my camera on a trail and laid a string attached to the shutter across the trail. The camera had been focused on the spot where the oncoming deer or other animal would walk against the string. The creature wandering along presses the string, releasing the shutter, and you have your negative. It doesn't matter what kind of an animal comes along. If it happens to be a man you will have his picture just the same.

In order to get negatives of the smaller animals a different method is used. Bait is employed. The camera is set at night, and a string is extended from the machine to a tree. The string dangles bait just above the ground, so that when the coon or other small animal comes to get it it has to rise up and pull hard. This pull releases a flashlight, and the negative is made.

This same simple method is used in making animals shoot themselves with a gun. The string is attached to the hair trigger, and when the fox or other animal moves the string the gun is discharged.

I remember one winter when I was at King and Bartlett camps that I set one of these guns out on King and Bartlett lake. The men in the camp laughed at me and said I might be able to trap foxes in all kinds of ways, but that it was impossible to make a fox shoot himself. Even while we were talking the sound of a gun came to us from the direction of the lake. Investigation proved that I had been correct, because the dead fox on the ice and the discharged gun told their own story.

A first class taxidermist is in truth an artist. I have done much of this work, having mounted heads and full bodies of animals, together with hundreds of fish.

Here again is another thing a man can do in the woods without aid or material from the outside world. Assuming that I was naked and without tools, as I was during my two months in the wilderness and desired to do some of this work, I would first catch a fish in the manner I have previously described. Using the same process that I did with the bear and the deer, I would remove the skin with sharp rocks. Next I would find a large splinter from a broken down tree, wide enough for a panel background. In order to catch all the high lights and make the fish appear natural I would shape the splintered wood to an oval by placing it under water and grinding it down with a rock. A man can take any piece of wood and under water grind it to any shape he wants. When this oval background was ready I would stick the skin on with the natural glue of the fish. In spite of the fact that I had used no instruments from the outside world the observer could not tell the difference between the mounted specimen and a trout fresh from the water at a distance of ten feet.

In emphasizing my point about the artist who lacks the practical, rough side of forest life not being able to give the true touch to his pictures I want to tell a short story about the best natured man I ever met. Unlike the gentlemen of art who come into the woods to observe under the most luxurious conditions, he was satisfied with anything that happened to be on hand. While he had plenty of money and paid me well for guiding him, he never complained. If he had but little to eat he would say the food was good. If it rained he never complained.

One day after one of the hardest tramps I had ever taken we arrived at one of my camps which I had not seen for over a year. It was long after dark, and we had no time to gather fir boughs for a bed. Inside the camp were two bunks, one above the other. No boughs were in them, nothing but the rough hard boards.

"Well, Frank," I said, "which bunk do you want?"

"Any one," he answered in his customary manner.

"You better take the lower one," I said, "because if you happen to fall out you won't have so far to fall."

"All right," he said, and we turned in, he taking the lower berth and I climbing up to the one above. The beds were as hard as rocks.

Some time later I was awakened by a noise. I looked out over my bunk and saw Frank sitting on the side of the one below with his head in his hands.

"What's the matter? Can't you sleep?" I asked him.

Without moving he replied: "Oh, yes; I have been asleep, but I just thought I would sit up awhile and rest. After I get rested I will go back to bed."

If that man had possessed the artistic sense he could have painted a true picture of outdoor life. He took everything in the woods as it was and in this way learned to feel the spirit of nature.

Sleeping on planks, skinning one's own game, getting one's own meals in the forest, are all just as much a part of the training of an artist painting out of door life as are books and teachers. Without this rough experience the fireside artist has a tendency to paint his pictures somewhat on the order of this story:

One night in camp some years ago Andrew Douglas and I were discussing good shots and lucky days at hunting. I said to Andrew:

"Andrew, what is the luckiest hunting stunt you ever pulled off?"

"Well," he began, without a smile on his face, "it was back in the old days of the muzzle loading gun. One day I started out hunting ducks. I went down the bank of a stream and after awhile scared up a flock, which rose from the water and lit on the limb of a tree. I tried to get into position to make a clean sweep of them all, but I couldn't seem to do it. So I went under the tree and, taking aim, fired at the center of the limb on which the ducks sat.

"Of course as the bullet sped through it split the limb, but before the ducks could fly away the split came together again, catching every one of them by the toes. While they were fluttering and trying to get away I loaded up again and took aim at the butt of the limb close to the tree. This shot cut the limb off, and as it fell it dropped into the stream.

"I rushed into the water after it and finally caught it, with every duck still attached. I sogged out of the water with about a score of fish in the seat of my pants, which had swum up the legs of my trousers.

"I remember just as I made an extra high step to get a firm footing one of my suspender buttons snapped off, buzzing away from me like a bullet. A rabbit coming down to the stream to drink got the button right in the eye, and it killed him.

"That was my luckiest day in the way of hunting."

* * * * * * *

Just why did I go to Canada instead of emerging from the forest on American soil? This question has interested hundreds since my return to civilization, but until now I have never gone into details of the whole story.

It is not my desire to attack any one or to show bitterness, and in telling the plain facts about this trip I shall simply reveal true conditions as they were.

I want to go back a little into the history of the affair to the time just before I entered the woods. At that time, while I was in Boston, I applied through friends to the fish and game commission of the state of Maine for a permit to catch or kill what game I might need in carrying out my experiment. These friends explained that I would pay all fines for the killing of such animals when I came from the forest.

For a time the commissioners ignored the application, and when they did reply it was to state that it would be impossible to grant my request.

In the meantime I had discovered that section 17 of the Maine fish and game laws made it possible for such a permit to be granted—namely, that the commissioners had a right to allow game and fish to be obtained for scientific purposes at any time.

On the strength of this I applied again to the commissioners about ten days later, laying stress on that section of the law and also mentioning the fact that noted men were indorsing the experiment. Not until Aug. 4, the day I entered the forest, was a decision reached. I did not see the letter announcing it until I arrived at Megantic after my experiment was over.

"Your request for permission to kill animals and birds in Maine in close season," reads this letter, "was considered by this commission at a meeting today.

"While we appreciate the inconvenience that you may be put to, nevertheless in view of the fact that your experiences will undoubtedly be published if the desired permit was granted it would certainly put our board in the position of indorsing violations of our inland fish and game laws, which we cannot see our way clear to do."

No name was signed to that letter, only the word "Chairman" appearing where the name of the writer customarily appears.

However, with the knowledge that I had been refused once, as explained in a previous column, I went into the woods and tried to live within the game laws. This made my task doubly hard. Everybody but the commissioners of my own state was with me. The manner in which they had acted before I entered the forest naturally made me feel that they would not hesitate to disturb me after I had broken the law. I couldn't be disturbed, as that would have spoiled everything.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Adv.

SOME TIMELY PRESERVES.

MOST fruits make splendid preserves. Preserves are usually prepared with equal weights of sugar and fruit.

The fruit should be ripe, fresh and sound.

Apricot Preserves.—Take ripe apricots, peel and take out the seeds. Weigh the fruit and use an equal quantity of sugar; pack, using a layer of fruit and a layer of sugar until all the fruit is used. Let stand twenty-four hours, place in the fire in a porcelain or granite kettle and boil for a few minutes; then pour over the fruit and cover while hot.

Use Sterilized Jars.

Plum Preserves.—Take equal parts of plums and sugar. Wash the fruit, cut a small piece off the blossom end and place them in a large bowl. Make a sirup of the sugar and water and pour over the plums. Next morning pour off the juice, boil again and pour over the fruit. Do this several times, the last time putting the plums in the sirup, and after simmering twenty minutes seal in sterilized jars.

Flavored With Berries.

Pineapple Preserves.—First take raspberries, pick, wash and put them into a kettle, bring to the boiling point; add an equal quantity of heated sugar and cook slowly until clear and thick, being careful to keep the berries as whole as possible. Peel pineapple, then shred it. This is done by pulling it from core with silver fork. Put into saucepan, heat, add an equal quantity of sugar and cook until clear. Now combine the berries and pineapple and cook together for about five minutes longer. Put into glasses or jars and seal.

Use For Wild Berries.

Barberry Preserves.—Take raisins, remove the stones, cover the barberries with water and boil. Strain through cheesecloth, allowing the pulp as well as juice to pass through, leaving skin and seeds in the cloth. Add sugar and raisins and cook until it boils hard. Pour into glass jars and seal tightly.

Anna Thompson.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—What Is the Biggest Nuisance On Earth?

He Dearly Loved to Chase the Cook.

"SAY, daddy, what's the biggest nuisance on earth, next to children?" asked Evelyn.

Daddy laughed as he replied, "Why, my dear, what put that into your little head?"

"I heard Mrs. Brown say yesterday that if there was any greater nuisance than children, when they got to acting and behaving as hers did sometimes, she'd like to know what it was."

"Well," answered daddy, "perhaps I could tell her. Children are like the little girl with the curl, I guess. 'When they are good they are very good indeed, but when they are bad they are horrid.' But I know a greater nuisance.

"It's a monkey around the house. It used to be the fashion for some families to keep them as pets, but most of the people grew sick of their bargain and would either sell the monkey or give him away, for the little beast would usually make life miserable for his owners.

"There was one once that was brought home by a man as a present to his children. His name was Danny. That family will always remember Danny.

"He was very little and peaceable and cunning when he was first brought home, just a baby, and every one petted him very much.

"He was a terror. I guess he was one of the worst acting monkeys that ever lived from all accounts. He was into all kinds of mischief all day long, and he would leave his bed in the night to do more. He was a regular little imp.

"The people would find the curtains—the nice lace curtains—all tied up in knots, and when they went for a brush to brush their hair they would find it gone, and they would then know that Danny had hidden it somewhere. He was always hiding things, and some he would lose so they would never find them again, and when they would chase him to punish him he would run on top of the sideboard or any other place that was convenient and perhaps smash some valuable article and chatter at them like a little imp.

"He dearly loved to chase the cook, who was awfully afraid of him, and she would run and jump up on a table and screech like an owl, while Danny would look up and act just as if he were laughing at her.

"By and by they used to fasten him with a chain, but somehow or other he got free from it one night and hopped on a table and broke some valuable cut glass, and they thought from the noise there were burglars in the house and were very much frightened. That was the last straw, so they gave Danny away. He is probably somewhere now making all the trouble he can for some one."

MANY FIGHTS END WITHOUT A WINNER BEING DETERMINED IN THESE DAYS

Undecided contests of any kind are always very unsatisfactory in every line of sport. In fact, indecisive results in any event, even war, do not settle arguments, or the question of supremacy.

In every contest there must be a decision or it's no contest whatsoever to my mind.

The world at large demands decisive battles, decided results, whether it's a clash of boxing gloves or a clash of firearms. The Carpentier-Gunboat mill would have been far more interesting indeed to the millions who follow the pugilistic game if either man had won by a K. O. or by a decided lead at the end of the scheduled twenty rounds.

Winning on fouls or slight shades is absolutely disappointing to the masses of fight fans. They want decisive results.

The photographs leave no doubt in my mind but that Gunboat committed a foul which gave Eugene Corri, the referee, just cause to decide against him, but the result is very unsatisfactory to us all. The men must fight the battle all over again in order to prove who is the real master of the white hope class. But there's been enough of discussion over this affair already to renew the debate at present.

Seldom in the history of the ring have three championship battles been fought so near together as the Carpentier-Gunboat Smith, the Johnson-Moran, and the Ritchie-Welsh mills, without any real clean, decisive decisions. It's true I picked the three winners, but I must confess that the results rather disappointed me.

In the first fight Johnson showed he's no longer a great champion and only won over a second-rater by a few rather dark shades. His victory was not very decisive, or one to be very proud of for a world-beater.

Freddy Welsh just proved himself to be a clever artist with no kick for a real champion. He won, however, just as I predicted, but to a finish with Ritchie, Charley White, or even Young Shugrue, he might not fare so well. But that's another argument. I have already expressed by opinion about the result of the Gunboat-Carpenter affair. The point I wish to make is that these three mills didn't finish decisively and consequently fell rather flat on the followers of the game, your Uncle Dudley included. We were disappointed.

NO SUCH THING AS AN ATHLETE'S HEART, SAYS NOTED GERMAN MEDICAL AUTHORITY

Professor Albert Albu, German's greatest authority on nutrition and on the hygiene of sport, has published a pamphlet which upsets many current notions as to the physiological effects of games, training and over-evertion. He laughs at most accepted ideas and sets up a new sport theory of his own, the main point of which is that a man is either fit, or not fit, for sport, and that in the first case it is immaterial what sport he chooses.

All sports which required strained bodily exertion affect the body, says Professor Albu, in the same way. The supposed physiological differences between the quick, brief and violent games and slow games with sustained bodily strain does not exist. The effect upon the heart and kidneys is identical; and it is a mistake to think that the heart is affected by the first and not by the second. The organ which is affected is the brain. Violent sports, which involves overheating, have dangers for the brain, but for the heart they have no more dangers than has slow, heavy exertion. The hearts of a long distance walker and of a football player undergo the same strains and risks.

Laymen, says Albu, exaggerate the permanent influence of sport on the heart. There is no such thing as an athlete's heart. By athlete's heart is meant a heart hypertrophied or otherwise typically affected by over-exertion. All exertion affects the heart's functioning in a particular way. Whether a man plays a game violently for five minutes or exerts himself heavily for five hours his heart functions in the same way. As long as the exertion lasts, the heart has to pump into the arteries from three to five times the normal quantity of blood. This means an increase of pressure in the blood vessels until the heart's muscles through over-exertion suffer a kind of paralysis. But frequent repetitions of this over-exertion do not produce any chronic heart abnormality which a doctor can recognize as an athlete's heart. Dr. Albu has proved this by examination. In some cases he found that the heart had decreased in size; in some it had increased, and in others there was no change in its size. Hence, games and athletics, if they affect the heart at all, affect it in different ways, but there can be no question of a particular diagnosable kind of athlete's heart. This conclusion is backed by the South German doctor, Maltzahn, who says he has examined the hearts of seventy football players, hockey players and long-distance walkers and runners and "found nothing that can be traced distinctively to sport exercise."

Albu says that from the hygienic standpoint the choice of games and sports is immaterial. A game affects a man's health not because of its nature, but because of his nature. The vital questions are the player's age, his bodily constitution and power of resistance; finally the question of his training. If a man is all right in these respects he can choose what sport he likes.

Over-exertion, says Albu, does exist as a hygienic fact, though it has no permanent effect on the heart. The best test of it is the time taken after playing an active game for the heart to revert to its normal pulsation. A healthy heart, after strong, but no excessive exertions, ought to return to its normal number of beats within fifteen minutes after the exertion ends. If it takes much longer, then over-exertion may be assumed. Long walks carrying burdens are one of the chief cause of such over-exertion. The German military "baggage marches"—Gepasksmarschen—constantly produce over-exertion. In these marches the men cover from twenty to thirty-five miles, carrying knapsacks, rifles, bayonets and cartridges. Sometimes the knapsacks are filled with sand. Professor Albu's examination of men after such achievements show that over-exertion is general. Of eight men examined not one regained his normal heart-beat within half an hour of the end of the march.

THIRD BATTLE OF SERIES TOMORROW

Fine Game Expected When the Pets and Saurers Meet for Rubber Game.

Plainfield and Saurer will meet for the third time this season on Parker Field tomorrow afternoon. This battle is sure to be a good one as each team has won one contest and, although this is not the deciding game it will mean a lot to the one that wins. It is one of the five game series for the city championship. All baseball lovers will get a chance to see good ball tomorrow and also a pitcher's duel as a side issue.

There will be several changes in the lineups of both teams but Townley and McLoughlin will be there on the mound as usual. Both of these twirlers have had a week's rest and are in fine trim for this contest. Tommy Mullin will be on the receiving end of the Saurer battery and Henry Alberts will occupy the outfield position. Tommy and Warry always work well together and may prove a problem to the Pet batters but Townley has likewise had the "Indian" sign on the Saurer batters in the two former games and with Nelson to assist him, he can stand the onslaught as well as his veteran opponent. Manager Dorflinger has secured the services of one Sharkey, who has played the short field position for Fordham College for four years and is hailed as a good man. He will be between second and third tomorrow to pick them up and Ramsberger, the former St. Mary's player, will handle the difficult corner. The latter player for two innings in the last game two weeks ago.

A slight change has been made in the batting order of the Pets, Townley having been raised to a position where, if he hits as he did the last time, hits will do some good. The teams will line up as follows:

PLAINFIELD	SAURER.
Sharkey, ss	3b, Harriman
Alberts, lf	ss, Jaeger
Dixon, 1b	c, Mullin
Ramsberger, 3b	2b, Martin
Townley, p	P, McLoughlin
Stine, rf	lf, Alberts
Dorman, cf	1b, Garretson
Coyle, 2b	rf, Dixon
Nelson, c	rf, Miller

BRUGGY STARTED SOMETHING.

A rally in the eighth inning started by Frank Bruggy managed to bring the Lawrence team to a victory over the Lowell charges by the score of 6 to 3. Three runs were netted in the eighth stanza. Out of three walks to the platter, Bruggy collected two hits, one being a two-bagger. "Flick" Luyster managed to contribute one average booster out of four trys at the bat.

COPPERS AND DOCTORS GAVE GOOD EXHIBITION OF COMEDY

"Frenchie" LaPorte Booted the Ball All Over the Lot.

"Pop" Mernagh's three-base hit in the first inning was the feature of the cops and doctors baseball game which was played at Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, before one of the largest crowds that has entered the gates of the popular playgrounds. To call the exhibition a baseball game would be a direct insult to the national pastime, but since it was posted around town as such it must be done. This was the second game of the series between these two teams, but just what good the cops will get out of winning them both is incomprehendable.

F. FOGARTY.

Townley and McIntyre Were Doubled Up in the Third.

The doctors were in bad form, having rested for one long month, and their errors and not the coppers' hits, were the cause of their defeat after a hard try to "come back" in the latter part of the game. The game might have gone on until midnight, but as the crowd left at the end of the seventh there was no use of keeping score, so all of the officials, including the two umpires, left the field in "disgust." As was predicted a few days ago the policemen had their regular bunch there to pick from and when the game started they had six cops and three "ringers" on the field. The doctors also had to scrape around for men who cared to take a chance, but finally both lineups were complete, and Umpire Abrams called "Play ball!" They did not play ball then, but that was just a signal to start to get ready. Fritts was on the mound for the cops and "Doc" Stevens opposed him. To tell which one pitched the best article of ball would be a hard feat as there were fifteen errors made and the teams about split even in this department. At the very outset, when McIntyre missed a ball and let the first man get on base, it looked as if the game might be interesting to everybody, but the spectators started to leave as soon as the cops made their debut with the stick.

F. FOGARTY.

Fritts Pulled Himself Out of a Hole in the First Session.

The game started with Clarke, a bush leaguer hailing from the country, at the bat and, thanks to the fielders, he arrived at the initial station in time to be called safe. He decided to try McCarthy's wing and bravely stole second with good results. He went to third on a passed ball and the doctors thought they had the game cinched right there. But there is such a thing as a double play in baseball and, with Fritts and Martin in the leading roles, the cops enacted this scene with great success, clearing the bases. The other out was easy. The cops scored one half dozen runs right off the reel on five errors and two hits. "Wren" Townley and McIntyre each hit to Banks on third and he threw the ball miles over "Doc" Hubbard's head. Clarke, Fritts and Moore were each guilty of misplays, and with several passed balls the game became a farce and the crowd thinned out. Neal made the first hit of the game, but the feature came next. Mernagh met one of Stevens' slow balls with terrific force and flew around to third. He thought he would try for a homer and started. Then he looked back at the ball and thought again, starting to run back to third. It took three men to trap the big fellow, but he was finally caught and retired to the bench with the usual grin. Thus ended the first act.

The medical men were easy prey for the bluecoats in the second, while the cops scored three more in their half. Berger relieved Townley at left field and tripled. McIntyre followed suit, after which McCarthy singled and Nelson doubled. Thinking this was enough to win the game Martin was good-hearted and grounded out to first. At this point a large number of spectators left. The cops scored two in the third which gave them lots of hope and put the fighting spirit in them. Dr. Campuss, playing for Crist, who was injured, came into the limelight in the last half of the third, when after McIntyre had made first, he grabbed Townley's high fly and whipped it over to first in time to double up Mac. It was a big league play and the right fielder was the recipient of much applause and praise.

F. FOGARTY.

Mernagh Was Trapped Between Third and Home.

From this point on the box score was more of a farce than the game and only a Russian soldier could make it out. Players went up out of turn and players who had been canned from the tray in the early innings went back to try and redeem themselves. McIntyre chased the "ump" around the field between innings and the game was stopped while the balls were being found. Umpire Abrams got into several difficult places, but was ably assisted by base umpire Stires, who readily helped him. Corliell went in to pitch for the doctors in the fifth and held his opponents to one hit. Mernagh getting this one for his second. The box score, which is not guaranteed to be correct, follows:

Sunday Afternoon.

BASEBALL.

N. P. Rustlers vs. Plainfield A. A., Woodland Park (preliminary), 2:00.

Highlanders vs. Laurels, Netherwood Field, 3:30.

HYDE OVAL IN USE.

A pair of old rivals will meet on Hyde Oval tomorrow afternoon when the Interhavens and Watchungs meet. These teams always play a good game when they clash and with the borough field to play on instead of the one in Watchung, the game will undoubtedly be much faster. Conover and Taylor will work for the Interhavens while "Bill" Demler will pitch for the mountaineers. The latter will be without the services of McClelland who has left town. He played first base and was a goot hitter.

NO MORE GAMES.

Manager Bader, of the cops' baseball team, has now come to the end of his long schedule and although the cops want games to play he cannot arrange any more. Bayonne cancelled and that third Newark game seems to have been called off. The only thing for the cops to do is to get out on Parker Field and play with themselves.

PLAY SECOND GAME.

The Highlanders of Netherwood will lineup against the Laurel A. C., on Sunday at 3:30 on the Netherwood field. The Highlanders will maintain their regular lineup with Denny and Kyle as the battery.

WILL PLAY RAHWAY.

The Park Avenue Baptist baseball team will go to Rahway by auto tomorrow afternoon and play the strong Reformatory team of that place. They will leave at 2:15.

—You find the "short road" to employment when you tell what you can do—interestingly, frankly—in a want ad.

N. P. H. S. WILL HAVE ONE GOOD TWIRLER NEXT SEASON

Latest reports from the North Plainfield High School athletic camp have it that Ernest Stahl, a member of the pitching staff, is to return to school and has "signed a two year contract with the baseball management." If true it will be welcomed by all those interested in borough athletics as the team will need his services on the firing line next year to cop another trophy.

It was first announced that Stahl would further his education in a local business school but he has evidently changed his mind.

READY TO WELCOME VETERANS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 28.—Detroit is engaged in putting the finishing touches to the elaborate preparations for the reception and entertainment of the thousands of visitors expected here during the coming week for the annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and the meetings of the numerous affiliated bodies. Already the city is blossoming out in patriotic attire and it is expected that the last of the decorations will be in place by tomorrow night. Some of the national officers and other members of the G. A. R. have arrived in town, but the main army of visitors is expected to put in an appearance before Sunday.

Manager Counihan in his desire to satisfy the discriminating taste of the music lovers of Plainfield has succeeded in booking the San Carle Grand Opera Company for one performance on Tuesday evening, September 29.

It will mark the first appearance in this city of a distinguished assemblage of grand opera stars heretofore but little known to the opera lovers of Plainfield, however well established they may be in the far off countries of Europe, South America, Mexico and Cuba, where the name of San Carle towers as high as a company of operatic celebrities as that of the Metropolitan of New York.

The foreign musical critics extoll the organization as an admirable one. Mme. Edvige Vaccari is said to be a "second Tetrazzini" and Mme. Emilia Vergeri a "Mary Garden." The company is a large one, including a large orchestra and highly efficient chorus, all under the direction of Chevalier Giovanni Legtti, the Spanish Toscanini. For the performance here "Lucia di Lammermoor" has been selected.

ARCHBISHOP SETON IS 75.

Newark, Aug. 28—Archbishop Robert Seton, who has long enjoyed the reputation of being the most learned prelate of the Roman Catholic church in America, received a flood of congratulations today on the occasion of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. After a residence of many years in Rome the veneral Archbishop recently returned here to spend the sunset of his life in his native land. Archbishop Seton was born in New York city, August 28, 1839. He studied at leading institutions in America and Europe and after his ordination to the priesthood was connected with churches in Newark and vicinity. He was the founder of the famous Seton Hall College at South Orange and for a number of years lectured there as well as at the Catholic University in Washington. Archbishop Seton is the oldest of all the Monsignori in the United States. He was raised in 1866 to the rank of private chamberlain to Pope Pius IX. He stood high in the favor of Leo XIII., and also enjoyed the intimate friendship of the late Pope Pius X. When Archbishop Seton took his final departure from Rome last spring, Pius X. presented to him an archbishop's gold and jeweled ring as a remembrance of his long residence in the Eternal City.

CHINESE STUDENTS' MEETING.

Amherst, Mass., Aug. 28—The Chinese Students' Alliance in the Eastern States began its annual conference today at Amherst Agricultural College, where it was first organized ten years ago. More than 100 delegates are attending the present conference, which will continue in session until September 4. The Chinese minister at Washington and President Butterfield, of Amherst Agricultural College, are among the scheduled speakers. A leading feature of the conference will be the performance of a Chinese play, written by one of the students.

MISS GOLDMAN LEAVES.

Miss Miriam Goldman, of Elmwood place, a clerk in Rosenbaum's store on Front street, has resigned her position to accompany her father to Pottsville, Pa., where he has recently moved. Miss Goldman has held her present position for about two and one-half years and is held in very high esteem by her employers. PROGRESSIVES ENDORSE PIERCE

Present Republican Senator Is Only Candidate Having Support of Two Parties.

THOSE WHO SEEK OFFICE

Contests In Every Party—Mayor Stewart Unopposed for Democratic Senatorial Nomination—Six Republicans Want to Be Sheriff.

Taking the stand that State Senator Carleton B. Pierce, the candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket, is a man of advanced and progressive ideas and one who will further the principles for which they stand, the Union county Progressives have endorsed his candidacy and filed a petition with his name on it yesterday afternoon.

The statement was given out by Edward A. Leach, secretary of the Progresssive county committee that the Bull Moosers would endorse Mr. Pierce. Mr. Leach said that the committee had given the matter careful thought and that they had concluded that Mr. Pierce would be a fitting candidate for the Progressive nomination. He has long been supported by Progressives in Cranford and has their backing in his present campaign.

In issuing the statement concerning the State Senator, Mr. Leach said:

"We feel that Mr. Pierce is a man of advanced ideas, and one who will faithfully perform his pledges he has made to the people, if elected. Coupled with that, the experience he has gained and the many progressive measures for which he has stood, has determined his selection as our candidate for the office."

The petitions with Mr. Pierce's name on them, as well as the other county candidates were filed with County Clerk Calvert yesterday afternoon. The Progressives feel that the ticket they are presenting to the voters this year is one of the strongest they have had so far. Geographically it is all that could be desired, they declare.

Republican and Democratic hopefuls were at the Courthouse all day yesterday, and gave the rotunda and plaza of the big county building the appearance and atmosphere of a "Politicians Day." Most prominent probably was ex-Representative Charles N. Fowler, although he was one of the few who had no petition to file. From a Democratic standpoint, the visit of Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, was the most interesting event. Mayor Stewart will be unopposed for the State Senate nomination.

Both parties have many primary fights on hand. Besides Senator Pierce, the only Republican unopposed for a nomination is County Register Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield. There are six Republican candidates for the shrievalty nomination; five for the three Assembly nominations, and two for the county clerkship. The Democratic primary contests will be even more far-reaching, for Mayor Stewart for State Senator will be the only unopposed candidate.

The Democrats have two candidates for register of deeds; five for county clerk; four for sheriff, and five for the Assembly, including only one member of the present delegation, Frank V. Dobbins, of Rahway. William A. Leonard, another of the present Assemblymen, is running for county clerk.

The Republican primary ticket will be as follows:

For State Senator—Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford.

For Assemblymen—William N. Runyon of Plainfield; Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield; Arthur E. Warner, of Elizabeth; Charles L. Morgan, of Elizabeth; W. Edmon Clum, of Elizabeth.

For Register—Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield.

For Sheriff—George C. Otto, of Elizabeth; George J. Stewart, of Elizabeth; Joseph H. Neill, of Elizabeth; Samuel P. T. Wilbur, of Plainfield; John H. Cose, of Plainfield; Richard B. Fordham, of Rahway.

For County Clerk—James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth; William H. Wright, of Rahway.

For State Senator—Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield.

For Assemblymen—Frank V. Dobbins, of Rahway; F. Otto Linke, of Plainfield; Charles E. Dooley, of Cranford; William F. Callahan, of Elizabeth; Vincent Seiler, of Elizabeth.

For Register—James P. Kelly, of Elizabeth; James J. Potts, of Elizabeth.

For Sheriff—Frank C. Engelhart, of Rahway; Bradford Jones, of New Providence; Michael P. Devine, of Elizabeth; Hugh J. McLoughlin, of Elizabeth.

For County Clerk—Edward M. Neafsey, of Elizabeth; William A. Leonard, of Elizabeth; John P. Owens, of Plainfield; John L. Crowell,

The auto driver failed to stop and his machine was traced to East Second street by Patrolman Kelley who found it lying at the curb. He agreed to make a settlement with the cab driver.

BOYS ARRESTED ON CHARGE MADE BY CARNIVAL EMPLOYE

C. W. Murphy, one of the employes of the Johnny Jones carnival troupe, appeared in the city court this morning as a complainant against Joseph Wood and Andrew Sanantonio, two small boys, whom he charged with committing a general nuisance at the grounds at an early hour this morning.

The boys claimed that they were home at the time the deed was committed at the carnival grounds and the case was laid over until Monday morning.

SEVERE SENTENCE HANGS OVER HEADS OF ANNOYERS

Arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning to face disorderly conduct charges preferred against them by Harry Seigel, of West Third street, Gertrude Johnson and Charles Hankerson, colored, had sentences of a $10 fine or forty days in the county jail suspended over their heads with the understanding that they stop the practice that has been made of annoying the Seigel family.

The charges allege that the two colored people threw stones into the Seigel yard and trespassed on property in that section. They were arrested by Patrolman Martin Flatley.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Mrs. Alice Potts preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against John Carey in the borough court this morning before Recorder Fred Hand. The action was the result of a neighborly quarrel of yesterday when it is alleged that Carey used language which looks bad in print. The Recorder gave Carey a lecturing from the bench and suspended sentence.

LOSES LIFE WHERE WIFE WAS KILLED

Andrew Haslin Struck By Locomotive at Lincoln, This Morning.

CROSSING A BAD ONE

Approach Blocked By Buildings and Dirt Bank, and Man Was On Tracks With Wagon Before He Saw Train.

While passing over the Mountain avenue crossing of the Central Railroad, at Lincoln station, at 8:30 o'clock this morning, Andrew Haslin, a bottler who lived in Dewey Park, was struck by an eastbound Reading express and instantly killed. This crossing is one of the worst on the local railroad and several people have met death at the place. On the north side of the track, the station and freight-house block the view of the tracks and on the east side there is a steep hill which leads to the wagon bridge which goes over the Lehigh Valley Railroad. When descending the hill in a wagon one would have no chance to stop before crossing the Central tracks if danger were close.

Mr. Haslin, who runs a bottling works in Dewey Park, was on his way to deliver orders to customers in South Lincoln, and when crossing the tracks did not see the train ad-advancing at a fast rate of speed. When he was on the tracks he saw the train for the first time and had no time to get out of the way before the locomotive hit the wagon, killing him instantly. The horse was hurled several hundred feet away and also killed, while only the pieces of the wagon and its contents could be found. All efforts on the part of the engineer to stop the train on such short notice were futile. The remains of the body were picked up by some section hands and taken to the freight station. Walter G. Runyon, a Dunellen undertaker, was called and took charge of the body, which was badly mangled.

Mr. Haslin has been in some trouble lately in his business and M. A. Gallagher, of Dunellen, has been trying to have his license revoked, and also to have Haslin prosecuted for violation of the excise laws.

About one year ago, Haslin's wife, while out riding in an automobile with Oscar Harrison, was killed at this crossing. Mr. Haslin leaves several daughters. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

There were several eyewitnesses to the accident and all were horrified when they saw the train strike the wagon.

REV. F. L. GREENE TO SPEAK AT NETHERWOOD HOME

The services at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, tomorrow afternoon, will be of special interest. The speaker will be Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, and as his talks at the Home in the past have always been most interesting and helpful, he has become a favorite with the little people. This will mark the beginning of the last week of the season at the Home, and on Tuesday and Friday evenings the services will be under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Societies of Warren chapel and Trinity Reformed church. The closing services will be held on Sunday next at which time Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will be the principal speaker, and it is expected that Rev. John R. Henry, of New York, will also be at the service. The soloist will be Miss Ethel Kinnaman, contralto soloist of the First Methodist church, who has just returned from a recital tour through the Far West. The special feature of the services tomorrow will be the special singing of the children's choir. The service will be only of an hour's duration, and the public will spend a helpful, happy hour if in attendance at this service.

NO MEETING TOMORROW.

The Y. M. C. A. open-air meetings that have been conducted at the corner of Front and Church streets for the past two Sundays will be discontinued for the time being.

LONDON HEARS THAT ALLIES HAVE DRIVEN GERMANS BACK FROM FRENCH TERRITORY INTO BELGIUM

Russians Continue Uninterruptedly With March Forward Into Germany--Russians Reported to Now Have 10,000,000 Men in Field--Austrian Forces Ordered to Remain on Defensive--Hold Bankers as Hostages at Brussels--Rumor that Koenigsberg Is in Hands of Russians.

AWAIT AEROPLANES.

Germans Hiding In a Cave Looking For French Air Craft.

London, Aug. 29 (Central News Cable)—According to advices received here the situation is changing and the Belgian army is forcing the Germans back on Brussels. The town of Malines has been recaptured by Belgians who also have reached Vilvorde, which is within ten miles of Brussels.

The French embassy here said here early today, that on yesterday "Our troops took up the offensive in the Vosges in the region between the Vosges Mountains and Nancy, where fighting has been going on for a fort night. The German losses were considerable."

Two hundred wounded British soldiers were brought to Southampton, last night, abroad the first hospital ship from France. The wounded were from the first battle at Mons, Belgium, and nearly all had been injured by shell fire.

A despatch from Folkstone says that Belgian wounded arriving there from Namur report that the town fell at mid-day on Sunday, before new supplies of ammunition had arrived at the forts.

Baron Lambert Rothschild and Ernest Solvay, bankers, have been designated as hostages by the Germans beause of the inability of Burgomaster Max, of Brussels, to pay the $50,000,000 war tax.

A despatch to Reuter from Milan says a report has reached there from Bari, Italy, that British and French warships combined with Montenegrin guns, bombarded the Austrian forts at Sattaro on Thursday night. Two forts were demolished after six hours cannonading. A small Austrian squadron attempted a sortie from its place of retreat at the Island of Cherso, but without success, add London

A despatch from Paris to the Times stated that the British troops had beaten the Germans back to Chinay, Belgium, from French territory on the other side of the line. The English soldiers were in the advance force of the allies second defensive line and, although subjected to a withering fire refused to give way and finally began a forward movement, driving the enemy before them.

A wireless despatch of the defeat of five Russian army corps to the south of Allenstein was received here today. Allenstein is sixty miles south of Koenigsburg.

Some staff officers of the Russian army are in London, having come from St. Petersburg. They report that 10,000,000 Russian soldiers have been enrolled.

Vienna despatches state positively that the Austrian forces operating in the south, that is against Servia and Montenegro, have been ordered to remain on the defensive. The reason for this is the fact that a large number of troops have been transferred to Galicia to oppose the Russians.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times telegraphs that reports are in circulation that Koenigsberg, in East Prussia, has already fallen into the hands of the Russians.

A despatch from Rome says that the Tribuna has received a message from its correspondent at Alviona, Albania, saying that the report that Prince William, of Wied, the Albanian ruler, had fled Albania is confirmed. The Prince made his departure from Durazzo, the Albanian capital.

A despatch to a newspaper here from Copenhagen says that ordinary transportation in Germany has been suspended for the present because the railroads are engaged in carrying troops from the west to the hard-pressed east front.

Paris, Aug. 29 (Central News Cable)—La Liberte says that the fighting which began yesterday north of Hirson has lessened in intensity. Travelers in that locality report that the German forces have been driven back in the direction of Chimay and that the detonation of the guns is now heard only at long intervals. A convey of German prisoners passed through Limoges today. A non-commissioned officer with a group of 40 German prisoners said that they were all that remained of the entire division.

France is hastening forward reinforcements to the troops menaced at Arras by a strong German force moving on the French flank, in order that the defenders may be able to maintain their position. Should the German flanking movement succeed it is conceded practically all of the northwestern portion of France would be at the mercy of Germany.

The German forces are preparing for another great effort to clear the allies from the road to Paris. Fresh German troops are replacing those which have done most of the heavy fighting during the past week. The war office has information that the Germans are planning to attack again at three points.

The practical cessation of fighting along the front is taken to indicate that the Germans are resting and preparing for what they hope will be the final assault on the allies' lines. The war office is confident that these lines will hold and meanwhile is counting on the co-operation of the Belgian forces at Antwerp to materially aid in the next big battle.

Rome, Aug. 29 (Central News Cable)—The German troops and their allies, the Austrian, apparently intend to make a very earnest effort to capture the French fortified frontier town of Belfort, southwest of Mulhausen, in upper Alsace, thus entering France at another point.

The correspondent of the Giornale d' Italia at Basle, Switzerland, telegraphs that three German and two Austrian army corps crossed the Rhine and are moving in the direction of Belfort. He gives the date of the Rhine crossing as August 27, and significantly adds that the Austrians and Germans had many siege guns with them. This would indicate that the invaders mean to reduce Belfort through siege operations.

The Russians in their invasion of Germany from the east are sweeping forward without interruption. The correspondent of the Tribuna telegraphs from St. Petersburg that the Russians have arrived before Koenigsberg, the fortified seaport in East Prussia, and adds that the Czar's troops are crushing back the Germans. The correspondent declares that from now on the Russian operations will not be hampered by the German army.

Very serious conditions exist at Pola, the chief Austrian naval base, according to the Trieste correspondent of the Messagero. There is a lack of provisions and the rations have been reduced. An entrenched camp, the correspondent adds, is being constructed around Pola.

A despatch to the Giornale d Italia from Basel, Switzerland, says that three German army corps, two Austrian army corps and a great quantity of siege artillery have crossed the Rhine.

Shanghai, Aug. 29 (Central News Cable)—The active blockade of Tsing Tau, the port of Kiao Chau, Shantung, China, by the Japanese fleet is now in operation. Free passage has been granted to the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29—The Russian army has driven into the outlying Austrian defenses and is now in position to attack Lemberg, capital of Austrian Galica. The Russians are within twenty miles of the city in heavy force.

Athens, Aug. 29—Reports reaching here today say that the Bulgarian Komitajis have invaded Servia at Strumitsa and have destroyed a part

MICHAEL DECOURCEY DIED THIS MORNING

Old Time Printer Never Recovered Consciousness Following Stroke.

Michael DeCourcey, who was picked up on Front street in an unconscious condition on Wednesday night, as a result of a stroke of apoplexy, died at Muhlenberg Hospital this morning, after having been in a coma for fifty-seven hours following his removal to that institution.

Mr. DeCourcey was fifty-four years of age, and was a native of Plainfield, having been a resident of this city all his life. He was a communicant member of St. Mary's R. C. church. Mr. DeCourcey was a compositor by trade, having worked in the offices of the Daily Press for twenty-five years prior to the advent of the linotype machines.

Aside from his wife, he is survived by one daughter, Miss Catherine DeCourcey, of East Second street. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

KINGSTON RUNAWAY PICKED UP AT CARNIVAL GROUNDS

Walter Mackey, seventeen years old, who gives his address as Kingston, N. Y., was picked up this morning by the local police at the carnival grounds as a runaway. The youth left the parental home in Kingston last week with the carnival and secured a job as ticket seller.

The youth says he could not secure work in Kingston, and gives that as his reason for running away. He gave the address of his father and the parent is expected here tonight to take charge of the youth, who in the meantime is being detained at headquarters. His father is superintendent of a shirtwaist factory in that town.

Herbert Renninger, of Fairview avenue, returned home today after spending a week with friends in Newark.

MARYLAND CAMPAIGN GETTING WARMED UP

Two Weeks From Tuesday Voters of That State Go to the Polls.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 29.—The political campaign in Maryland has livened to a noticeable extent with the near approach of the date for the State primaries. Two weeks from next Tuesday the voters of the several parties will go to the polls to express their preferences for candidates to be voted for at the November election. Candidates for United States senator and representatives in Congress will be chosen by the Republicans and Democrats, while the Progressives will in all probability confine themselves to nominating a candidate for the United States senatorship.

The Democrats have two candidates in the field for the senatorial nomination—Senator John Walter Smith and former Attorney General Isaac Lobe Straus. The political prophets are picking Senator Smith as the winner, and the general impression among the rank and file of the voters seem to be that Straus will be defeated by a decisive majority.

The Republican nomination for the senatorship is expected to go to Col. Edward C. Carrington, who led the Roosevelt forces in Maryland in the last presidential election. By nominating Carrington the Republican leaders expect to hold in line the thousands of voters who supported Roosevelt in 1912, and the latter returned to the Republican party in the amalgamation movement. Whether the Progressives who refuse to become reconciled will put a candidate of their own in the field for the senatorship has not yet been determined.

The majority of the present representatives in Congress seem assured of renomination. Representatives Talbot of the Second District, Coady of the Third, Linthicum of the Fourth and Lewis of the Fifth district will be renominated by the Democrats of their respective districts without opposition. Three candidates are engaged in a spirited contest for the Democratic nomination in the First district. In the Fifth district Representative Frank O. Smith is opposed for re-nomination by Richard A. Johnson, a brother-in-law of Arthur P. Gorman.

of the railway. Doryan has been entered by another band and two villages destroyed.

New York, Aug. 27—Prominent electrical firms estimate that the war in Europe will result in a decided stimulus to their trade with South America. Some concerns figure the increase in such business within a year at fully $30,000,000. One of the principal effects upon the electrical supply business is the elimination of Germany on account of the war. That country has been holding the greater part of the South American trade. American salesmen equipped for business in South America with a catalog in Spanish and Portuguese are being sent out to capture this new field.

A despatch to the Evening Journal from Rome, which is claimed to have been censored, states that Italy is reported to have sent an ultimatum to Austria demanding within 48 hours an explanation of the mobolization of troops on the Italian frontier. The ultimatum is said to expire at midnight Sunday.

Montreal, Aug. 29—The first contingent of the Canadian expeditionary field artillery and the Princess Patricia field light infantry sailed from Montreal this morning on the troop ship Megantic.

London, Aug. 29.—The admiralty announced that the British fleet has sunk two German cruisers and two destroyers off Heligoland.

The announcement says that a third cruiser was set afire and was left burning.

According to the announcement, no British ship was lost in the battle and the British loss of life was not heavy.

The British squadron was commanded by Rear Admiral David Beatty, who married in 1901 Miss Ethel Field, daughter of the late Marshall Field of Chicago.

Rear Admiral Beatty formerly was naval secretary to the first lord of the admiralty.

The people of London are the more joyful over the news of the victory because of an announcement by the admiralty that all the British ships involved returned from the engagement safely.

The admiralty further announced that the British destroyer Welland has sunk the German destroyer S-90 off the Chinese coast.

Immediately after the declaration of war between Great Britain and Germany orders were sent to Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander in chief of the main British fleet, to capture or destroy the enemy's ships. Ever since that time London has awaited expectantly for news of a great battle in the North sea.

The British light cruiser Amphion was sunk with heavy losses on Aug. 7 by a mine off the coast of Holland following the destruction of the German mine layer Koenigin Luise, which is believed to have laid the mine. The following day, Aug. 7, the British admiralty announced that the North sea was safe for shipping and the fishing boats, which had remained in port on the east coast of England since the beginning of the war, started out again.

Nothing was said by the admiralty of the location of either the British or German fleets at the time, but the announcement that the North sea was free for shipping was taken to indicate that the German fleet had taken refuge under the forts of Heligoland and Wilhelmshaven at the eastern end of the sea and that the British fleet stood between them and the sea.

Berlin, Aug. 29 (by wireless via Sayville, N. Y.).—Headquarters has issued an official report declaring the western enemy everywhere has been defeated and is in full retreat after nine days' fighting.

General Von Kluk defeated the British army at Maubeuge, renewed the attack and threatened to surround it.

Generals Von Buelow and Von Hausen completely defeated the Franco-Belgian forces, about eight corps, between the Sambre and Namur and the Meuse in several days' battle and are now pursuing them to the eastward of Maubeuge.

The attack on Maubeuge was opened by the Grand Duke Albrecht of Wurttenberg, who defeated and pursued the enemy across the Semois and the Meuse.

The German crown prince is advancing toward the Meuse and the crown prince of Bavaria repulsed an attack from Nancy and the south.

General Von Heeringen continues the pursuit southward through the Vosges.

Four Belgian divisions, attacking Tuesday and Wednesday from Antwerp, have been repulsed, losing guns and many prisoners. The Belgian population generally participated in the fighting, necessitating severe repressive measures.

The corps of the last reserves have been called out to guard communications.

It is difficult to describe the fierce exultation of all classes in Berlin over the news of the British reverse at Maubeuge, as announced officially from army headquarters.

The German resentment against England for having "injected into this conflict" and calling for Japan, a yellow race, is so deep that news of the surrender of the British army on the continent would be received with more joy and satisfaction in Berlin than tidings of the fall of Paris.

It is reported here a portion of the British force is at present shut up in Maubeuge.

The Berlin populace, inspired by the announcement from military headquarters that the "iron ring" is making its way around the French British and Belgian forces from Cambrai to the Vosges, exhibits little concern regarding the situation on the eastern frontier of Germany.

It has full confidence the attack on the west line will be speedily finished and that the victorious German armies will then make sharp work of clearing German soil of the Russians.

Allies Beaten.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Wireless messages by way of Sayville, N. Y., to the German embassy told of German victories and said that the allies along the eastern frontier of France were in complete rout. One message said that the northern armies of France and England at the Sambre and Meuse rivers were almost completely surrounded.

The northern armies of France had been widely separated, according to the message, and the German cavalry had advanced to Ostend.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, said that the German Uhlans were on the outskirts of Calais.

Following is the dispatch:

"The French and English north armies on the Sambra and Meuse rivers have been surrounded by German troops on all sides as a result of the latest fighting.

"The French east army has been partly driven to the south. This has prevented communications between the French east and north armies, while all the German armies are in contact from Cambrai, through upper Alsace. The German cavalry has advanced to Ostend.

"Civilians of the Belgian town of Louvain made a perfidious attack on German troops while fighting. Louvain was punished by the destruction of the city.

"The appearance of a Zeppelin at Antwerp has caused a panic in London.

"Reports to Berlin from Copenhagen and Stockholm announce that there is a grave crisis in the French government. The Spanish ambassador at Vienna has called the situation in France very serious.

"The Danish colony in Berlin has warned foreigners to beware of fictitious news.

"A meeting of all foreign colonies in Berlin was held, at which a resolution was passed thanking the German government for the kind treatment of foreigners and expressing admiration of the wonderful spirit and enthusiasm shown by the German people."

A Rout, Says Berlin.

A later wireless message said that the war office in Berlin officially declared that the Germans had administered a severe defeat to the allies' western army and that the allies were now in full retreat.

The message said that headquarters in Berlin had issued an official report stating that the English army had been defeated at Maubeuge by the army commanded by General von Kluk. The Germans threatened to surround the English army, it was said. The fighting lasted nine days.

The Franco-Belgian forces, consisting of about eight corps posted between the Sambre, Namur and the Meuse, was retreating, the report stated, with the Germans in swift pursuit.

Berlin headquarters also said that the Germans were successful in the Vosges and were driving the French before them. Among the victorious commanders mentioned in the official report are the crown prince of Bavaria, the Grand Duke Albrecht of Wuerttemburg, and Generals Von Buelow, Von Hausen and Von Heeringen.

Tells of Repulse of Belgians.

Concerning the attempt of the Belgian army at Antwerp to cut the German line of communication the official report said that the Germans had repulsed the attack and had taken many Belgian guns and prisoners. Because the Belgian population had participated in the fighting it was said that severe repressive measures had been adopted against them. The message also stated that the corps of the last reserves had been called out to re-enforce the guard along the line of communications.

The French government has reached a grave crisis, the German embassy was informed in another wireless message from Berlin via the Sayville (N. Y.) wireless station.

BRITISH DEATH LIST.

General French Wants to Start Publication of Names at Once.

London, Aug. 29.—The official press bureau announced that Field Marshal Sir John French has telegraphed Earl Kitchener that he feels strongly the necessity of giving full details of the casualties as soon as possible and hopes to be able to telegraph some of them immediately, but that up to the present it has been impossible to do so under the existing circumstances.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—The Russian army has driven in the outlying Austrian defenses and is now in a position to attack Lemberg, capital of Austria.

Three Austrian army corps which have been opposing the Russian advance have been split and forced back on the fortifications of Lemberg with heavy losses.

The Russian troops are under the command of General Wanaff and have a strong and efficient aeroplane corps. The dispatches state that the aeroplanes have proved of inestimable value to the Russians and have aided greatly in the swift forward movements of the troops. Several of them are reported to have flown over the German position near Lemberg.

One report is that the fortress of Lemberg has been surrounded by Russian troops.

The Russian troops attacking the Austrians number about 200,000. They are heavily supported with artillery. The Austrians appear to be defending the strongly fortified position along the Sereth river and in the Dniester River valley.

It is reported that three more army corps are being rushed to the assistance of General Wanaff. Russian aeroplanes also report that the Austrians are being heavily re-enforced, so that probably the greatest engagement of the war in the eastern theater is now being fought.

Effect of the Battle.

A decisive victory of either army would be of the utmost importance. Should the Austrians win they would check effectually the Russian advance and probably affect their invasion of east Prussia. Should the Russians win probably the best part of Galicia would fall before them.

Russian operations are continuing along the entire line of invasion. In the north and center fighting is reported, but nothing as serious as the general engagement in Galicia. The war office announced today that Russian troops in force had penetrated to the vicinity of Koenigsberg and had driven the German outposts from their positions at the crossings of the Alle river.

The Russians are reported to have located the German Twentieth army corps in the forts at Allenstein. The German corps had suffered severely in previous fighting and it is believed is now prepared to defend the forts.

The report of the Russian occupation of Tilsit is officially confirmed. It was stated that small German detachments which had occupied a few frontier towns in Poland are rapidly evacuating their positions.

According to accounts of the fighting in east Prussia, the swift movements of the Russian cavalry were responsible for the success of the Russian advance. The Germans, it is said, were taken by surprise by the Russian cavalry's wonderful mobility.

Russian Victories.

London, Aug. 29.—Dispatches confirming the Russian occupation of Tilsit, sixty miles northeast of Koenigsberg, east Prussia, were received by the Russian embassy here.

According to the dispatches many prisoners were taken in the fighting which resulted in the flight of the garrison and population of the town. The Russian government has extended its postal service to include east Prussia, Russian stamps being used.

Commenting on the opening of the sluice gates of the Elbing by the German military authorities and the order of the German commandant of Marienburg to the inhabitants to evacuate the country, the Morning Post's St. Petersburg correspondent says:

"These are the methods of despair and indicate pretty certainly that Germany has no more trained troops to oppose the Russians."

The correspondent continues:

"With the true eye for strategy which mark the born commander of men, Grand Duke Nicholas has abandoned to its fate everything everywhere which did not lend itself to the attainment of a single aim of locating, attacking and crushing the enemy's main force.

"In accordance with this policy quite half of Poland was left bare of Russian troops and all public servants of Russia's state were warned to quit betimes when the Germans advanced.

"Both the Austrians and Germans accepted the invitation to this easy conquest. There were no soldiers anywhere to meet the German invaders, whose cavalry raided as far as Lodz, but they have since been swept out again."

Germans Fleeing.

Describing the Russian advance into east Prussia the Post's St. Petersburg correspondent says that the strength of the Germans facing the invading army is not exactly known, but it is believed to be either five or seven army corps. Three of these, he says, are in full retreat toward Koenigsberg. One is fleeing toward Osterode. These four corps threw away arms, ammunition and food as they fled.

The Russians by forced marches have driven a wedge into the German defenses. This has so demoralized the Germans that they have abandoned intrenched positions along the Angerrapp river without fighting, and their line of retreat is strewn with cartridges, grenades and knapsacks, tossed away by the soldiers.

The correspondent says that the authorities of east Prussia have caught the army's panic. The commandant at Marienburg is reported to have ordered the inhabitants to leave the city. The sluices at Elbing have been ordered opened to flood the country in order to hamper the swift Russian advance.

In view of the fact that Austria has mobilized troops on the Italian border King Victor Emmanuel may have to declare war on Emperor Francis Joseph, which also means Germany.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF.

England.

Two German cruisers and two German torpedo boats are reported to have been sunk by British cruisers in the North sea. A third German cruiser is reported to be burning. Premier Asquith reported in the house of commons that the British lost heavily in their engagement in France along the Belgian border. He says that the British forces sustained the assaults of five complete German army corps, held their ground until the brunt of the attack had been met and then retired to a new position.

France.

French cavalry are reported to have been seen in the neighborhood of Arras. Scouting parties have also reached as far north, according to one report, as Calais. German prisoners seem to be suffering greatly from fatigue and lack of food. They report the German losses very heavy. Two regiments, the One Hundred and Thirteenth and the One Hundred and Forty-second infantry seem to have suffered especially severely, as only sixty men were left after the engagement. The French line in the north is still supposed to remain between Cambrai and La Cateau. The German line seems to have made little advance in the south. The plan of the allies apparently is to prevent the return of German troops on French soil to Berlin or east Prussia to meet the Russian advance.

Russia.

The Russians are still advancing their lines in east Prussia. The report of their occupation of Tilsit is confirmed, and they are said to be within striking distance of Posen. The Grand Duke Nicholas is confining his operations to attack on the main armies and is pressing rapidly ahead toward Berlin. The Russian invasion has caused great alarm, and the emperor has telegraphed the council of ministers to organize immediately means of relief for the people of the territory invaded. The Russian army has driven in the outlying Austrian defenses and is in position to attack Lemberg, the capital of Austrian Calicia. The three army corps, which were opposing the Russian advance, have been split and forced back on the fortifications of Lemberg with heavy loss.

Belgium.

Louvain has been completely destroyed by the Germans as a military measure, the city having been burned in reprisal for hostile acts charged against the people of that city. Reports declare that the town was set afire by the Germans by using explosives and bombs and that now nothing remains of it but a heap of ashes and twisted ruins. The Belgian Kongo concessions have been attacked along the frontier by the Germans. British and Belgians are co-operating in the defense. British marines are now in Ostend.

WHAT CAUSED THIS WAR AND WILL IT BE THE LAST ONE?

"Might was right when Caesar bled
Upon the stones of Rome,
Might was right when Joshua led
His hordes o'er Jordan's foam,
And Might was right when German troops
Poured down through Paris gay;
It's the Gospel of the Ancient World
And the Logic of Today."

The above from the highly charged fantasy and rugged exuberance of a fervent apostle of the theory of the Survival of the Fittest and grand apologist of Might is Right, which, he claims, is the Gospel of the Ancient World and the Logic of Today, is quoted, not because we believe in it, but as an illustration of an actual fact.

We have been reared in the delusion that men have certain rights bound to be respected and not overridden, but that is only a dream which vanishes like bubbles in the air when slightly pricked.

The history of mankind is a constant struggle between the desire to do right and the relentless working out of the law of Economic Determinism. Man may have all the good intentions in the world, he may be stuffed full of moral preachments, but when his "interests" are threatened he becomes a savage fighting with tooth and claw for the preservation of those interests.

The above is illustrated by the old familiar saying, "God helps those who help themselves," which is as much the philosophy of the "pious" and the "meek" as it is of the "ungodly."

Of course this eternal conflict of man's conscience between right and wrong is due to the fact that we have erected as a pinnacle of human achievement the acquisition of property and material wealth.

We have made of "property" a sacred institution—set much above human life—around which we have thrown a net work of legal lore and behind which stands the jailer and the policeman's club.

As the poet already quoted aptly adds:

"Behind all Kings and Presidents,
All Government and Law,
Are army-corps and cannoneers
To hold the world in awe."

In fact whence do governments derive their power? From the governed? There isn't a greater fallacy. It is the great delusion of even so-called Democratic governments. The power to rule, whether monarchical or republican, as long as "property" exists, is in the bayonet and the cannon's mouth,—we will give a further illustration later on—and no amount of sophistry can successfully combat this trueism.

It will be the object of the present article to show that while behind kings and presidents are army-corps and cannoneers, behind the latter are the masters of property, the great international association of freebooters and money-lenders who are neither English nor French, German nor American, and who can synthetically be called capitalism, the hydra-headed monster to whose voracious appetite a supine and imbecile world ever sacrifices itself.

By a process of elimination we will try to formulate a working theory of what led to the present conflict, if it could have been prevented, or if it will be the last one. And it will be up to the discerning reader and student of history to judge whether our conclusions have any foundations in fact. It is our opinion, based on historical materialism, that the waning prestige and threatened mastery of the "lords of hoarded gold" precipitated this world catastrophe, and that it had to come just as surely as night follows day.

All the monarchs of Europe are related by blood or marriage. Their correspondence begins with "My Dear Cousin." Every time they meet they fall in each others' arms and reciprocally kiss their cheeks. Are those the kisses of Iscariot? Is it conceivable—taken in consideration also the fact that they are either actutal heads of churches or prominently identified with the church of their country—that while they exchange those kisses their mind is planning how best to destroy each other? What have they to gain? They have their handsome salaries, their pomp and ceremony; everything that the vanity of any mortal can crave; why jeopardize all this in the game of war? Why seek to humiliate their cousins, uncles and brothers-in-law? Is it the lust of greater power? The ambition to outshine the great "conquerors" of by-gone ages? Let us not forget that kings no longer lead their armies and plan their actions in the fields, and let us remember that at best ever the great generals of the past were but the accidental product of circumstances; that it was not they who made history, but that events made of them the creatures of history. The above considerations compel us to eliminate the puppets of the purple and the mace as the likely factors of this war.

Did the people want it by pressing their "representatives" in parliament to declare it? What have they to gain by it?—bullets, shattered limbs, disease and increased poverty. The only people who, in a measure, can be said as wanting to fight are those of dependent states whose language and customs are different from those of their dominators. They may even fare better under foreign rule but they feel the humiliation that perhaps their habits and usages are the subject of ridicule of the intruders, and that feeling is really fostered more and more by native petty tyrants whose forced bowing to foreign officialdom is a constant source of irritation. But these, plainly, are not the people who started this war, and they must be eliminated as another factor.

Did the Germans, the Austrians, the English, the French, the Russians want it? They wanted this war as much as the Americans, who now, in their self complacency, call the Europeans crazy fools, want it.

Who wanted it then? For whose benefit is it fought? There is only one answer to that, the "interests." It is the struggle of life or death for the international association of black-handers, known as bankers and financiers, at whose command kings move and presidents invite to write messages.

If the order was given tomorrow that this country should enter the fray we would forget all about the names we have been calling the Europeans, the press would frantically try to justify "our" stand, and the pulpiteers would deliver stirring sermons on patriotism, with the result that we would brandish the sword and shoulder the musket with as much alacrity as our cousins across the sea.

This war could not have been prevented, it was bound to come, it was as inevitable as the rotary motion of the earth.

The buccaneers of Europe, and, as far as it goes, of America too, have gobbled up pretty nearly the whole globe. Comparatively modern history is the history of colonial expansion, which means the acquisition of new markets upon which to dump the surplus goods or, to be more accurate, the stolen products of the workers' labor in the highly developed industrial centers of the world. Having thus practically come at the end of colonization, a period of dissolution was setting for the capitalists, and they thought that the only restorative that could arrest that process was by a deliberate waste of this surplus product in a world-wide war, at least they hope that such may be the case.

And it will not be the last war either, notwithstanding the pious wish of those who think that when the frightful cost is realized the nations will come to their senses and disarm. Those good people forget that the capitalists are made of sterner stuff, they will never have any pity, they will never realize the frightful cost, for it lives just by murder and rapine. It is the relentless logic of the Gospel of the Survival of the Fittest. The cruel inexorable law of Economic Determinism. For we move in a vicious circle, the same conditions confronting the capitalists today, will confront them perhaps in another forty, fifty years, and they will not hesitate to hurl the workers of the world at each other's throat in the name of God and the fatherland. Yes, the army-corps and cannoneers behind all kings and presidents, will in the same cold, calculating way, be used to suppress ruthlessly any proletarian demand for more food—as witness recent history. While we sent warships to Mexico to protect American INTERESTS, mark well the word, the drunken soldiery of Colorado, at the command of Rockefeller, were mowing down with machine guns American men, women and children because they had the temerity to ask for more bread and more humane conditions of work.

What a spectacle, in that whole lurid situation, for a President of the United States to send to 26 Broadway—to please ask the oil magnate to find a way to solve the difficulty other than by sword and gun—which proves who are the real rulers—coupled with that of the deluded minister who thought a good plan to imitate the Nazarene by invading his church to arraign the money changers, but Rev. White found out to his sorrow that dead Christs are passable, but living one, Ah! they are only fit for the workhouse.

Peace movements, based on religious teaching and moral preachments, have disappointed humanity; they have been tried and found wanting; they will never be able to stop war. In fact they are more than useless, they are harmful, for they act like opiates, given a sense of relief, whereas the disease spreads with greater ravages.

As long as society is based on the Profit System, individual Property Rights in things of social use and necessity, wars, domestic and foreign, will be the necessary concomitant. The unusual appals us. We are all worked up about this war because our imagination staggers at the realization of an enormous number of human beings, caught in the grinding machinery of militarism, now pitted against each other for no apparent motive, while we almost ignore the fact that hundreds of thousands of workers are killed every year in the performance of work which could have been made safer by protective appliances, or wantonly slaughtered by the State constabulary and militiamen if they revolted against unbearable working conditions which, of course, to remedy means less profits for the money masters.

Wars will only become a shuddering page of history when the cause is removed, and the cause is the private ownership of the means of production and distribution.

COPPER INDUSTRY WILL BE EFFECTED BY WAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 29.—With the possible exception of the silver industry, the copper industry will probably feel the injurious effects of the European war more seriously than any other of the leading American metal industries. During the last five years approximately 50 per cent of the copper turned out by American refineries has been exported, in large part to countries now involved in the European war, according to a statement issued by the United States Geological Survey. Some of this copper has been imported for metallurgical treatment, and the imports will probably be somewhat restricted on account of shipping conditions.

During these five years, however, domestic consumers have taken only about 63 to 67 per cent of the copper produced from mines within the United States, so it is evident that there must be material curtailment of production while present conditions prevail. Considerable copper is of course consumed in munitions of war and for other military purposes, but the constructive arts of peace are far more favorable for the copper industry than the destructive art of war.

American producers have already greatly curtailed their production, and it seems almost certain that the output must be materially restricted for an indefinite period, dependent largely on the European conditions

Just one laugh after another is the way "Hanky Panky" which plays at the Plainfield Theatre on Tuesday, has been described. "Hanky Panky" is a real Lew Fields show with a real Broadway company consisting of its famous all-star cast and its many beautiful chorus girls and a sprinkling of real rah-rah college youths with big singing voices to back the girls up. It has been called a jumble of jollification, but it might also be called a noggin of nondescript nonsense, a veritable vision of vaudeville and other alliterative things. It is a great big jolly, tuneful and exhilirating show. It is a sequel to and parody on "Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingford," who is now of the English nobility in the gardens of his villa on the Thames entertaining his friends of the nobility and chorus girls. Some Germans come there to try to sell him a mummy. The mummy comes to life and proves to be Cleopatra, who mistakes Wallingford for Marie Anthony and immediately appropriates him, much to the disgust and jealousy of Clorinda Scribbles, Wallingford's secretary, who writes and spouts bad poetry. During the festivities Blackie Dew arrives on the scene and threatens to denounce Wallingford unless that worthy shares his good fortune with him, so Wallingford decides to return to Chicago University and the others all follow him. The second act shows the campus of Chicago University and the famous Yale fence. The last act takes all out to the beautiful home of Wallingford on the Chicago Lake front, where he marries his Cleopatra and everybody is happy. In addition to the tuneful and popular numbers that have made "Hanky Panky" famous there have been added others this season. The best of them is the big novelty that was the sensation of the Winter Garden in New York last season, called "The Serpentine Tango." This will be given with the full chorus effect and all the unique effects of costuming and lighting that made it such a pronounced hit.

It is a rare enough thing nowadays to find a play which has received the universal endorsement of dramatic critics everywhere. It is unprecedented to hear a play that has received not only the endorsement of the men whose business it is to consider a play from a technical viewpoint, but from the prominent laymen who judge a play only by personal appeal which it makes to them. It is therefore of increased interest to learn that "Within the Law," by Bayard Veiller, which has been commended publicly by such eminent thinkers as Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, the Bishop of Wyoming, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch and which has just concluded a run of more than a year at the Eltinge Theatre, New York city, will come here. Manager Counihan has secured this remarkable play, which deals with present-day conditions in the populace and which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre next Thursday.

One of the charming chorus features promised in "High Jinks" at the Plainfield Theatre next Friday is the soap bubble balloon song entitled "Bubbles." The number is said to be ravishingly pretty in both its staging and its philosphy. Another musical interlude in which the chorus is credited with unusual pictorial assistance is "Love's Own Kiss." The nature of the picture is left to the imagination of the reader, who is invited to compare his or her mental vision with the vision Mr. Hammerstein will materialize on the stage the night of the performance witnessed.

George McManus conceived the idea of the now famous cartoon series "Bringing up Father" from a newspaper man's standpoint, he hit it right. To put the same characters on the stage is another matter and a very difficult one. McManus consulted Gus Hill, whose experience in making millions out of cartoon plays, extends back for many years. Mr. Hill's newest production "Bringing up Father," is now ready and will be at the Plainfield Theatre one week from today.

HELPFUL WORDS.

From a Plainfield Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful?

Does it ache especially after exertion?

Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms suggest weak kidneys.

If so there is danger in delay.

Weak kidneys get fast weaker.

Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys,

Your neighbors use and recommend them.

Read this Plainfield testimony:

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 South Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. It was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other remedies, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's drug store. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I did some years ago when they cured me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

TO LEVY WAR TAX ON BALL TICKETS

U. S. Treasury Department Draws Bill to That Effect —Also Other Amusements.

Washington, Aug. 29.—Every purchaser of a ticket for the world series baseball games in October may be required to pay a tax to help the government along.

Treasury Department officials are preparing a bill designed to raise revenue to make up the deficiencies in customs caused by the interruption of foreign trade. It is understood the authorities are considering levying a stamp tax on baseball tickets and tickets of admission to all other amusement enterprises, including theatres.

The beer tax will be increased and a tax also will be levied on many soft drinks. In addition to Congress leaders are considering an increase in the internal revenue taxes on tobacco products and taxes on checks, patent medicines and proprietary articles.

Battling Levinsky figures that he has done enough boxing and with sufficient success to entitle him to the first chance against Gunboat Smith.

"Kid" Williams will make his Eastern debut as a champion on Labor Day. His opponent will be Young Soisberg and the bout will take place in Brooklyn.

Al. Reich, ex-champion amateur heavyweight, has turned down an offer to box Battling Levinsky. Reich will wait until he has had more experience in the game before he tackles the top-notchers.

ROD AND REEL

The fishing at Lake Hopatcong is now at its best according to reports from those who have been there. Bass, pickerel and perch are the main biters and there are many of those caught every day.

Many blackfish and bass are being taken up at Freeport these days. Three men went out and in a short time had all they could handle.

A fishing party went down to Barnegat Bay, Thursday, and if ever a variety of fish were taken from those waters it was on this occasion. They landed weakfish, bluefish, fluke, sea bass and blowfish in great numbers. The fish were full of fight and the deep water gave them a chance to display their ability to cope with the rod-holder. Some of the fish insisted on diving under the boat and coming up on the other side and frequently they would carry off sixty feet of line before being checked.

Two men fishing off the Long Branch Pier this week brought up fourteen nice fluke. They also got three weakfish, one of them going to three and a half pounds.

Several striped bass, running well over three pounds, were caught last week at Rockaway. The bass are the surf-feeding variety, and the recent drop in temperature of the water should improve the fishing for them. They generally bite better closer in shore after the heat ceases and the water gets chilled a bit. Fishing for striped bass from the piers along Coney Island is uncertain, but the old-timers generally manage to pick up a few during each season. They fish persistently and many times go home without having had a strike.

Weakfishing on the early tide was fine yesterday in Raritan Bay and the Staten Island waters. Many of the guides with motorboats had big catches and weakfish bit best at about half tide. In slack water there was very little doing. Shedder crab continues to be the best bait, although a few of the fishermen are getting fair results with shrimp. One man tried both shrimp and shedders, yesterday, off the Keyport Cove, and said afterward that the fish did not make any distinction, biting equally well on both baits. Shrimp is scarce, however, and the wise anglers are taking their bait with them.

Enormous quantities of weakfish are being caught in the pound nets along the coast of New Jersey and just as soon as the fall migration sets in there won't be storage houses enough to carry the catch. Sea bass are also plentiful and fluke are thick all along the shore. If one-tenth of the catch was marketed it would knock the bottom out of the high food prices over night.

The East wind kept many of the parties from fishing Raritan Bay Wednesday. It kicked up a sea that is rarely noticed down there and only one boat could be seen on the fishing grounds.

One angler, while fishing off Morgan's Point this week, caught a two-and-a-half-pound kingfish and sixteen weakfish. The kingfish was the largest seen at Morgan this year.

BASEBALL NOTES

Larry Lajoie has shown flashes of his old time form in stick work since he returned to the Naps' lineup.

President Hedges, of the Browns, says he has no fear of a Fed raid as he has all of his players signed to iron-clad contracts.

The Yankees have landed a nifty second baseman in Boone. Dan'l appears to be there four ways from the middle station.

With only one player, Connolly, hitting in the .300 circle, the Braves have gone right ahead tearing through everything in the National league.

It is said the Athletics have lost gobs of money this season and that the only chance they have to break even is to share in the world's series mazuma.

Both Manager Stallings and Captain Evers of the Braves, have turned down several offers to syndicate a weekly baseball article. "Let McGraw do it," says Stallings.

"Chick" Davis, the former Massachusetts Aggie twirler, has turned out to be a star pinch hitter since he joined the Athletics.

Pitcher Coveleskie, of Detroit, teases Connie Mack's White Elephants as easily as he used to pester McGraw's Giants. Trimming champions seems to be Coveleskie's long suit.

The Brooklyn Superbas are up against it in the loss of Shortstop O'Mara, who will be out of the game the rest of the season because of a broken leg. The youngster was the live wire of the Superbas' infield.

The passing of Steve Yerkes, together with Stahl, O'Brien, Hall, Pape, Ball and Nunamaker, makes seven of the Red Sox championship team of two years ago who have been released.

The Chicago Feds seem to have routed Charley Ebbets in the matter of "dedications" and "special days." Thus far the Chifeds have had six special days and four or five more are to follow.

Forest Cady now uses the Australian crawl slide in stealing bases. It would be classy stuff if it were not for the fact that the baseman is always waiting with the ball to tax the Red Sox catcher.

Few pitchers have come to the front as rapidly as has Bill Doak, of the Cardinals. Bill, who is now one of the top-notchers in the National league, couldn't pitch pebbles into the Mississippi river last lyear.

PLAYED NO GAMES BUT HAVE A RECORD

North Plainfield High School Athletes Appear In Spalding's Guide.

Although the North Plainfield to support a football team last year, Board of Education would not allow the High School Athletic Association it seems that the students put one over on them and created a record that the school authorities should be proud of.

In the 1914 issue of Spalding's Football Guide, there is an account of the season and also a record of games. Who sent this "fake" into the Spaulding people is not known but it may help the boroughites to get permission to have a team this year if they so desire. The article and record that appeared in the guide follow:

North Plainfield, N. J. High School —With eight games won, three lost and one tie, the football authorities at the school consider that the team did very well during the season of 1913. The principal game was the first of a series of three with High Bridge, on the latter's grounds, High Bridge won 13-0. The next game, at North Plainfield, was captured by the New Jersey boys 7-6, and so was the final game 3-0. Abrams, fullback, won the last game with a dropkick. He was the star of the season.—Spalding's Official Football Guide for 1914.

The record:

N. P. H. S., 6; Bernardsville, 0.
N. P. H. S., 0; High Bridge, 13.
N. P. H. S., 7; High Bridge, 0.
N. P. H. S., 3; High Bridge, 0.
N. P. H. S., 21; Somerville, 6.
N. P. H. S., 37; Bound Brook, 3.
N. P. H. S., 6; Westfield, 3.
N. P. H. S., 13; New Brunswick 21.
N. P. H. S., 9; Flemington, 0.
N. P. H. S., 0; Rahway, 21.
N. P. H. S., 0; Holy Cross, 6.
N. P. H. S., 13; Elizabeth, 0.

SAURERS WILL HAVE TO PLAY SOME TOMORROW

The strong St. Joseph's baseball team, of Bound Brook, will be the attraction at Woodland Park tomorrow and the Saurer team will have to go the limit to win. This aggregation is considered to be one of the fastest in this section and will undoubtedly give Martin's ballists a good run for the game. Johnny Dixon will do the twirling for the locals and Alberts will receive him. Mullin will try a new role at second in place of Manager Martin, while L. Dixon, the Pets' first baseman, will take his brother's place in right field.

McFadden will pitch for the visitors with Teeling behind the bat. The local team will lineup as follows: Harriman 3b, Jaeger ss, Mullin 2b, Alberts c, Garretson 1b, Wilson lf, L. Dixon rf, Miller cf, Dixon p.

TENNIS A TEST FOR LOVERS.

Tennis is a sure revealer of character. Three sets with a man suffice to give one a working knowledge of his moral equipment; six, of his chief mental traits, and a dozen, of that most important, and usually veiled part of him, his subconscious personality. Young people of opposite sexes are sometimes counseled to take a long railway journey together before deciding on a matrimonial merger. But I would respectfully advise them rather to play "singles" with each other before venturing upon a continuous game of doubles.—Robert H. Schauffler in the Atlantic.

WILL PLAY RUBBER GAME.

The Highlanders and Laurels will meet tomorrow in the rubber game of the series on the Netherwood field. These teams have met twice before and each have won one game. Both were close and a fine exhibition is looked for tomorrow. Both teams will have the regular men playing and Denny and Kyle will act as the battery for the Netherwood aggregation. The game will start at 3:30.

ASK WAIVERS ON VET.

New York, Aug. 29—It was said today that the New York National League Cluzb has asked for waivers on Pitcher Wiltse. With the exception of Mathewson, Wiltse is the veteran member of the Giants.

PLUMBERS' OUTING.

The local union of plumbers and gas and steam fitters will hold an athletic meet this afternoon at Lee's Grove, Scotch Plains, weather permitting. A game of baseball between the married and single men will feature the outing, with Eckhardt and Chandler as a battery for the benedicts, while Smith and Krausse will act in the same capacity for the bachelors. A number of other athletic events, including fat men's races, broad jumps, high jumps, half mile races, 100 yard dashes, three-legged races, together with potato and hurdle races, have been arranged.

HONOR FOR GREAT PRESS BUILDER

Late Walter Scott's Picture Included In Chicago Memorial Window.

In the new Henry O. Shepard School in Chicago, there is to be unveiled on Labor Day, a memorial window which is being donated by the Old Time Printers Association, of Chicago, in co-operation with a large number of organizations, such as the American Newspaper Publishers Association, Chicago Employing Printers Association, Ben Franklin Club, Chicago Press Club, and others.

The Henry O. Shepard memorial tablet occupies the entire centre window in the north front of the new school building. A large portrait of Mr. Shepard at the top, and smaller ones of Walter Scott, the noted builder of presses, and of Ottmar Mergenthaler, the inventor of the Linotype, surround a printing office scene of a century ago, an illustration of the first iron press in America, with life-size figures in colonial dress, forming the central features. The tablet was designed by Thomas A. O'Shaughnessy, and made in the O'Shaughnessy studios, in Chicago. It is one of the finest examples of luminous art-glass windows by the O'Shaughnessy process in America.

The importance of this event is evidenced by the fact that a large number of prominent men will take part in the ceremony, the principal speaker being Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, Washington, D. C.; also Mr. James Keeley, Editor of the Chicago Herald, and, others will speak.

The inclusion of the late Walter Scott's portrait with those of Mr. Shepard and Ottmar Mergenthaler in this memorial window indicates the important place which the founder of the Walter Scott Press Works, of this city earned for himself, and is an acknowledgement of the surpassing excellence of the Scott Machinery.

HERR'S SCHOOL TO RESUME SESSIONS NEXT TUESDAY

The regular sessions will be resumed at Herr's School, the Plainfield Business College and School of English, next Tuesday. The school has been closed for the entire month of August and extensive alterations and repairs have been made, all of which will very materially aid in conducting the work of the institution during this coming year. There is every indication that the attendance this year will exceed that of last year and considerable space has been added to the regular class-room to take care of the increase.

PERSONAL.

Carroll Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Taylor, of Fairview avenue, will leave tomorrow morning for Golden, Colorado, where he is studying in the Colorado School of Mines.

Ralph Smalley, of Greenbrook, will leave tomorrow for Pittsburgh, where he will spend a few weeks with friends.

SUCCESSFUL AUCTION.

Auctioneer William A. Schorb conducted a very successful sale yesterday afternoon, when he disposed of the furniture which belonged to the late Miss Wilhelmina Vroom, at the order of Charles L. Moffett, the executor. The sale was held in the First National Bank building, and the articles disposed of were household goods.

WHEEL IS MISSING.

Charles Spriggs, of 1510 Willever street, reported to the police last night that someone had stolen his bicycle from the rear of his home.

Not a home in this city but has its quota of discarded furniture, rugs, stoves perhaps, a wheelbarrow maybe.

A few cents for a Press want ad and some one who needs the very article that lies rotting in your garret will call and pay you for it.

You are better off—new owner is pleased—and the article itself is contributing to the reduction of the high cost of living.

JAPAN RENEWS TSINGTAO ATTACK.

Chinese Residents Protest at Military Rule.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The Japanese fleet has renewed the attack on Tsingtao, and owing to the fact that the Japanese warships carry heavier guns than the Germans they are inflicting severe damage without danger from the shore artillery, according to a special cable printed by the Chicago Daily News this afternoon from its staff correspondent at Peking, China.

"No information," says the cable, "is available here as to the whereabouts of the Japanese landing force. The German governor of Kiaochow has proclaimed martial law, which affects the Chinese residing in the leased territory, who are forced to carry ammunition and work on the land defenses within the zone of fire.

"Chinese here are indignant at the action of the Germans. It is believed here that if Tsingtao holds out eight months, as the Germans say it will, the Chinese coolies are not likely to get a fair share of food after supplies run short.

"The Germans destroyed several Chinese villages near the hinterland."

British Fought Gamely.

London, Aug. 29.—Premier Asquith, speaking in the house of commons, announced that the British forces on the French border were exposed on Wednesday to the attack of five German army corps and that they effectively protected the French flank. Both sides lost heavily, the premier said, but the exact numbers are not yet known. He continued:

"We have heard from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander in chief of the British expeditionary force, that in the fighting which took place between his army and the enemy on Wednesday, Aug. 26, and which appears from French official reports to have been in the neighborhood of Cambrai and Le Cateau, our troops were exposed to the attack of five German army corps, two divisions of cavalry, a reserve corps of cavalry and a second cavalry division.

"Our second corps in the fourth division bore the brunt of the cavalry attack, while our First Army corps was attacked on the right and inflicted a very heavy loss on the enemy.

"I regret to say that our casualties were heavy, but the exact numbers are not yet known. The behavior of our troops were in all respects admirable. General Joffre, the French commander in chief, in a message published this morning, conveys his congratulations and sincere thanks for the protection so effectively given by our army to the French flank.

"The British position," explained the premier, was attacked first by two divisions of cavalry, who were supporting the five corps of German infantry. The British second army corps bore the brunt of the cavalry attack.

"The Germans charged again and again, but were driven back with very heavy losses, the British rifles, supported by their artillery, proving very effective. The British first corps attacked the Germans on the right and inflicted very heavy losses. The fighting covered most of the day. The detailed list of the British casualties has not yet been received."

News of Interest in Building World

FOUR SMALL PERMITS ISSUED THIS WEEK

All For Work In the Fourth Ward, Total Value Being $1,175.

The bottom fell from underneath the building operations in this city during the week, when but four permits of minor importance were granted by Inspector T. O. Doane. These permits all call for work in the Fourth ward, with the expenditures for these proposed building aggregating $1,175.

The outlook for a brisk fall revival of building activities in this city, however, remain bright, despite the apparent lack of development during the past week. A number of local contractors report that they are fairly busy figuring on estimates for new buildings, together with alterations and improvements which are being planned for the fall and winter. Work in various parts of the city now in the course of progress will undoubtedly keep a large number of mechanics busy for some time yet, and there appears to be little danger of any large number of building trades craftsmen being laid off in the immediate future.

The proposed improvements to Astor Theatre on West Front street, togteher with the erection of the new edifice for the Netherwood Reformed church this fall will tend to keep a number of men busy for some time. Contracts for work on these buildings are expected to be awarded before the end of the present month, or early in September. Several other buildings have been planned, and in all probability, will be started before the fall season is very far advanced.

Patrick Nugent is to erect a 16 by 30 foot frame shed at 354-356 Bergen street at an estimated cost of $150. The building is to be utilized as works where cement blocks will be manufactured by the owner of the building. Jesse Naylor has the contract.

An extension is to be built to the structure located at 513 West Third street by Ignatz Trubowsky, which will be occupied as a store when completed. The improvements will be one story high, and of frame construction. The addition will have a frontage of twenty feet, with a depth of twenty-two feet. The cost is placed at $675. Fred L. Lancaster is the architect, and I. Stinman the general contractor.

P. A. Johnson is to have an 18 by 14 frame stable erected in the rear of 211 Grant avenue, at a cost of $175. Mr. Robinson, of Rahway, is the architect and contractor.

Michael Kussera, of New York, is to erect a one story frame dwelling at Oak place and South Second street at a cost of $175. The building will have a frontage of twelve feet and a depth of twenty-two.

SOMERSET PROPERTY IN DEAL.

The Marble Hill apartment house, a six-story structure at Marble Hill avenue and 225th street, valued at more than $160,000, was sold this week by the A. N. Gitterman Corporation for the Yen Realty Company in a deal involving New Jersey acreage. William H. McDonald, the buyer, gives in part payment his estate at Somerville, comprising a two-story concrete bungalow, with twelve acres. It is also understood that considerable cash was involved in the transaction, in which Harlan P. Young represented the buyer.

REALTY TRANSFERS

The following realty transfers of this city and the surrounding towns have been recorded at the office of the county registrar:

Carolina Haberman has bought of Equator Building and Development Co., five lots in Lincoln Heights.

Lars Kundson has bought of Delia M, Mundy and husband, three lots on north side of Cedar street, Metuchen.

Edward F. Crowley has bought of the William B. McLain Realty Co., three lots in South Plainfield Heights, Piscataway township.

Dora Schultz has bought of the William B. McLain Realty Co., a plot on Lincoln Sstates, Piscataway township.

George E. Davis has bought of Bound Brook Co., Inc., house and two lots in Watchung Estates, Borough of Middlesex.

FANWOOD OUTLOOK BRIGHT.

Fanwood building activities have been far below normal during the course of the present season, but if present plans are carried out to their full extent, several houses will be erected during the fall. A dwelling on King street belonging to W. J. Edris has just been completed, while houses of James Minminzeck, on Midway avenue, and Mrs. Mary Mac Guire, on Forest road, will be completed shortly. A two and half story dwelling has been started at North and Farley avenues this week. A number of home sites have been sold during the summer to out of town people, with prospects for buildings this fall very bright.

SCOTCH PLAINS BUSY.

The building world in Scotch Plains, after being idle until the summer had almost completely passed, has awakened to take on a new lease of life. Plans are at present out for six or eight new ddewwings in the village, while an equal number are now in the course of construction. Walter Van Riper is having a two and half story dwelling erected on Mountain avenue, Henry C. Meyers has had the work of remodeling a dwelling on Park avenue completed and the new dwelling for William Ward, on Grand street is ready. Real estate is also moving at a brisk pace at the present time.

SOCIETY ADVOCATING FIRE ELIMINATION

An organization which is planned to be made national in its scope has been effected in Cleveland, Ohio, to conduct an educational campaign in behalf of fire prevention by the more general use of fireproof building materials. Back of the movement are the manufacturers of fireproof building materials who hope in this way to increase the demand for their products. The organization is known as the Society Advocating Fire Elimination, the initials of the words spelling SAFE. This is said to be the first concerted effort of the manufacturers of fireproof building materials to popularize their products. While they will all be working together for their own good they claim that they will be doing the country a service by educating the general public to erect safer buildings.

The society has organized a campaign in Cleveland and expects to extend its efforts to other cities as soon as manufacturers and dealers in those cities become interested in the movement. The campaign to educate the people will be conducted through the daily newspapers. Interesting articles such as the papers can be induced to publish will be prepared, so that there will be no expense for advertising space connected with this publicity. At a dinner given by the society at the Colonial Hotel in Cleveland, in June, speeches were made by some of the city officials and others, including H. B. McMaster, Youngstown, Ohio, director of the Association of Sheet & Tin Plate Manufacturers. Makers of sheets, sheet metal building material and steel material for reinforcing and fireproof buildings are expected to take an active interest in the organization. Its officers are Henry H. Camp, president of the Camp Conduit Company, president; William A. Fay, vice-president, and W. T. Rossiter, treasurer. Ralph P. Stoddard is executive secretary. The society has opened an office at 340 Leader-News Building, Cleveland.

JUST NOTES

Reports from operators and dealers in the commuting zone of New Jersey have been encouraging despite the fact June and July are usually dull months in suburban real estate buying. Although the sales have not been as great in number as compared with the transactions closed in other years, the buying has been of a variety which shows discrimination on the part of the homeseekers.

In consequence of the fact the speculative element has almost entirely been eliminated, the total figure of each purchase has been correspondingly higher, so that the grand total in dollars in this section almost has equalled the sales of past years.

In seeking a surburban home the buyer now uses the same careful judgment when he buys as he exercises in his business. He looks carefully into the situation, the surroundings, the improvements and everything bearing on his future profit before he commits himself to any situation.

CONDITIONS REMAIN THE SAME THROUGHOUT COUNTY

Building conditions throughout the county appear to remain about the same, although one or two parts of the county report a falling off. During the past two weeks, thirty-eight contracts have been filed at Elizabeth, calling for the expenditure of close to $100,000. These contracts, which are filed with the county clerk, represent but a portion of the building permits issued by the several municipalities.

Same with P. & F. Corbin, hardwood, $520.

Same with Schenck & Co., glazing work, $1,820.

Same with N. J. Terra Cotta Co., terra cotta work, $1,140.

APARTMENTS POPULAR.

Plans for a large number of apartment houses have been approved recently by the State Tenament House Board, the reports showing Newark to be in the lead in this line of building activity. Plans for eight new buildings were approved, calling for the expenditure of $68,000 while seven plans for alterations were inspected, the aggregate cost of which will be in the neighborhood of $7,800.

NEW FACTORY FOR DUNELLEN.

Announcement was made this week to the effect that the second floor of the new Gallagher building at North and Washington avenues, Dunellen, has been rented to Van Blarcom & Company, of New York, manufacturers of lace. It is expected that about seventy persons will be employed. The second floor has not as yet been completed, but will be ready to be occupied by September 15.

BUILDING BOOM AT LINCOLN.

A building boom is in prospect at Middlesex Borough, and real estate activities have already set in. Several buildings, including dwellings and those of a business nature are in the course of construction. Plans for several additional dwellings are under way, and work on a number of buildings will be started in the near future.

August Furniture Sale

(ORIGINAL)

All odd groups—pieces and suites for bedroom, living-room, dining-room, library and hall—hundreds in all, Wanamaker-warranted, at half and less than half our regular year 'round prices.

Every other piece and suite at its August reductions of 10 to 33 1-3 per cent.

Tuesday morning, September 1, will see all the furniture remaining unsold back at our full regular, rightful prices, which you will find written on the August Sale tags on Monday to identify the grades.

Don't be like a customer who came in day before yesterday, and, on seeing a mahogany chiffonier marked $44.50, regular price $89, called a salesman and inquired:

"Yes," answered the salesman, after examining tag and chiffonier.

"Why," said the customer—a woman—"It's identically the same piece as one for which I paid $93 in an uptown store last week, and I was assured that $93 was the wholesale price."

You cannot judge of the values in this August Sale by anything you may see anywhere else.

Fou cannot appreciate the economies and the fineness of the furniture except you come and see with your own eyes.

We started this sale with a million-dollar stock, regular and special purchases.

Four weeks of nation-wide buying caused the accumulation of hundreds of odd pieces.

We have many other pieces and suites which will not be reordered, because our stocks must always be fresh and new.

All these odd groups must be cleared out Monday.

So we have marked them at half and less than half, and they are

Bound to Be Bought As Soon As Seen

Whether we can match any of Monday's wonderful values in our next half-yearly Furniture Sale is dependent upon our future efforts and circumstances.

HAGUE PEACE CONFERENCE FIRST PROPOSED BY THE CZAR

About sixteeen years ago the Czar of Russia addressed a rescript to the nations inviting them to an international discussion on a question of ways and means which would assure a durable peace for all peoples of the world. The result of this was the first peace conference of The Hague during the following year. At a convention, which was held a few months after this conference, was created the Hague Tribunal, causing each of the nations in session to nominate for six years representative members of a permanent court of arbitration, the main duties of which are to call the attention of prospective belligerents to the existence of a peaceful method of settling their differences. The second peace conference was attended by representatives of forty-four nations and met at The Hague about seven years ago. At this meeting was settled many questions of international law.

The Daily Press is presenting to its readers the official War Map, printed in five colors, which contains all the essential information of the great conflict in Europe. CHAPTER XVII.

Red Tape.

AMONG others who met me after I reached Canada were four state of Maine game wardens, and they were all fine men. They assured me that I would have a free passport through the state. They got in touch with the commissioners at Augusta, who through them invited me to the Natural History hall in the capitol, where a reception was to be held in my honor.

The people of Augusta accorded me a tremendous reception—one that I shall never forget—and when our party arrived at the statehouse hundreds of people had gathered for the affair.

First of all I called on the fish and game commission in the office of the chairman. Scarcely had the doors closed when a cold blooded transaction followed. The chairman summoned one of his clerks, who read off the various fines attached to the killing of game out of season. Then I was asked what I had killed. I gave this information, and the chairman took down the various things that I mentioned. Then turning to me he said, "It will cost you $205, Mr. Knowles."

Members of my party stepped up and assured the commissioners that the fines would be attended to just as soon as the party arrived in Boston, and I was escorted into the Natural History hall, where the people were waiting to receive me. As I was moving on schedule the time was very limited, and presently I left the hall in the waiting automobile in order to keep an appointment with the mayor and make train connections for Portland.

As I started through a lane of people through the street one of the commissioners dashed down the steps and announced that the chairman had decided that I must give bonds before I left the statehouse.

"But that matter will be attended to just as soon as we arrive in Boston," protested the man who was engineering the party. "We are on schedule, and every minute is precious."

In spite of this the commissioners insisted, so I went back to the office where the attorney general was waiting with the chairman.

"But they are on schedule, Mr. Commissioner, and they haven't got time," said the attorney general.

"We'll make time," declared the chairman, with every ounce of authority that his office allows.

However, to make a long story short, a spirited conference followed, and I was allowed to depart to catch my train after I had affixed my signature to the document that gave me free passport through Maine. This also contained a clause to the effect that I would pay all fines for what game I had killed.

Afterward two of the commissioners, for whom I have the highest regard, came to me and said they were sorry that such a thing had happened. They told me they had been in favor of granting me a permit in the first place, but that they had had to give in to the chairman of the board.

Such, through the admission of the majority of the board of fish and game commissioners, is the condition of the state of Maine today. The majority of the board is controlled by the minority.

I suffered more mentally during my last ten days in the forest than at any other time. This suffering was not due to the fact that I wanted to go out before my time was up, but rather because of a fear that I might be molested by game wardens before I had lived my two full months in the forest.

After I had killed my bear I wondered at various times just how the game wardens and the fish and game commissioners would act. However, after I had got my deer the thought was harder to get rid of than it had been before. I was not conscience stricken or anything like that. I had only killed game through sheer necessity. The one paramount thought in my mind after getting my deer was that the game wardens would come into the woods and take me out. Being alone and having no one to talk the matter over with, I turned this thing over and over in my mind. I imagined all kinds of things. I felt as if I were being hunted. The thought got hold of me so that I began to neglect myself. I camped anywhere and everywhere. I said to myself, "What is the use of building a home only to have the game wardens come along and find me as soon as it is finished?"

During those ten days I lived in a state so that I could move any minute. I wandered from place to place, always watching for men who might be after me, and I saw some men during those days, but they did not see me. In all I saw four or five. Every strange sound I heard startled me. I would think, "There they are again," and I would go back to my lean-to to see if they had been there.

The idea that I was hunted brought out all the animal in me. I acted just as a deer would act. At night I slept in such a way that I could not be surprised from the rear. In a word, just as the deer does, I faced my back tracks. If any one had approached me I would have seen him before he could have seen me.

One afternoon a party of three men passed within ten feet of where I was hiding. They were talking about me.

Can the reader imagine how I would have felt, after having lived two months in the woods as I had lived, to have come forth from the forest to meet my friends and have half a dozen game wardens step up and place me under arrest and take my skins away from me? I said to myself, "I will beat these wardens at their own game if possible."

In the wilderness I had no one to ask advice of. I had to settle everything for myself. So I began to reason that if I went to Canada the wardens would not molest me in any way. I felt revengeful. I didn't care what the Canadian officials did to me as long as I escaped the Maine authorities. I would have undergone anything rather than be taken by game wardens in the woods.

After my decision to go to Canada I knew I must notify my friends of my intention. The night I started for Canada I was a little dubious as to the exact date of the month it might be. A week before I had lost my calendar stick and was carrying the days in my head. I knew I wasn't ahead of time, but was not sure about being one day late.

Placing on a stump a roll of birch bark on which I had written that I would meet my friends on the shore of Lake Megantic, Canada, on Oct. 4, I went back into the woods. Following a trail to the left to a point about a mile and a half from the camp, I then swung in, walking straight in through the camp yard. There was a light in one of the cabins, and as I passed I could hear the boys playing cards. Over at one side I saw two men going up one of the trails with a lantern, but they did not see me. I continued on my way down to the Spencer stream, which I forded, and then went on a few miles until I had crossed the Kibby stream.

Then I headed up Spotted Spruce mountain, where I spent the night. I didn't have any fire or lean-to. I simply curled up in my bearskin at the foot of a tree and slept as best I could. It had begun to rain hard. My mind was filled with wardens, and I didn't stop for anything to eat that night. I remember that I dreamed for the first time. I thought that I was talking to some one and in my dream I would say to myself, "I have gone and talked with some one, and now it is all off." Then I would wake up and be mighty glad it was not true.

From Spotted Spruce I drifted along down on to the slope of Old Snow mountain, over Hurricane mountain, where half a mile beyond I came to Douglas pond. Boundary mountain was straight ahead, and I made for it. It was not until I had crossed the line that I drew my first free breath. They couldn't touch me now!

The rain hadn't abated in the slightest, and again I tried to sleep with my back against a tree. It was impossible to go on, as I could not see my hand before my face. I had eaten once that day—early in the morning—when I had shot a partridge with my bow and arrow. Not being able to get a fire in the wet, I had eaten it raw. I ate nothing that night.

The next day was the 4th of October. I was not sure of this, believing it might be Sunday, the 5th.

I still had some distance to travel, and after going on for two or three hours I heard the distant whistle of a train away off somewhere ahead. I followed the direction of the sound, and about 4 o'clock that afternoon I saw before me through the trees the tracks of the Canadian Pacific railroad.

A tramcar with three men aboard rolled up the track. As I came out into the open and saw them I rushed back in among the trees so that they wouldn't see me. Then I laughed to myself when I thought what I had done. I had simply jumped back out of habit. My time was up in the forest, and I did not need to fear human beings any more.

Some distance back in the woods I had donned my skins, not knowing exactly whom I might meet.

When the tram had passed I came out of the woods and made my way to the railroad tracks. There was no one in sight now. I started along up the track, wondering how the people would receive me.

Suddenly ahead of me up the track I saw a little girl about fourteen years old. She caught sight of me and stopped stock still. In spite of what she saw she held her ground and watched me approach. I wouldn't have blamed her if she had run back just then because I must have been an unusual picture in my skins.

Coming closer, I asked her how far it was to Megantic. A torrent of French greeted me. I knew a little of the language and put the question again. She told me Megantic was about seven miles farther along. I tell you, the sound of her voice sounded good to me. She was the first human being I had spoken to in two months. Rather than continue on her way, she turned about and walked down the tracks with me toward Megantic.

THE SUPPER TABLE.

SUPPER MENU.
Ham Quenelle.
Tomato Croquettes.
Watercress.
Tea Biscuit.
Lemon Souffle.
Cocoa or Chocolate.

NO matter what may be its deficiences, a supper table supplied with good tea biscuit and butter is accorded indulgence. The supper recipes suggested are good ones:

Brown in Quick Oven.

Tea Biscuit.—Mix together one quart of flour, one teaspoonful each of salt and sugar and one-half teaspoonful of baking powder. Then rub in two tablespoonfuls of shortening. When well mixed rub through a coarse sieve. Add one cupful and a half of fine, stale breadcrumbs. Into two cupfuls and a half of thick, sour milk sift one almost rounding teaspoonful of soda and stir quickly into the dry mixture, using only enough of the milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured board, knead lightly for a moment, then roll out one inch thick. Cut in small rounds, place in a greased pan, brush the tops with milk and brown in a quick oven.

With Cream Sauce.

Ham Quenelle.—Mince fine cold boiled ham to make one and a half cupfuls and mix with one and a half cupfuls of potatoes, sliced thin. Arrange the ham and potatoes in alternate layers, seasoning the ham with a dash of pepper. When all the ham and potatoes are in the dish, pour in slowly a pint of cream sauce to which have been added two beaten eggs. Let the sauce mix thoroughly with the ham and potato. Then cover the surface with buttered breadcrumbs and place in an oven for fifteen minutes to brown. Serve hot.

Fry in Hot Fat.

Tomato Croquettes.—Cook together for twenty minutes a pint or a half can of tomatoes, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one sprig of parsley, half a bay leaf, three cloves, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne; then rub through a sieve. Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, blend in five tablespoonfuls of flour, add the strained tomato and stir and cook for ten minutes. When cold, shape the mixture into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs, let stand one or more hours and fry in deep hot fat.

Baked Golden Brown.

Lemon Souffle.—Take yolks of four eggs, grated rind and juice of one lemon, one cupful of sugar, whites of four eggs. Beat the yolks until thick and lemon colored, add the sugar gradually and continue beating, then add the lemon rind and the juice. Cut and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until dry, turn into a buttered pudding dish, set in a pan of hot water and bake thirty-five or forty minutes. Serve with or without sauce.

She Turned and Followed It.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Butterfly That Was Beautiful And Useful.

"I SAW the most gorgeous butterflies today, daddy," said Evelyn one evening. "They had more colors than Solomon or Joseph's coat."

"I'm much obliged to you, Evelyn," said daddy. "You have put me in mind of a story, and I didn't really know what I was going to tell you children tonight.

"Well, this story is about how a butterfly brought good luck to a little girl.

"This little girl was about three years old, and she was an only child. She lived with her papa and mamma on a farm out in the beautiful country, for I think the country is beautiful whether it's in the summer or in the winter. Besides, winter gives that great artist, Jack Frost, an opportunity to draw funny pictures on the panes.

"When this story happened, however, it was in the summer, when the grain stood up golden and tall and the birds sang and the sky was a lovely blue. It was early in the afternoon, and everything was so beautiful out of doors that this naughty little girl ran away, as little girls will and little boys too.

"Her mamma was busy with the housework, as mammas are apt to be most of the time, and didn't see her go. She wandered down in the field near the house and through the tall grass, and she picked the yellow buttercups and the white daisies and listened to the breeze singing the sweetest song that ever was, and by and by she found some little red berries—lucky they were not poisonous berries—and ate them, and she was so little that you could just see the top of her pink sunbonnet in the tall grass, and none of the men working in the field noticed her at all.

"She went on and on forever so long a time till the sun had begun to get low, and then she came to the edge of a deep brook hidden in the tall grass and ever so far from her home, and in another instant she would have stepped off into it.

"But just at that moment a beautiful butterfly flew past her, fluttering toward her home. She turned and followed it. Every little while it rested on a flower, and then it would sail away again, and it led her home. What do you think of that? Her mother had been very much frightened and was so glad when she told her she had followed the butterfly home. But her mamma didn't know that the butterfly had saved her life."

Jack looked puzzled. "But, daddy," he said, "if the mamma didn't know it and the little girl didn't know it, how did you know it?"

"Oh," said daddy, laughing, "perhaps the butterfly told me!"

"Now I've got you!" giggled Jack. "Butterflies can't talk. Daddy, that's a madeup story."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Destruction of the Home.

This Suffragist again writes in The Sun of April 5, 1914: "As predicted of woman's suffrage today, it would destroy the family, etc." "We can afford to smile at the alarms and false predictions. We believe we are better wives and mothers now."

The stern facts and figures of the unemotional U. S. Census contradict her and prove that "these alarms" are already realized and the "false predictions" also. Both are not "theories," but painfully existing conditions against which the Anti-Suffragists are battling—the ever present danger of disorganization of the HOME. Ridiculing these earnest women defenders of this dearest possession of civilization built up by their sex is not argument. Here we shall show it as a boomerang for the detractors.

Divorce is by all accepted as a true manifestation of the tendency among the people to upturn the HOME, and FAMILY LIFE. The following data must prove beyond cavil that in the suffrage States divorce is rampant and enormously preponderant over the non-suffrage States. Mrs. Whitehouse writes in The Sun of April 12, 1914: "There has been time enough in these States, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah and Idaho, to show how this question (divorce) works out." "In Wyoming the ratio of divorces to population is six times lower than in the rest of the United States." These figures are not found in the census report in my possession, though it is the latest. But its incorrectness may be proved by another statement following it: "UTAH HAS THE LOWEST DIVORCE RATE IN THE UNION." Let us see what Bulletin 96 on Marriage and Divorce says on page 69 of this latest published census: "The rate of divorce per 100,000 married population is: In New York, 60; UTAH, 275; in Wyoming, 361; Colorado, 409; Idaho, 347." If this Suffragist writer's figures and statements are as correct as this with regard to the Virtuous status of Utah, her whole pretentious argument must go to the scrap heap. For some reason this ingenious advocate tries to defend Colorado against its large divorce rate. "The large floating population of the Eastern States attracted to Colorado," she writes, "its liberal divorce laws, serve to raise the divorce rate." She does not care to remember that the census was taken in the year 1900. Ingenious, but not logical!

We are content to deduct all the divorces of that year, say one-tenth of the whole, to meet this flimsy objection, and we would still have 405 divorces per 100,000 in Colorado against 45 in New York!

Were it not too bewildering to cite a larger array of figures it would be more easy to show the irrefutable contrary to this advocate's dictum: "Give women more political and economic independence—and the divorce rate will decrease itself." The latter has been achieved in the suffrage States, and the result is horrible! "The increase of divorce rate," she claims, "can be attributed to the greater freedom given to women." Hence it may be consistently charged to the suffrage in the States she has brought forth as examples of the contrary result.

Suffrage "Makes Better Wives."

is claimed by this able advocate of the cause. To my painful surprise I discovered that among the causes of divorce, adultery is assigned more frequently to the wife than to the husband. During the period from 1887 to 1906 adultery was given as a cause in women in 90,000 cases, and for men in 62,000 cases, while in all other cases assigned the men were in great preponderance. (See page 31 of Bulletin 96.). The contention of the Suffragists who always deal in futures, telling us what will hapen are disproved by what has already happened and is daily happening.

The claim is thus shown to be fallacious by the fact that suffrage has not produced a higher type of woman, a more contented household, etc. This census clearly indicates that the same spirit of discontent that has destroyed these homes has asserted itself in the desire to change the constitution so radically as to more than double the number, without improving the quality of the vote.

This makes the Anti-Suffragists wary and anxious, no matter how much their earnest but deluded sisters may deride their attitude.

Despite the ardent protestations of those Suffragists who arenot extreme, the demonstration furnished by the above facts, not theories or prophecies, prove that all Feminists and some Suffragists mean to bring about "readjustment of sexual relations" (Olive Shreiner) and "freedom to bestow love elsewhere after marriage as before" (Miss Olcott, of the State Suffrage Association). Would it not be well for trustees of women's colleges to investigate the spread of these revolutionary doctrines by Feminist and Suffragist women teachers? This idea obtruded itself when I heard a few days ago a young woman relate that she had met a former classmate who is now a teacher in the public schools. Being informed that her friend had married a man after a very short acquaintance, this professional young woman criticised such hasty action. The reply was that the matter is not so serious as she assumed; that she had "economic independence," and if her husband did not suit her she could always support herself.

Summary.

Taking one example from those cited in the text may demonstrative the untenability of each of this author's propositions:

1. Men make this a "Sex Question"—"It is a sex war, who doubts it?" (Miss Kent in Century Magazine, Nov., 1913.)

2. "Woman needs the vote to exert her utmost powers" is disproved by history, from Eve to the conquest of the ten Suffrage States.

3. "Suffrage will not break up the home" and "Man will rise with woman"—disprove by the preponderance of divorce in the suffrage States.

4. "Woman must be emancipated from"

(a) "Matrimonial slavery"—she is freer far than the Biblical wife.

(b) "From economic slavery"—Olive Shreiner confesses that every door has been opened to her by man. She has entered every calling from janitress to physician or aviator.

(c) "From moral slavery"—She has "free power of selection in love" until marriage; more no decent woman should want.

(d) "From mental slavery"—None hinder her from aspiring if she can to become a Raphael, a Wagner, an Edison, a Mayo or even a Worth.

5. "Taxation without representation is not justice"—Thousands of men in the District of Columbia and minors and foreigners accept it as the law without protest.

6. Feminism and suffrage are classed together by this author—The speeches and deeds of leading Suffragists warrant this.

The Suffragist to whom the above is an answer is Mrs. Norman deR. Whitehouse.

By JUDIC CHOLLET

Every variation of the overblouse is fashionable. This bodice shows a very pretty one and allows such a variety of sleeve and of neck finish as to make it adapted both to evening and afternoon occasions.

On the figure taffeta is used over net, with lace making the sleeves and trimming, but for the overblouse can be used any pretty seasonable material and for the underbodice net chiffon, crepe de chine and anything that is soft and light of weight. Lace makes the prettiest finish for the neck and front, but the soft sleeves can be made either of flouncing, as in this instance, or of material finished on its edges.

For the medium size the bodice will require one and one-eighth yards of net thirty-six inches wide, with three and three-quarter yards of lace nine inches wide for trimming and sleeves and one and one-eighth yards twenty-seven inches wide for the overblouse.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 8321, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

SAYS CANNING COSTS NO MORE EVEN WITH SUGAR PRICE UP

Peter Neuman, of Neuman Brothers, in discussing this morning the present large amount of fruit in the market, which he said was greater than for many years, said he could not understand why some people were complaining about not being able to do any canning because of the high price of sugar. "If they would stop to think about the matter," said Mr. Neuman, "they would realize that it will not cost a cent more to do the canning this year than has been the case for many seasons past, and it probably will be cheaper. It is true that sugar has gone up a cent and a half a pound, but on the other hand the enormous fruit crop, the greatest in years, has brought the price of the most needed part of the canning operations down to about half of what it has been for many years. Take peaches for example. The same kind of fruit that was sold for $1.75 a basket last year can be bought for half of that money now, and the total cost of canning, even with sugar up, will make the net price for the work lower than for some time."

The display of fruits in all of the stores is probably as fine as has ever been seen in this city, and the price of peaches especially, is very low at all stores for the best grades of fruit.

—Roth & Company will close their market all day on Labor Day.

—After this month our store will be open evenings until 9 o'clock. M. Abrams.—Adv. ***

CHANGED MIND WHEN PARENT APPEARED

Winfield Scott Didn't Mind the Court's Accusations, But Mother Was Different.

Winfield Scott, a twelve-year-old colored boy was before Judge DeMeza this morning, charged with purloining a pocketbook from Jennie Bundy, and he stoutly proclaimed his innocence in court. His mother appeared after court was over, and Winfield changed his mind under the watchful eye of his parent, and told where he had hidden the money.

Winfield saw Miss Bundy leave her bicycle on the porch of a house on West Fourth street, near Plainfield avenue, last night, and he also noticed that her pocketbook was attached to the handlebars. Upon investigation, when the Bundy woman had gone into the house, he found that there was $8.50 in the pocketbook, and a rosary. He purloined the book, and in a generous moment gave 57 cents to Lorenzo McCray, telling McCray where he got the money, but also instructing him to say that he (Scott) had won it in a crap game.

When Miss Bundy reported her loss to the police, Sergeant Higgins got busy, and soon had McCray under arrest, as the latter was investing his new found wealth in ice cream soda for friends, having 35 cents left when Higgins arrived on the scene. McCray first told about the crap game, but thought better of it when he was told he would be locked up, and he gave the police the information which resulted in the arrest of Scott.

In court this morning Scott denied absolutely taking the money, but after adjournment, his mother appeared on the scene, and he admitted the theft with some variations of Mc Cray's story. He told the police that he had hid the money behind a barrel, and with Patrolman Welsh went to the place and produced a little over $7. Judge DeMeza will dispose of the case tomorrow morning.

WALTER DOBBINS WAS DISCOVERED

The following story appeared in the Thursday issue of the Stroudsburg (Pa.) Times:

"Mr. and rMs. Walter C. Dobbins, of Plainfield, N. J., were recently married. They have been stopping at the Maplehurst and left today for a two weeks' honeymoon, after which the groom will take up his work as city editor of the Plainfield Daily Press. A jolly crowd of boarders escorted them to the train this morning, singing and romping."

Mr. Dobbins and his wife have been spending their vacation at Stroudsburg and admit being showered with rice and other appropriate missles when they were leaving the place Thursday morning. When they arrived in this city, Thursday noon, the couple were still shaking rice and confetti from their clothes, but refused to tell from where it came. The week previous to Mr. and Mrs. Dobbins' arrivall at the resort, their seventeen-year-old daughter spent her vacation at the same place.

MISS BESLER ASSISTED IN HARVESTING GRAIN

Was In French Town Where All the Men Went to War, According to Report.

Assisting to harvest a crop of grain in France is said to have been the experience of Miss Helen Besler, daughter of President William G. Besler, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, who lives on West Seventh street, in this city.

The story is tolyd in a letter which Miss Marjorie Luden, daughter of a wealthy manufacturer of Reading, Pa., wrote to her parents.

Miss Besler, and a group of college friends, including Miss Luden, were traveling abroad, when the war broke out, being at Coucy le Chateau, in France, with Mrs. John Clarence Lee, of Philadelphia. The place is about sixty miles from Paris. Miss Luden told of many unusual experiences,but none more interesting than that of harvesting. Many neighbors of Mrs. Lee were obliged to go to war, leaving no men about to harvest the crops, which were all ready to be gathered. The horses were all bought up by the government and as a result all of the women of the neighborhood had to pitch in and harvest the crop by hand, in which work they were assisted by four young American women, including Miss Besler.

SEEK EMPLOYMENT FOR HOMELESS GROSZMAN PUPIL

Howard Kortizer, a seventeen-year old boy, is in the care of the police, and a position is being sought for him. He was for three years an inmate of the Groszman School at Watchung, but ran away from that institution two months ago. He went to New York and secured temporary employment, but returned to town Saturday, later applying to the police for lodging. He told Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning, what appeared to be a straightforward story, claiming that his father had died about a year ago, and his stepmother was in Chicago. He says that while his father lived $800 a year was paid to the school for caring for him, but since the parent's death he had been compelled to work for his board up to the time he ran away. Asked by Judge DeMeza how he had been treated he claimed that "they didn't treat him nice at all," and that it had been impossible for him to get letters to his step-mother. He said that the food was pretty good, but tiresome. He also claimed that he had a whole trunk full of clothes, but the school authorities would not give them up. Captain Flynn said that he had called up the school, and was told the boy was not to be trusted, and that there were no clothes there. The court ordered Flynn to make an investigation of the case, as the boy insisted that if he were permitted to go to the home he could show a whole trunk full of things that belonged to him. He claimed that they were being retained for some future pupil.

The authorities are caring for the boy, and will endeavor to secure employment for him in town, as he seems to be fully able to care for himself.

HOWARD F. WOOLSTON TO SEEK NOMINATION

Files His Petition As Councilmanic Candidate In Borough.

Politics in the borough developed more interest today, when Howard F. Woolston, of Mountain avenue, secretary of the Woolston and Buckle Company, of this city, filed his petition as a candidate seeking the Republican nomination for councilmanic honors. The petition contained seventy names of voters of all sections of North Plainfield. From some quarters, it has been intimated that Mr. Woolston's candidacy is to opopse one of the two present incumbents who are seeking re-nomination this fall.

Edmund Rushmore, who is at present a member of the North Plainfield Council, filed his petition some days ago, while Julius Stahl has his petitions in circulation at present and will have it filed before the time expires. Republicans who have not been in entire harmony with the administration of Mayor Clark have been discussing candidates for the local offices for some time, and it has been indicated that Mr. Woolston's candidacy is one of the results.

A petition endorsing Edmund Rushmore as a candidate for Republican County Executive Committeeman from the second district of the borough was also filed this morning with Clerk Charles M. Dolliver. Several petitions endorsing candidates for constable and justices of the peace are in circulation at present and will undoubtedly be filed tomorrow. Rumors concerning the putting of a local ticket in the field by the Prohibitionists have been going the rounds, with John Goodwin as a prospective candidate for councilman on that ticket. As the Prohibition party has no primary box, petitions naming candidates for the ticket do not have to be filed until later in the campaign.

It is reported that an international commission has taken charge of the Albanian Government. Prince William Wied, King of Albania, according to a report from Berlin, is planning to leave Albania today to join his German regiment.

Antwerp, Aug. 31—An official announcement issued here today confirms the reports that the German troops have evacuated Diest to the northeast of Brussels.

Washington, Aug. 31.—All Americans will be out of Russia by the end of this week, the American Charge de Affaires at St. Petersburg cabled to the State department today. Mrs. Henry S. Garretson and daughter, Miss Lillian, of Front street, have returned from a two weeks' sojourn at Lake George.

Mrs. C. F. Richards, of New Market road, is spending a week with friends at South Norwalk, Conn.

Mrs. Richard M. Ryan and daughters, the Misses Jennie and Margaret, and Miss Mary Logan, have returned from Peake's Island, Me., where they enjoyed themselves for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald R. Brakeley, of New York city, were entertained by Mr. Brakeley's mother, Mrs. Helen Brakeley, of Front street, over the week-end.

Mrs. Josephine Terry, of New Market road, who returned on Saturday from a two weeks' outing at Budd's Lake, spent yesterday in Plainfield as the guest of her son, Harry L. Terry, of Seventh street.

Miss Josephine Dietz, of Brooklyn, is spending three weeks at the home of Frank Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davenport, of Plainfield, have rented and moved into the vacant apartment in the Alvah Gray building at the corner of Washington and North avenues.

LOSE CHAMPIONSHIP.

E. Jasper Maurer and Harrison E. Giddes were dethroned as tennis champions of the O. Z. T. Fraternity on the O. Z. T.'s Madison avenue courts, Saturday afternoon, by William W. Giddes and Edgar Starker, who defeated them 9-7, 6-3, 3-6. The feature of the match was the serving of W. W. Giddes.

The Misses Lillian and Ida Palmantter, of Mountainview Terrace, have been entertaining friends from Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ozmun, Grandon Neighbor and sister, Miss Jeannette, Mrs. Robert Craig and Charles S. Day enjoyed a day's outing at Lake Hopatcong, yesterday.

Miss Gertrude Bowlby, of Washington avenue, returned yesterday from White Lake, N. Y., where she enjoyed a two weeks' vacation.

ENTERTAIN MANY GUESTS.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Quinn, of Prospect avenue, were extensive entertainers over the week-end. On Sunday they had as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Emaney, of Roselle; Thomas Donegan and family, of New York city; Charles Higgins, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Henry Whelton, of Roselle Park. On Saturday evening, Jame Hall, who is having a tryout with the Yanks, was a visitor at their home.

Mrs. George Doerr, of Brooklyn, who has been spending two weeks in the borough as the guest of her mother, Mrs. George Lee, of Grove street, returned home yesterday.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNCIL.

Hervey B. Walters and George Voehl are the Democratic candidates for the two vacancies that will exist in the Common Council when the terms of Councilmen John J. Bolard and William Shively expire on December 31 this year. The petitions for their candidacy will be filed with Borough Clerk W. P. Deering this evening by Democratic Committeemen Willard N. Apgar and Thomas Reynolds. It was only after the recognized persuasive arts of the committeemen in endeavoring to get Councilmen Shively and Bolard, who are both Democrats, to have their names re-entered, were exhausted that the two candidates were unanimously agreed upon. Messrs. Shively and Bolard both felt that it was only right and proper from a personal, as well as a municipal standpoint that someone else should have a chance. If Mr. Voehl and Mr. Walters are nominated by the Democratic popular primary ballot and are then in turn elected on November 4 the borough, it is believed, will be fortunate in getting two men peculiarly equipped and fitted to fill the shoes of the retiring gentlemen. Mr. Walters is a successful railroad man and is well known and respected, having been born and brought up here. He resides on Washington avenue, south of the railroad tracks. Mr. Voehl resides on Washington avenue north of the tracks. He came to Dunellen from Plainfield about four years ago, where he made a fortune out of the manufacture and sale of breadstuffs and is now living in retirement.

HALF MILE IN 1:14.

"Midnight Herr," the crack pacer owned by John Case, of Grove street, covered a half mile in the fast time of 1:14 on the Peter Ozmun race track down country, on Saturday afternoon. George Jenner was driving Mr. Case's horse at the time.

MOVE INTO NEW HOUSE.

The household effects of Arthur Duke and family were moved on Saturday by Isaac V. Smalley from the Frank T. Farrell house on Penfield place to the new house on Washington avenue which Mr. Duke recently purchased from John P. Fenner.

ENJOYED A SAIL.

A party of young folks made up of Hazel Watson, Emily Nelson, Edward Smaney, of Roselle, and Emil Nelson enjoyed a sail up the Hudson as far as Hastings and return on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Joseph G. Waglow and family, of Plainfield, who have been visiting Mrs. Waglow's parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, of New Market, returned to their home last evening.

Mrs. James Wharton and children, of Plainfield, were entertained by Mrs. Wharton's mother, Mrs. Frank Reynolds, of Center street, yesterday.

William Thompson, of Prospect avenue, has returned from a week's visit at the home of his sister, Mrs. L. N. Wood, of Bound Brook.

PLAN AUTO TRIP.

Mayor and Mrs. E. B. Latham expect to leave tomorrow on a ten days' automobile trip through Connecticut. Among the places that they plan to visit is the Mayor's boyhood home near Hartford.

Clarence M. Haight, of New Market road, has returned from his sad errand to California. He went there to accompany the body of his partner's brother home. The unfortunate one was killed by an automobile truck.

MISS LINDA BEAVERS.

The remains of Miss Linda Beavers, a niece of Mrs. Martha B. Cole, of Front street, was brought to the borough by train from New York city last evening. The deceased, who was 59 years old, passed away in the Belleview Hospital at noon yesterday, after an illness since January with diabetes and tuberculosis. The funeral services, Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating, will be held at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, at Mrs. Cole's home on Front street. The deceased besides Mrs. Cole, leaves three cousins, Mrs. Alvah Gray, Mrs. W. R. Hetfield and Mrs. Baldwin, all of Dunellen. Interment will be at Hillside cemetery, Plainfield.

WILL RETURN HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Thompson, who have been visiting Mr. Thompson's mother, Mrs. H. D. Thompson, of Prospect avenue, have gone to Jamaica, B. W. I., where Mr. Thompson has large business interests. They had expected to remain in the borough until the first of October, but since the war has broken out all Germans landing or residing at Jamaica have been arrested and for this and the other reasons incident to the war, Mr. Thompson deemed it wise to terminate his visit.

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF.

The case of Mrs. Sarah E. Huff, of North avenue, plaintiff, vs. Thomas Burns, of the Brower farm, defendant, in which Mrs. Huff was suing Burns for a bill on account of groceries, was moved by Judge Rene P. F. von Minden in the borough hall, this morning. William W. Giddes, the local attorney, represented Mrs. Huff. At the time appointed for the hearing the defendant had failed to show up and the plaintiff was given a judgment of $87.92 plus costs.

GAME POSTPONED.

The baseball game which was to have been played between a nine picked from the boarders of the Mansion House and the Dunellen amateurs, on Maurer Oval, was postponed Saturday afternoon on account of wet grounds, the respective contestants spending the afternoon in bowling on the Presbyterian alleys instead.

SLEPT FOR SEVEN INNINGS.

George Zink, Valentine McLoughlin, Jack McMahon and George Zink, Jr., witnessed the exciting fifteen-inning baseball game between the "Tabs" and the Singer All-Stars, at Elizabethport, yesterday. That is all of the party with the exception of Valentine McLoughlin witnessed it in its entirety. Valentine went to sleep at the end of the third inning and was awakened at the commencing of the eleventh when someone nudged him and asked him what inning it was. "The fourth," replied Valentine. "You are wrong, it is the commencing of the eleventh," said Jack McMahon. A hot argument ensued, which bid fair to end in a fistic encounter when a nearby fan pointing at the scoreboard, apprised Valentine that he must have been asleep for seven innings. Then everybody had the laugh at the expense of Valentine, who refuses to go to any more games.

LOST FOR AN HOUR.

The two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jablon, of North avenue, was lost for over an hour on Saturday night. The little fellow was given a banana by his father a little before 8 o'clock as he started for the Barfuss garage, where he was to work all night. "Now go up stairs to mamma," the father said as he handed his little son the banana. Instead of going upstairs the child continued along North avenue into Bound Brook road until he reached the Lytle residence near Gallagher's Corner, where his cries brought Mrs. Lytle out of the house. "What do you want?" Mrs. Lytle asked. "I want my mamma," the little fellow whimpered. Not being able to find out from whence the astray lad had come, Mrs. Lytle took the little fellow upon her porch, where he was found asleep in her arms a short time later by Marshal Tarpey, who had been scouring the town upon the instigation of the frantic mother.

After waiting all summer and expecting to go every week, the two Boy Scout troops in Scotch Plains will have to go back to school this fall without having gone on a camping trip. Mr. Batterson, former supervisor of the parish house, was unable to leave his business in New York to take the trip with the troops, of which he is scoutmaster, and no one else was found who could go in his place. The Scouts have had to content themselves this summer with a few hikes over the mountain and back.

Fishing in the "Back Pond" is the best at the present time that it has been in several years. Henry Swebach caught a four pound bass last Saturday and "shinies" are also running well. Parties of local fishermen go over to the Passaic river to fish every week-end.

Miss Edith Jahn has returned to her home in Scotch Plains after visiting relatives in Lebanon, for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kaufman have returned to their home in Jersey City after visiting their son, James Kaufman, of the township.

Beginning with the coming Sunday the fall schedule in the local churches will go into effect. The sessions of the Sunday-school, which have been discontinued during August, will start again and the morning service in the Methodist church, which has been omitted for a number of Sundays, will again be held at the usual hour.

The Lincoln Social Club, which was organized last winter in the borough, has disbanded owing to the existance of two factions in the club. One party wished that the club should only be a social organization while the other was trying to use it to gain their political aim.

Preparations for the celebration of the "Navivity of the Blessed Virgin" by the italians of Scotch Plains on Labor Day are nearly complete and will include a program of all sorts of games in the afternoon and fireworks in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tull have returned to their home on North avenue after spending the past two weeks along the coast of Maine.

W. J. Green has returned to his home in Brooklyn, after being registered at the "Homestead" for several weeks.

George Rainer has been appointed by Judge Connolly to fill the vacancy on the borough election board.

The plumbers union of Plainfield held its annual clambake at Lee's Hotel in Scotch Plains, Saturday afternoon.

In the absence of the Rev. J. Madison Hare, who is attending the eleventh annual convention of the United Spanish War Veterans at Louisville, Ky., this week, the services in the Baptist church yesterday were in charge of the Rev. Albert King Morris, pastor of the Bergen Baptist church at Jersey City. Miss Griffin was in charge of the B. Y. P. U. meeting and took as her topic "The Opportunity of Women in the New China."

Services in the Methodist church yesterday, were conducted by John Wade, who leaves tomorrow for the western Methodist conference. His sermon was in the nature of a farewell address. Miss Katherine Clark led the Epworth League meeting, taking as her subject "An evening with Charles Wesley and his Hymns."

Miss S. D. Green, of Peekskill, N. Y., has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, of North avenue.

So far there has been no candidates for the two vacancies on the Borough

'Plains & Fanwood.

The peaceful village of Scotch Plains will be rudely disturbed tomorrow by the roaring of lions, trumpeting of elephants and shouts of the peanut man, when a real circus is coming to town. There will be the parade in the morning and two performances, afternoon and evening, rain or shine. The side shows will be there in great array.

The date for the special election set by the Township Board of Education, when the township voters will be asked to appropriate $16,500 for the building of a new school in the "Graceland" section has been set for tomorrow evening in School No. 1. The polls will open at 8 o'clock and remain open for one hour and as much longer as necessary to enable all present to vote. If the voters are in favor of the project work will be started so as to have the structure ready early in the spring. Work will also be started this week on the partitioning of the assembly room in School No. 1, so as to have it completed by one week from tomorrow, when school re-opens for the winter term. The Board of Education will meet in School No. 1, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, to take action on the result of the special election.

Frank Lee has returned to his home on Front street, after spending the past month at Keansburg.

Richard Hatfield has returned to his home on Stout avenue, after visiting Norman and Maurice Mathews, former residents of this place, but now residing in East Orange.

A TIP FOR PLAINFIELD.

The Trenton Times draws a lesson for the merchants of that city from an example set by the business men of Dallas, Texas, which might also be of advantage to Plainfield merchants. Dallas, the Times says, has been cleaning itself up and is now taking considerable pride in what it has accomplished. There seems to be some justification for this feeling of pride, since quite a number of Texas cities have asked of Dallas, "How did she do it?" Dallas has made an official reply to these hundreds of inquiries.

The movement in Dallas has been conducted under the name of a pure food campaign, but its scope has been much broader than its name would imply. An official of the city's Chamber of Commerce is quoted as saying that the pure food campaign there, launched last December, had given Dallas thousands of dollars' worth of publicity. While that can hardly be regarded as the main purpose of such a campaign, it is the point that the Dallas News picks out for emphasis. In another sense, publicity plays an important part in the campaign. This is the publicity given to stores and sections of the city for putting themselves in order and meeting the requirements of the inspection committee.

There is an honor roll for clean stores. Score cards are carried around by the committee, which after being filled out, are left with the stores visited. There are gradings on the cards for clean sidewalks as well as for clean windows and clean floors, and for attractive show windows and attractive arrangement of goods. A feature of these inspections is that there must be no criticism of any store or merchant, even when the merchant refuses to have his store inspected. The desired result is obtained by giving praise where it is found to be due and in remaining silent where there is nothing to praise. To this policy and to the publicity given through the newspapers and by posting the score cards conspicuously in the stores the success of the campaign is due. Rivalry and pride are excited, and the merchants also soon learn that business hangs largely on approval by the committees. The inspections are made by women and are repeated monthly or oftener.

For the residence sections the same general principles are employed, but the inspections are made by committees of men. These sections are blocked off and the women living in each block are organized to look after its appearance and sanitary condition. The work of the committees here, as among the stores, is given all the publicity possible. This paragraph from the statement about the campaign prepared by the Chamber of Commerce of Dallas puts forth a proposition that seems reasonably reliable—

"If properly appealed to, the woman in the rented house will enter the campaign as enthusiastically as the one living in her own home. Every woman wants to have her place neat and clean and very woman with the proper encouragement can be enlisted in a movement of this kind, especially when she knows that her failure to clean up will deprive her neighbors of a chance of winning a high score for their block."

Dallas finds that this campaign has worked out well, and other cities in Texas are so impressed with it that they are planning to follow the example Dallas has set. The plan might be applicable, with necessary modifications, to all parts of the country. It might, however, easily fail anywhere. It would be necessary for those in charge of the plan to employ tact and discretion, if they woud avoid raising fatal antagonisms.

Some idea of the opportunities for American trade in South America may be gained from a circular issued by the Department of Commerce regarding the imports into Brazil during the year ending June 30, 1914. Here are the principal articles for which there is demand in the South American field: Arms and ammunition, cars, automobiles, cotton goods pharmaceutical preparations, electrical apparatus, cutlery, machinery leather, printing paper, perfumeries, tin plate, soap and wearing apparel, all of which are bought in large quantities, and in practically every case are obtained more largely from England, Germany and France, than from the United States. The Government's "Daily Consular and Trade Reports" are also presenting cable despatches from South America which indicate the special needs of these markets owing to the supplies from Europe being cut off.

The most gratifying bit of political news that has been circulated of late was the information that the Progressive leaders have comes to their senses and will support Senator Carlton B. Pierce for re-election. Mr. Pierce has a record which will bear the closest investigation, both as an Assemblyman and Senator, and has fathered bills which will remain on the statute books for many years, benefitting the whole public. His record is one which entitles him to re-election. At the same time, should Mayor Percy H. Stewart be chosen as his successor, the people of the county can be equally well assured that he would work for the best interests of all his constituents.

The kicker will always be found That accounts for the few grumblers who are rushing into print about the "awful treatment" that is accorded to returning Americans on the boats bringing them back. Most people are pleased to be able to get any accommodations.

War query: If the larder of an English battleship contains 50 whole cheeses, how many are required on a German boat?

MUCH TIRE TROUBLE ON WEEKLY OUTING

Plainfield Motorcycle Club Enjoys a Ride to Bradley Beach.

The Sunday run of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club, yesterday, was to Bradley Beach, and many of those who went had plenty of tire trouble. There were eleven in the party that started shortly after 8:30 and they did not reach their destination until after 1 o'clock. Numerous punctures and the heat were responsible for the slow time that was made. All of the members seemed to pick up nails.

Dinner was served at Bradley Beach and many of the party took in Asbury Park in the afternoon. After a few very enjoyable hours, they started on the return trip at 5:30 and came home by way of New Brunswick, stopping at that place for another dinner. They arrived home by moonlight.

Those who took the trip were Mr. and Mrs. Horner, Mr. and Mrs. L. Hampson and son, Miss Siggins, H. Alberts, H. Rupert, C. Giles, L. Renninger and E. Hampson.

LET GO BY COURT.

Joseph Wood and Andrew Santabarba, who were accused of petty theft by an employe of the carnival company, and were held on Saturday morning pending further investigation were let go by Judge DeMeza this morning, as no one appeared to press the complaint, and the boys denied that they were the guilty parties.

They have a bungalow at that place and will be under the supervision of Miss Eva Terry, a teacher in the borough school last year, who is at the head of this branch. LAST OF UNION SERVICES.

The last of the series of union services which have been held during the course of the summer, was held last evening at the First Baptist church, at which time a large congregation was present. Rev. S. L. Skevington, of Chicago, who occupied the pulpit of that church at the morning service, preached at the service. These services have been well attended throughout the summer, and much interest was manifested. The preachers have been excellent, and churchgoers of this city have been privileged to hear a few of the best speakers in this section of the State.

MOTOR-CYCLIST INJURED.

Edward Anderson, aged 20 years, of Oak Tree, while riding his motorcycle at a lively clip on lower Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, was thrown from his machine, receiving severe cuts and bruises about the body. He was able to reach Muhlenberg Hospital with the assistance of a friend, where "first aid" treatment was given. Later Anderson was able to return to his home. His injuries are not of a serious nature.

DEATH OF MRS. LUTHMAN.

Mrs. Vivian Luthman, wife of Erick Luthman, died yesterday after a lingering illness, in her twenty-ninth year. Besides her husband several children survive. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth street, at 3:30. The interment will be made at Hillside cemetery.

LABOR DAY DECORATIONS.

A large number of business houses and stores in the business section of the city are being decorated with flags and bunting of the national colors in preparation for the great Labor Day demonstration to be held here next Monday. Not since the Charter Day celebration held during the last administration of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, has so many stores been decorated.

BOROUGH COURT NOTES.

Oscar Waldron, August Wolf and Samuel Goff, were hailed before the borough court this morning on charges of being drunk and disorderly. Recorder Fred Hand fined the first two $5 each, while the latter, who is an old offender, secured a sentence of fourteen days in the lockup.

FATHER MILLER'S CONDITION.

Father Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's church, the borough, who has been critically ill for some time, remains in about the same condition. No one is permitted to visit him, but constant inquiries are made daily at the rectory concerning his condition.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LATE RECTOR

Rev. Henry Mesler Comments On Life of Rev. W. E. L. Ward.

A large congregation gathered yesterday morning at St. Stephen's Episcopal church, when a service in memory of the Rev. Warner Esmond Lee Ward, late rector of the church, was held. Nearly the entire membership of the church was present to pay tribute to the one who had been so faithful as rector of the flock.

The service was simple, but impressive throughout. Rev. Henry Mesler, of Kingston, N. Y., who was a life-long friend of the departed rector, preached the sermon, commenting at length upon his life and works. The musical portion of the service was also impressive, the favoriate hymns of Mr. Ward, which were sung at his funeral, being used.

Mr. Ward's service at St. Stephen's church was of comparatively short duration, and yet during his stay here he made many friends not only in the church, but throughout the city. His sudden death was a severe shock to all who knew him.

ONLY ONE AMERICAN PRESENT AT OPENING OF CONCLAVE

Rome, Aug. 31.—Fifty-seven cardinals, constituting the Sacred College, entered today the conclave which will elect the successor to the late Pope Pius X. Cardinals O'Connell and Gibbons, of the United States, and Cardinal Bagin, of Canada, have not yet reached Rome. They are expected Thursday. Cardinal Farley, of New York, is the only American cardinal present.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Rev. Gabriel Reed Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach his farewell sermon at that church Sunday. He will leave this city the following week for Boston, where he will take up the duties at his new charge.

Services will be resumed next Sunday at the First Presbyterian, Trinity Reformed, Congregational, and Swedish Lutheran churches, after having been closed for a portion of the past month.

A benefit entertainment is to be held this evening at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, to which all interested are invited. A program is to be given by the children.

Open air festivals are to be held Thursday evening of this week under the auspices of Trinity Reformed church, to be held at East Front and Church streets, and the St. Peter's German Lutheran church, to be held in the borough.

Contributions of flowers, fruit and delecacies will be received this afternoon and tomorrow morning at the usual hours, at the W. C. T. U. rooms by the Plainfield Flower and Fruit Guild.

ECONOMIC ASPECTS OF WAR COMPARED WITH OTHERS

Recent despatches from various parts of the country show that, on the whole, business is on a solid foundation. Of course, most lines of trade were disturbed by the great war of European nations, but eventually they must all naturally adjust themselves to conditions, whatever they may be.

A century ago a great war was carried on between France and England, in which other countries were more or less involved. After it was over Europe was prostrated, but the neutral United States arose to supremacy in commerce, becoming a maritime power of the world and gaining a sea trade which she held until engaging in a war of her own.

Surely our trade conditions are working some quick changes, as is also the map of Europe. To keep in close touch with geographical changes one must get the Daily Press' official map of Europe. This is designed to show all the strategic points of the present conflict and it contains a wealth of interesting information not to be had from any other source in such a convenient form.

Lew Fields' "Hanky Panky" is as full of mirth and melody as it is possible to crowd two and one-half hours. This big, carefree musical comedy, as devoid of real plot as the sea is of sentiment, seems merely to have been devised to put worry and woe into quarantine. There is not a serious moment in it and it is one rollicking riot from the rise of the curtain. It is composed chiefly of girls, song, girls, dance, girls, clothes, girls, light, girls and then some more girls. And always it is good, clean and wholesome. The spirit of eternal youth and frolic pervades it and freshens everything. All are youthful, both principals and chorus and they enter into their work with a zest that makes it both pleasure and play. They carry all before them in their youthful enthusiasm. "Hanky Panky" is based on the J. Rufus Wallingford series of stories and the opening act shows Wallingford in his villa on the Thames, where he has become a scion of the British nobility. He is visited by friends including the Wriggle sisters from the Gaiety Theatre and their chorus girl friends. One of the prettiest numbers ever devised is that of "Tennis," as sung by the sisters and their friends and is particularly interesting in view of the prominence that tennis has acquired as an international sport. During the festivities some Germans appear on the scene bent upon selling Wallingford a mummy that they have found. The mummy comes to life and proves to be Cleopatra, who haughtily refuses to be sold and dismisses the Germans. Then she proceeds to appropriate Wallingford, who is, she declares her long lost Marc Antony. Wallingford is not averse to being appropriated by the beauteous lady which arouses the ire and jealousy of Clorinda Scribblem, the secretary of Wallingford, who is an eccentric poetess. About this time Blackie Dew appears on the scene and threatens to denounce Wallingford unless that worthy shares his good fortune with him, so Wallingford decides that it is about time for him to change the base of his operations again. He gives his villa to the wandering Germans and goes back to Chicago. The second act takes place in Chicago and shows the campus of the University of Chicago and the famous old Yale fence. This act gives opportunity for some fine comedy and great satire on college life, as well as many songs and dances that breathe the freshness and youth of the college boys and their co-eds. The last act is a beautiful view of Wallingford's home on the lake front of Chicago and gives opportunity for some gorgeous costuming and lighting effects as well as scenic. A special feature of "Hanky Panky" this season is "The Serpentine Tango" that created such a sensation when done at the Winter Garden in New York last season. This will be given in its entirety, both as to costuming, lighting effects and principals as originally given at the Winter Garden in New York. Another big feature is a troupe of dancers from the Jardin de Danse, who will illustrate all of the newest dances as they did them there and which made the Jardin de Danse the most famous place of its kind in the world. The show will be at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow night.

A coming attraction at the Plainfield Theatre is Bayard Veiller's "Within the Law," which ran for an entire year at the Eltinge Theatre, New York city, and which will be seen here on Thursday night. This is the melodrama treating of modern conditions in New York life, which has caused a sensation not only in the metropolis, but throughout the country; for it has provoked editorial comment and praise from such eminent Americans as Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, who wrote of the play, "All employers of labor, who underpay their women employes, should go to see this play for the lesson it will teach them;" and the Bishop of Wyoming, who said: "I shall never forget the lesson it portrayed." "Within the Law" is in four acts and as many scenes. It will be given here by well-known players who have scored individual hits in their respective roles.

"High Jinks," the musical comedy which Arthur Hammerstein will present at the Plainfield Theatre, on Friday, concerns itself with a wonderful perfume that makes the grave gay, the stupid clever, the sick well and everybody in general, hilarious. The first scene is in Dr. Thorne's flower garden near Paris, the second at a French bathing resort in the forenoon, and the third at the same place on a moonlit evening. The action is not monopolized by one or two people, but shared by a large cast, all of whom are given funny things to do. Nor are there any vaudeville interpolations, that favorite trick of bolstering up musical shows that have not enough life in their legitimate make-up to form an evening's entertainment. They are not needed in "High Jinks." There is a merry enough story in the plot, and the musical numbers that fall naturally in with the action furnish plenty of variation of the tuneful sort. A stolen kiss, wives pursuing husbands, and a comic Frenchman, wild for a duel are among the factors that complicate the plot. A handsomely gowned chorus of singing and dancing girls add zest to the festivities.

The comedy cartoon series by George McManus, entitled "Bringing up Father," has been made the nucleus of a musical comedy for stage production by Gus Hill. "Bringing up Father" like the numerous other more or less successful commonly called "funny pictures," have gained their enormous popularity because they evoke a momentary innocent amusement, produced by a ludicrously crude caricature representing a being not entirely human. It is natural to suppose that a two hour and a half entertainment embodying about all of the best element of McManus' satirical art, interspersed with catchy musical numbers and a chorus of capricious maidens to add zest, should prove more than ordinarily amusing to business weary men and women of all classes at the Plainfield Theatre, tonight.

SAURER SWAMPS PETS IN THIRD

Mackmen Have Now Won Two But Still Need Another to Win City Championship.

MC LAUGHLIN SUPREME

Warry, In Old Time Form, Is Hit For Nine Safeties, But Keeps Them Scattered—Martin's Homer and Stine's Catch Feature Game.

The bombardment that is going on in foreign lands had nothing on the bombardment that the Saurer baseball team's heavy artillery started on the Pets, Saturday afternoon, on Parker Field. They easily won the battle, which is the third of the Plainfield-Saurer war, by the score of 11 to 4. After the curtain had dropped on the fourth inning there was no doubt as to who would be the winner of the game, although the Pets made a hard attempt to come back in the sixth frame.

There was a small crowd on hand to watch the match, but those who did brave the threatening weather saw the greatest swatfest that has ever been held on Parker Field. The Saurer aggregation only made ten hits, but they were on the spot when hits were necessary which made it look all the worse to the spectators. McLaughlin and Townley faced each other for the third time this year and up to the third inning it looked like another good old pitchers' fight to the finish, but three innings is only one-third of the game. George did not have much on the ball while Warry had everything necessary on the pill. Both teams played perfect ball behind their respective twirlers at the start, but the Pets could not break away from there usual custom of mussing things up in the pinches and started to perform in the eventful third. Manager Dorflinger had two new men signed up and, although his promised Sharkey, the Fordham star, did not appear, he had Seiftes, of Elizabeth, at shortstop and he held his own in that position. Ramsberger played third base, but apparently had an off day and spilled two or three bad ones. Tommy Mullin was a big help to the Saurer aggregation and his catching strengthened the infield considerably. Henry Alberts played right field.

Brit Martin Was Forced Out at Home

Plainfield decided to take first "raps" for a change, but went out in one, two, three order. Seiftes led off but Martin got in front of the ball and tossed him out at first. Alberts did the same and Dixon hit to McLaughlin. Harriman fanned and Jaeger flied out to Seiftes. Mullin connected with one of his former teammates straight ones and it went to the left field fence for a double. However, he did not score, as Martin flied out to Alberts. In the second Townley only pitched five balls. He tossed one to McLaughlin, three to Garretson and one to Alberts and all three flied out. Warry came back in the second and struck out Townley, Ramsberger and Stine in succession. The third was an uninteresting session, but the Saurer batters landed on Townley in the fourth. Jaeger flied out to Townley and Mullin singled. Ramsberger missed Martin's hit and Mullin went to third. Brit stole second and Tommy scored with the first run when Coyle overran

Jaeger Flied Out to Seiftes at Short.

Warry's slow roller. Seiftes nabbed Garretson's hit to short and threw to Nelson who caught Martin at the plate. Alberts doubled, Miller singled, Wilson doubled and Ramsberger threw the ball a mile over Dixon's head. The result was six runs.

The Pets made four in the sixth. After Nelson had flied out, Seiftes singled and, after stealing second, scored when Alberts hit a long two bagger. Jaeger threw bad to Garretson on Dixon's hit, scoring Alberts. Ramsberger fanned, but Stine singled and Dorman doubled, scoring two. This was all of the Pets score. Manager Martin came into the limelight in the sixth when he hit the ball over the left field fence for a homer, scoring two ahead of him. Two runs had crossed the plate previous, which made the score 11 to 4. The game was tight from then on and the only chance that the Pets had to score was lost when Nelson touched his coacher on third and was called out. In the ninth frame Dorman singled, but was caught in a double play.

The feature of the game was a catch made by Stine in the fifth frame. Garretson, looking for his first hit, smashed a hard one to right and Stine turned and ran back. He looked over his shoulder just in time to stick out his right hand and nab the ball. McLaughlin struck out eight while Townley could only find three victims. Both men walked one batter. Wilson's two doubles, which came at critical times, were also features.

INTERHAVENS DEFEAT WATCHUNG IN TENTH

After Bodin had hit for a circuit clout with the bases full in the ninth inning, tying the score, the Interhavens hit one run over the pan in the tenth frame and defeated the Watchung aggregation by the score of 9 to 8. The Interhavens had things their own way throughout the entire game until the ninth round, when the score was 8 to 3. The winners hit the ball hard throughout and collected nineteen safeties while the mountaineers were held to eleven by George Conover's stellar pitching.

The Interhavens scored once in the first and five runs were counted in the second frame. One in the fourth and fifth were apparently enough for Smalley's men, but in the ninth after the Watchungs had scored once, Bodin came to bat and hit one far into left field clearing the sacks. But the Interhavens were not to be beaten and scored one in the tenth. Wyckoff and Conover led the batting with three hits each while Vail led the Watchungs.

FLEMINGTON WALLOPED HOPEWELL IN SWATFEST

Flemington, Aug. 31—Flemington defeated the Hopewell team here, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 12 to 1, in one of the hardest hitting games of the season. Two singles in the ninth gave the visitors their only run. The score by innings:

PETS WILL HAVE TWO HARD GAMES FOR NEXT WEEK-END

The Pets will take on the strong Elizabeth A. A. team next Saturday in preparation for their last chance with the Saurer team for the city title, which will be played on Labor Day. "Rube" will have the same lineup that he had before when the Pets won a 3 to 2 verdict after eleven innings of play. Richter, who fanned six of the local batters, will again be on the job.

If the Pets should win the game Labor Day they will have to play another game, but if they lose they have no chance for the city championship.

PLAINFIELD PLUMBERS SWAMP BOROUGHITES BY 10-3 SCORE

The Plainfield plumbers swamped the borough pipe fixers in a nine inning swatfest, yesterday, by the score of 10 to 3. The local batters collected nineteen hits while Conklin held his opponents to two. Two runs in the first inning gave the city team a lead that could not be overcome and inning after inning the winners piled up runs at the expense of the Canucks.

North Plainfield was guilty of ten errors which aided in the scoring of runs. Four tallies in the fourth cinched the game, but the city batters did not let up until they had scored two in the ninth. Rice made a great running catch in left field and Tobin was a star on first.

WILLIAM SCHOOLEY AIDS TUSCARORA WIN REGATTA

William Schooley, formerly of this city, but now of Newark, was the whole show in the canoe regatta held at Branch Brook Lake, Newark, last Saturday, and it was through his good work that the Tuscarora Canoe Club, of which he is a member, won the championship and also the Bamberger cup. This club led in each of the four events and had a total of 21 points against its opponents 13.

Schooley, who is a fine swimmer and paddler, holds the State championship for the hurry-scurry race, won this event with several yards to spare and also finished first, with a partner, in the quarter mile doubles event. He was on the team that finished second in the quarter mile fours. The former local athlete has been one of the leaders in many regattas of this kind and at the annual Deal regatta he won the event which gave him the State title. When in this city he took an active part in the swimming department of the local Y. M. C. A.

Carroll scored the first three points for the trophy with a net score of 76, while H. E. Blazier won two points with a 78, and R. V. Carpenter took the remaining point with an 82. These scores were posted:

GRANGER BEAT KIVIAT.

Ralph Granger, the Darthmouth sprinting wonder, who won the 440-yard run at the Parker Field meet on July 4, from scratch, defeated Abel Kiviat, the noted sprinter, in the 1,000 yards event at Jersey City, Saturday. Granger finished second to a handicapped man and Kiviat was behind him.

SCHOTT VS. DENNY; FORMER IS VICTOR

Hope and the Highlanders Battle and the Former Scores a Shutout.

Playing errorless ball for nine long innings and taking advantage of their opponent's three, the Hope Chapel baseball team won a well earned victory over the strong Highlanders, of Netherwood, on the West End field Saturday afternoon. The final score was 2 to 0. The game was an interesting one throughout and was witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters for both teams. Schott and Denny were the opposing twirlers and they had a real pitchers' duel in which the former had a little on his opponent.

From the first ball pitched to the last the game was exciting and with Schott in rare form, fifteen of the Highlanders took three healthy swings and then retired. The Denny brothers, pitcher and shortstop, were the only ones who could find Schott for safeties and they each made one single. The Hope batters went their opponents one better, Thorn, Nash and Walls, being responsible for the hits. The Highlanders went to bat first but were out in quick order. Hope did the same thing and the next three innings were repetitions of the first. Hope scored their first tally in the fifth on a hit which was aided by one error. After that session had closed Denny settled down again and for three more frames there was no scoring done by either side. The Highlanders had very few men on the bases and when they did get there they did not do any good.

Thinking that one run was not a very comfortable lead the Hope batters decided to make one more and this was accomplished in the eighth. The visitors were never dangerous as Schott was the most effective with men on the bases. Denny passed one man and struck out nine while his opponent did not issue a free pass. The score:

HAND'S BATTING DROPS.

"Nibs" Hand has dropped to fourth place in the batting list of the Perth Amboy team. He has an average of .277, which is a drop from above the .300 mark which he had a few weeks ago. He has collected 33 hits out of 119 times at bat in 33 games. Randolph now hits at a .197 clip, but leads the pitchers by a big margin. He has pitched twenty-two games and has won twelve for an average of .545. Clifford, another twirler, has an average of .600, but has only pitched ten games.

GOOD GAME TOMORROW.

The All-Stars, of the Parker Field Middle League, will meet the Highlanders, leaders of the Senior League, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. "Ernie" Stahl will probably pitch for the Highlanders, while Denny or Butler will oppose him. The game will surely be a good one as both teams have been playing a fine article of ball this season.

TWO PITCHERS BADLY USED IN PARK-RAHWAY CONTEST

The Park Avenue Baptist baseball team lost to the Rahway Reformatory nine at Rahway, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 14 to 6. The game was well played up to the fifth frame but in that inning the home batters got busy and drove Coughlan from the mound. King was hit hard at times but kept the hits scattered and was given excellent support throughout.

In the first inning the local batters started a rally and made two runs but the Rahway boys tied the score in their half of the initial round. Day, the shortstop, was lead-off man for the home team and after taking two strikes he hit the ball over the left field wall which is forty feet in height It was a fine hit and the runner easily circled the bases. Encouraged by this wonderful performance, the team put another run over the plate before three outs were made. Each team scored twice in the second and the home team took the lead in the third with one tally.

Four runs in the fifth was enough to win the game and Coughlan retired in favor of Mills who held his opponent at bay until the eighth when they made five runs for a total of fourteen. After the second King was invincible and the locals could only tally one in the sixth and eighth rounds. Waller drove a home run into center field in the second. The score by innings:

SAURERS WIN FROM BOUND BROOK BALLISTS IN NINTH

The Saurer baseball team defeated the St. Joseph's nine at Woodland Park, yesterday afternoon, by the score of 8 to 7. Four runs in the ninth did the trick after the visitors had made five runs in the first session off Johnny Dixon's delivery. They pounded him hard and Miller was sent in to pitch before there was one out in the first round.

The locals were blanked until the fifth, when they scored three runs and they also made one in the fourth. With the score seven to four in the last frame, the Bound Brook players blew up and the locals batted McFadden all over the lot and were assisted by several errors.

The score by innings:

Saurer	0 0 0 4 0 0 0 0 4—8

London, Aug. 31.—"Turkey may declare war at any moment," says the diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.'" It is now only a matter of a few days possibly a few hours. All efforts of the powers in the Triple Entente have failed, and it is admitted that the situation is grave.

"The military party, now dominant in Constantinople, has reached the conclusion that the present is the best time to secure the restoration of Macadonia and the Aegean Islands.

"German officers and men are being poured into Constantinople to help the Turkish army and navy. Turkey apparently counts upon the Balkan States quarrelling among themselves while Turkey fights Greece, but it seems likely that Turkey's declaration of war against Greece will be regarded as a hostile act by the Triple Entente, which will send a fleet to dispose of all the Turkish and German ships.

"The British government has warned Turkey plainly that in starting any campaign at this time she signs her own death warrant."

Washington, Aug. 31.—Informal protest against the purchase by the United States of ships of belligerent powers has been made by Great Britain. The principal ground for the protest is that it would constitute a violation of the neutrality of the United States to purchase ships from powers now at war as this would in an indirect way aid these countries. It is understod that a formal protest will not be made unless the informal protest made today is disregarded by the State Department or an unsatisfactory reply is made by the Secretary of State.

WALTER F. MANNING DECLINES TO RUN

Decides Not to Seek the Mayoralty Nomination On Democratic Ticket.

Walter F. Manning, who has been urged to seek the mayoralty nomination on the Democratic ticket this fall, announced today that he had decided not to enter the race. He explained that for business reasons he would not be able to engage in the campaign and if successful in securing the nomination and election he would not be in a position where he could devote his time to the duties of the office.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart and Charles P. Senger, representing the Democratic organization here, called on Mr. Manning, Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of getting him to enter the campaign for the mayoralty nomination. At the time Mr. Manning said that he was not prepared to give an answer, but added that he would do so today. This morning he informed the committee that he would not try for the nomination.

There is no doubt, however, but that the Democrats will have an opponent to Leighton Calkins, who is out for the Republican nomination. When questioned today as to who was likely to be the Democratic nominee, Mr. Senger said that there would undoubtedly be a nominee, but he was not prepared to give out any further information at present.

Mr. Manning at one time was a mayoralty candidate, running against Charles J. Fisk, who was elected.

WILL DISCUSS CANDIDATES.

The Plainfield Democratic Club will hold its weekly session tomorrow evening in the Depew building, the discussion of candidates for local offices being the special business before the gathering. Candidates for Common Council from the First, Second and Third wards appears to be scarce among the Democrats, and a final effort will be made to have petitions ready for filing before midnight Wednesday. Candidates for the mayoralty will also be discussed on this occasion.

G. O. P. TO MEET.

The First Ward Republican Club will meet this evening in the offices of V. W. Nash, Jr., Park avenue, and complete its anti-primary campaign plans. Several matters of importance are to be discussed, including the completion of the list of candidates for city and county executive committees. Several applications for membership will be acted upon.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Back With My Friends.

PRESENTLY we came to a house situated some distance back from the railroad. A woman with about fifteen youngsters came running out to meet the little girl, who had called to them. When the youngsters saw me they let out a yell and scattered like so many partridges. However, before I went on my way they got so they approached me timidly, and one or two of them even reached out and touched me with their little hands.

Frienie Gerard, for that was the little French girl's name, told me the train bound for Megantic was very nearly due, and I knew if I flagged that train I would save myself a whole lot. Thanking her I once again started up the track. The sun had come out and the weather was beautiful.

Presently I turned the bend and came upon a freight engine puffing on a siding. As I drew up closer the engineer dropped down from the cab and came running up to me. "You're Mr. Knowles, aren't you?" he asked, coming forward with outstretched hand.

I told him that I was.

"All of Megantic is waiting for you," he continued. "Your friends are there, together with the game wardens of Maine and Canada, and they have planned a big welcome for you."

In a moment the rest of the train crew had come running up, and for a few minutes I held a reception in the middle of the track. Just as the little French girl had done, they told me that a passenger would be along any time now and said they would flag it.

"Have you got any money to pay your fare into Megantic with?" asked the engineer.

I laughed and told him the banks in the woods hadn't been doing business for a long time. He took a fifty cent piece out of his pocket and insisted on my borrowing it. I accepted the loan and took his name.

By this time the whistle of the passenger sounded up the track. The train was flagged, and I went into one of the cars, where I sank into a plush seat. It felt mighty good. It was the first sign of luxury I had experienced in two months.

Immediately the car was in an uproar. People from the other cars poured into the one I was in and began shaking my hand and asking me all kinds of questions. I confess I was a bit muddled hearing all those voices and seeing so many faces, and to this day I don't remember what I said or half what they asked.

When the train pulled into Megantic I looked out of the window and beheld a sea of faces. When I came down the steps I thought the crowd would tear the skins from my body. I hadn't dreamed of such a reception as this. I don't know who it was, but somebody hustled me down the main street to the Queen's hotel. The streets were choked with humanity, and I remember looking up and seeing the hotel decorated from bottom to top with British and American flags.

Dr. Gregory of the Canadian parliament was the first to welcome me. In the midst of a lot of excitement in which newspaper men and townspeople were trying to get at me, I was hurried upstairs to a hotel room. I saw a bed over at one side, and, stripping off my bearskin, I threw myself upon it just to see how it would feel. It was pretty fine. I don't know how they got in, but it seemed as if a hundred men crowded every inch of that room. And every one began to fire questions at me. How far had I walked? some one wanted to know. I told him that my trip across to Canada covered about sixty-five miles, and that I had done it in two days and two nights.

Nobody asked me if I wanted anything to eat. However, when I collected my thoughts I saw that I was smoking a cigarette. I don't remember taking it or lighting it. Some one just shoved it into my hand.

One of the party of friends who had been on hand to greet me pushed through the crowd to the bed, with four big strapping men behind him.

"Joe, these are the game wardens of Maine, who have come up to welcome you and escort you back through the state," he said.

I want to mention the names of these men because they proved to be splendid friends to me on my homeward trip. They were F. J. Durgin, chief warden of Somerset county; H. O. Templeton, warden of Franklin county; James Wilcox and L. F. Comber, wardens of Somerset county. They assured me that I would not be molested on the downward trip and that they considered it an honor to be one of the party.

"You ought to have something to eat, Mr. Knowles," one of them suggested, whereupon a doctor in the room, overhearing the remark, rushed forward, holding up his hands in horror, and said, with a quaver in his voice: "This man can't eat heartily after the diet he has been living on for two months He must be most careful about what he eats."

"Well, he can have a spoonful of milk, can't he?" requested some one.

The doctor agreed to that. But as soon as he had left the room another voice shouted above the babel, "Gentlemen, gentlemen!" The talk subsided. "Gentlemen, here is a man who has been living in the woods for two months, eating anything he could lay his hands on. He has just reached us after walking sixty-five miles through the wilderness without eating a thing but a raw partridge since yesterday morning. Wouldn't it be interesting to see what he orders for his first meal?"

Everybody thought it would.

I looked around for the doctor, but he hadn't come back. Then I shouted the first thing that came into my head, "Fried salt pork, potatoes and tea!"

Everybody laughed.

I think I ordered that combination because it was my first recollection of food back in those days of poverty years ago. When the order arrived I gazed with misgiving at a three legged table which, during the last half hour, had tipped over no less than a half dozen times. I saw the tray containing the food placed on that table, and I made a jump to steady it. Then I looked at the food. With two bites and one swallow I would have cleaned everything up. But I was back in civilization and it was necessary to be polite, so I nibbled and went on answering questions.

As to my feelings among all those people I was somewhat dazed. I answered them mechanically, my mind traveling with race horse speed.

I wanted to see the papers and read what people had been saying about me. This I did later in the evening after the room had been cleared. But even then I had to barricade the door with furniture.

At half past 1 the next morning I left Megantic en route for Boston by way of the wilderness.

The ending of my two months' experiment in the woods of northern Maine was only the beginning of an experiment that will, I hope, lead up to something of international importance and magnitude.

I have many plans, some more remote than others, but some time during my lifetime I hope to see them all carried out, for I believe that such plans worked out will create a new foundation on which the nation may stand.

Simply because we are a civilized people does not mean that the days of wilderness colonization are over.

Within a very few years I hope, with the co-operation of the United States government, to be able to establish a colony of men and women who are interested in this outdoor movement, where every lover of nature may live as he wants to and was meant to live.

From the government I hope to obtain thousands of acres of wild lands, which, if not utilized, would remain a waste for hundreds of years.

While I have not perfected my plans at this early date, I sincerely hope that the project may be carried out under the stars and stripes.

WATERMELON DAINTIES.

PRESERVED Melon Rind.—Pare melon and cut in slices. Boil an ounce of alum in a gallon of water, pour it over the rind and let it stand several hours; then take out into cold water, and when cold put them into pickle made thus: For four pounds of rind boil together two pounds of sugar, a pint of vinegar and half a cupful of mixed whole spices, stick cinnamon, cassia buds, allspice and cloves—about half less of cloves than of other spices. Tie them in a bag. Skim; add rinds; boil half an hour.

Kept In Sealed Jars.

Pickled Melon.—Take two pounds of melon, one pound of sugar, two lemons, two pints of good vinegar, four teaspoonfuls of peppercorns, two teaspoonfuls of allspice, twelve cloves, a level teaspoonful of salt. After paring the melon cut it into pieces an inch wide and three inches long, pour over them the vinegar and cover closely. Three days after drain off and heat the vinegar, and when nearly boiling add the melon and finely grated rinds of the lemons. As the pieces of melon become clear transfer them to a dry jar. When all are done mix with the boiling vinegar the sugar, spice and salt, boil it slowly for twenty minutes and toward the end add the juice of the lemons, also a little more vinegar should not enough remain to fill the jar or jars almost to the brim. Pour it over the melon while boiling and fasten down immediately.

Flavored With Lemon.

Melon Jam.—Take six pounds of melon, about a pound and a half of pineapple, either fresh or canned, four pounds of sugar and two lemons. After taking off the skin in the ordinary way pare the melons again, and this second paring chop rather finely. Cut the remainder of the melons into half inch dice, mix with them the minced melon, the finely grated rinds of the lemons and the sugar and macerate until the following day. Cut the pineapple into very small pieces and leave it covered overnight. To the trimmings of a fresh pineapple or the juice from canned pineapple add the pulp and seeds taken from the melons. Cover with water, boil gently for about forty minutes; then strain and if necessary boil again until reduced to a teacupful. Next day boil the melon, sugar and liquid from the seeds gently for an hour; then put in the pineapple. About twenty minutes boiling usually thickens it, the lemon juice being added five minutes before it is done.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—The Frog That Wasn't Satisfied.

And Croaked For Joy.

"GUESS I'll have to tell you tonight, kiddies, about the frog that wasn't satisfied with the home he had." So daddy began.

"Once there was a frog that lived in a nice pond with a lot of other frogs and tadpoles and polliwogs. All these children's parents had all the nice fat flies and gnats and other insects they could eat, and the children played and wiggled around all day through the long, beautiful summer, and there were big lily pads for their parents to sit on at night and croak, and altogether it was a regular frog heaven in that pond.

"But there was one young frog that was never satisfied. He had never been satisfied from the time he had been a polliwog. Then he didn't grow into a tadpole fast enough to suit him, and when he became a tadpole and his funny tail spread all out behind I'm blessed if he didn't find fault then because his legs didn't grow fast enough to suit him, and it was always the same after he had become a frog. He was always quarreling about something and finding fault.

"One day he sat on a lily pad. It was in the morning, and he had eaten so many flies that I guess he had indigestion, and he said: 'I'm sick of living in this old pond. I'm going away right now.'

"So he swam to the shore, kicking out so funny with his long legs, and he climbed upon the bank, and he hopped away through the field, where he had never been before, and he liked it very much at first—the tall grass and green leaves and flowers—and he thought what a lucky frog he was. And then he was scared nearly to death, for the awfulest big creature came lumbering along and almost stepped on him. It was a cow, you see, though he didn't know that.

"Half dead with fright, he came to a road and was hopping across it when—whiz-z! just like that—an automobile almost ran over him. And with his poor little heart almost bursting with fright he hopped back into the field again, and he was hot and dusty and wanted a drink, but there wasn't a drop of water anywhere.

"He tried to find his dear pond again, and he was lost for a long time. He hopped around for hours till it seemed as if he could hop no more, and he was almost crying, he was so scared and lonely for his mates. And at last, when the stars had come out, by a lucky chance he found his pond and got on a lily pad and croaked for joy.

"And always after that, kiddies, that frog was satisfied with his nice home, you may be sure."

By JUDIC CHOLLET

It would be difficult to find a prettier dress for little girls than this one. The edges of the Japanese sleeves are lapped at the shoulders to effect the closing so that there is no opening at either the front or the back. The plain skirt is in three pieces with just enough ripple to be exceedingly smart. The contrasting materials shown on the figure make a very good and very fashionable effect.

GIRL'S DRESS.

For the six year size the blouse will require one and three-eighths yards of material twenty-seven inches wide, the skirt and trimming one and one-eighth yards twenty-seven inches wide.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for children from four to eight years. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 8313, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

REVIEWS PROGRESS OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Mrs. Helen Hoy Greeley, of New York, spoke on Saturday night at a street meeting held under the auspices of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield. An automobile decorated with flags and suffrage banners drawn up at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, formed a platform for Mrs. Greeley at the meeting which was the last of the series.

After briefly reviewing the progress of woman suffrage in the last forty years, Mrs. Greeley went on to show how the progress of industry has totally changed the position of woman from that of a universal provider and organizer to that of a purchasing agent.

With this changed position woman was no longer able to control the welfare of the family, but becoming dependent on industry to supply the rest of the family, she had felt the necessity for a vote whereby to express her wishes to a government controlling these industries.

Mrs. Greeley, who had come straight from the "Peace Parade" wearing the mourning costume of the marchers, dwelt on the results to be expected from the European war, showing how heavily the burden fell on the women and how unjust it is that she should have no voice in the making of war. Mrs. Greeley quoted in conclusion La Galliene's poem on "War."

BAPTIST C. E. SOCIETY ENJOY A CORN ROAST

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church to the number of about thirty, together with a number of friends, enjoyed a corn roast at the home of Heber Cubberley at South Plainfield, Saturday evening. The young people gathered about 5 o'clock and soon afterward the fire was started around which the Endeavorers sat and sang songs while they waited for the corn and other good things to roast. After enjoying a feast provided by the host, all adjourned to the house where piano solos were enjoyed. The veranda and lawn were attractively decorated with cut flowers and Chinese lanterns.

Among those present were: The Misses Corinne Tennyson, Harriet Mattison, Ruth Bunker, Dorothy Lee, Anna Sherwin, Alice Drake, Marjorie Bonnell, Marjorie Acker, Marie Fountain, Beatrice Gardner, Flora Krausse, Lois Peck, Rose Andrews, Marjorie Cubberley, Aileen Chandler, Louisa Andrews, Elizabeth Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Gideon Fountain, Robert Butler, Howard Parry, Heber Cubberley, Egbert Fountain, Jesse Boughton, Hollis Cubberley, Russell Cose, James Dunwell, Randolph Stelle, Horace Bunker, Harry Lapp and Lester Chandler.

Flemington.

The Flemington Concert Band and the Woman's Club took in $112 at a lawn fete held in the public park last Thursday evening.

Services were omitted at the Presbyterian church yesterday. Rev. Howard H. Brown, pastor of the Baptist church, made the address at union twilight services in the public park last evening.

George H. Atkinson, grand patriarch, of Moorestown, paid a fraternal visit to Adelphi Encampment, No. 19, I. O. O. F., Thursday night.

UPSET WHILE CANOEING.

While canoeing on the Cranford River, yesterday, with two young women from Newark, Robert Dow and Harold "Dutch" Denlinger, of this city, were thrown into the water at one of the deepest parts of the river. Four in one canoe was a pretty ticklish proposition and while changing from one side of the canoe to the other, one of the party went too far and all were thrown into the water. An attendant at the boathouse went to the rescue. The party was none the worse for their adventure save being wet and the loss of a camera and a parasol.

PLAN BIRTHDAY PARTY.

The Plainfield Graded Union will not hold a meeting on Labor Day nor during that week, but will hold the annual birthday party at the home of Mrs. Robert Love, 138 Grove street, Thursday, September 10. The members will meet at Mrs. Love's home about 10 o'clock in the morning, spending the rest of the day there.

MAY GO TO DENVER.

Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, formerly of Newark, and one of the best known members of the Newark Conference of the M. E. church for many years, but who has been pastor of a Methodist church in Baltimore, has received an invitation to the pastorate of the Trinity M. E. church, in Denver, Col., and hopes to accept the same.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN YOUR BUSINESS

is the disposition you make of your property. You may slave and toil all your life but if at your decease what you have accumulated does not benefit those for whom it was intended, much of your thought and labor will have gone for nought. One of the principal functions of this Company is to act as and when appointed in that capacity we see to it that the wishes of the testator are carried out and that his estate is efficiently and economically managed. Consultation on this subject is invited.

What Chance Has the Kaiser?

YOU have no way of judging the possible outcome unless you GET POSTED on the relative army, naval and aerial strength of the various European combatants. Then you must consider the relative positions of the countries on the map, strategic defenses, naval bases, topography, financial strength and populations. Considering all things, perhaps the Kaiser and his allies have a better chance of winning than the combined forces of the other great powers arrayed against him in superior numbers. Victory has not always come to the largest body of fighting men. GET THE BIG

Free War Map

The DAILY PRESS' latest European Map in five colors gives you the entire situation at a glance—EVERYTHING you want to know about the warring countries, their present armed strength and past successes.
